By section 8 (1), the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council is required to the appointment of additional District Judges. These Judges also exercise the powers of additional Sessions Judges; and it is anomalous that while, under the Code of Criminal Procedure, a Local Government is competent to appoint additional Sessions Judges, a reference to the Government of India should be necessary for the appointment of additional District Judges. Such references are purely formal, and it would be of great administrative convenience to give the Local Government the power to appoint additional District Judges. It is accordingly proposed to omit the words "and with the previous sanction of the Governor General in Council" from section 8 (1).

By section 25, selected Munsifs in the North-Western Provinces, Bengal and Eastern Bengal and Assam may be given power to try suits not exceeding Rs. 100 in value, by a summary procedure as "small causes". It is considered that the Local Governments concerned might with advantage be given the power to extend the limit to Rs. 250 in the case of Munsifs of tried fitness. The limit in Madras and Bombay is Rs. 200 and in the Punjab and Lower Burma Rs. 500.

The 17th August, 1911. J. L. JENKINS.

NO. 14 OF 1911.

A Bill to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of matches made with white phosphorus.

WHEREAS it is expedient to prohibit the importation, manufacture and sale of matches made with white phosphorus; It is hereby enacted as follows:—

Provided that any such person may at the time the sample is taken, and on providing the necessary appliances, require the Inspector to divide the sample so taken into two parts, and to mark, seal and deliver to him one part.

(2) Any person who contravenes the provisions of sub-section (1) may, on complaint to a Magistrate, be ordered to forfeit any such matches in his possession, and any matches so forfeited shall be destroyed or otherwise dealt with as the Magistrate may direct.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE object of this Bill is to prohibit the importation into India, and the manufacture and sale in this country, of matches which contain white (yellow) phosphorus.

It has recently been decided that India shall become a party to the Berne International Convention of 1906, the object of which is to prohibit the use of white (yellow) phosphorus in matches, in order to eliminate absolutely the chance of the very painful disease called " necrosis " or " phossy jaw " occurring among the operatives in match factories. Under the terms of that Convention, it is incumbent upon the contracting parties to take the necessary administrative steps to ensure the attainment of the object of the Convention within their respective territories; and the present Bill has been framed accordingly. The provisions of the Bill follow as closely as necessary and practicable the lines of the English White Phosphorus Matches Prohibition Act, 1908 (8 Edw. 7, ch. 42).

The 21st August 1911. W. H. CLARK.

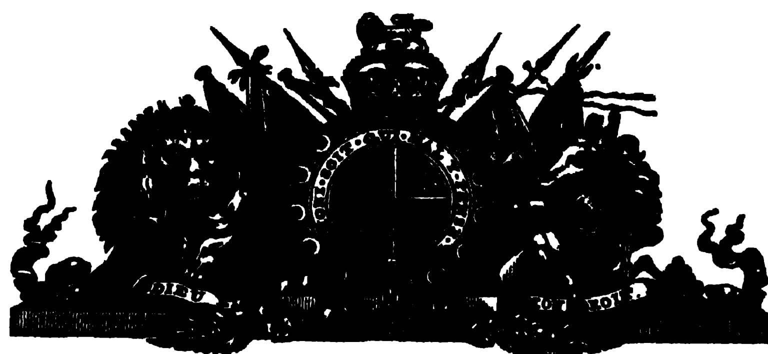
Saving for acts done in good faith under Act.



14. No suit, prosecution or other legal proceedings shall lie against any person for anything which is in good faith done or intended to be done under this Act.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE gradual improvement which is taking place in the construction of airships has given rise to certain new military problems. It is now considered necessary, on military grounds, to prevent the acquisition, through the use of such vehicles, of improper information as to the internal arrangements of forts, arsenals, magazines, etc., and also to protect places or persons from attack from such vehicles in times of actual hostilities It is therefore proposed to take powers to control, for military purposes, the manufacture, sale, import, export, use and possession of all airships by a system of licenses to be issued to approved persons. It is also proposed to empower Government to take over all such airships, subject to the payment of reasonable compensation, in times of grave public emergency.

THE HON'BLE MR. D. J. MACPHERSON, C.I.E., I.C.S.

I AM directed to submit the following report on the administration of Income-tax in the Lower Provinces during the triennium ending on 31st March 1911. * * *

* * * * * *

Miscellaneous orders and rulings of importance.

Letter of the Government of India, No. 588Exc., dated the 2nd February 1909.

(ii) It was ruled by the Madras High Court that income-tax documents are not privileged under section 123 of the Evidence Act, 1872, and that they are liable to be produced in Court for inspection.

* * * * * *

Letter of the Government of India, No. 4994Exc., dated the 4th October 1909.

(iv) It was ruled by the Government of India that when a private employer is bound under the terms of a contract or has elected, as a general measure, to pay leave allowances to his employés in England, such allowances, though taxable as income, need not in future be assessed to the Indian income-tax. The taxation or non-taxation of pensions should follow the same rule.

Letter of the Government of India, No. 1031F., dated the 25th February 1911.

(vi) It was decided by the Government of India that premia paid to an Insurance Company in respect of endowment policies, issued for the benefit of a child under the following terms, viz.: (1) that the sums assessed are payable to the child at a specified age, whether the father be alive or dead; (2) that the premia are to be returned to the contributor (or his heirs) without interest if the child dies before the prescribed age, and (3) that the payment of premia ceases in the event of the previous death of the father, should be held to be "a payment to an Insurance Company in respect of an insurance on the contributor's own life" within the meaning of clause (a) (2) of article 34 of the Civil Account Code.

* * * * * *

(x) A ruling of Government was inserted as note 2 to section II of the Income-tax Manual stating that in the case of factories other than jute and cotton mills the Board will sanction a percentage deduction on account of depreciation as cases arise.

Board's Circular Order No. 2188B., dated the 23rd April 1910.

Revenue derived from income-tax during the triennium.

7. The receipts, charges and net revenue derived from the collection of income-tax during each of the three years 1908-09, 1909-10 and 1910-11 were as follows :—

Year.	Receipts.	Charges.	Percentage of charges.	Net revenue.
	Rs.	Rs.		Rs.
1910-11 ...	53,86,892	1,71,587	3·2	52,15,305
1909-10 ...	55,96,282	1,71,484	3·1	54,24,798
1908-09 ...	56,50,644	1,72,236	3	54,78,408

The decrease in the net revenue during 1910-11 was 3·9 per cent. as compared with 1909-10 and 4·8 per cent. as compared with 1908-09. The average net receipts of the triennium show an increase of Rs. 6,29,812 or 13·3 per cent. as compared with the figures of the preceding triennium. The increase was chiefly the result of the coal boom in the beginning of the period.

Demand on account of income-tax.

8. The number of persons finally assessed and the final demand during each year of the triennium were as follows :—

Year.	Number of persons finally assessed in—			Final demand in—
	Calcutta.	Other districts.	Total of columns 2 and 3.	Calcutta.	Other districts.	Total of columns 5 and 6.
1	2	3	4	5	6	7
				Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1910-11 ...	19,954	28,883	48,837	32,85,542	16,80,820	49,66,362
1909-10 ...	19,619	28,096	47,715	34,45,938	16,89,427	51,35,365
1908-09 ...	19,457	26,860	46,317	35,80,045	16,49,062	52,29,107

The final number of assessees for the year 1910-11 showed an increase of 1,122 and 2,520 persons, or 2·4 and 5·4 per cent., as compared with the figures of 1909-10 and 1908-09, respectively, while the final demand for the year 1910-11 showed a decrease of Rs. 1,69,003, or 3·3 per cent., and of Rs. 2,62,745, or 5·02 per cent., as compared with the figures of these years respectively. The decrease was chiefly due to the loss of revenue amounting to Rs. 1,60,396, Rs. 31,302 and Rs. 16,829 in Calcutta, Manbhum and Burdwan, respectively, during the year 1910-11 owing to general depression in trade, and specially in the coal, jute, lac and mica industries. Taking the average figures for the three years, the final number of assessees and the final demand during the triennium under report show an increase of 3,996 persons and Rs. 6,61,316 or 9·2 and 14·9 per cent., respectively, over the average figures for the previous triennium, a result which is mainly attributed to the prosperity of the coal and jute industries at the commencement of the period.

* * * * * *

9. The following statement compares the number of assessees and the amount of tax collected under Part IV in the grade of Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 1,250 during the triennium under report:—

Number of assessees and the amount of tax collected under Part IV in the grade of Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 1,250.

Year.			Number of assessees under Part IV in the grade of Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 1,250.	Amount of tax collected under Part IV in the grade of Rs. 1,000 to Rs. 1,250.
				Rs.
1910-11	...	...	11,239	2,25,125
1909-10	...	...	10,947	2,19,117
1908-09	...	...	10,511	2,10,808

The number of persons assessed and the amount of tax collected in 1910-11 show an increase of 292 persons or 2·7 per cent. and of Rs. 6,008, or 2·7 per cent., as compared with the figures of 1909-10, and an increase of 728 persons and Rs. 14,317, or 6·9 and 6·8 per cent., respectively, as compared with the figures of 1908-09. The average figures of the triennium under report show an increase of 292 persons, or 2·8 per cent., and of Rs. 6,423, or 3·04 per cent., as compared with those of the preceding triennium. An analysis of the figures shows that there was in 1910-11 an increase both in the number of assessees and in the tax in respect of all incomes up to Rs. 5,000, and a decrease in almost every class above that. The smaller classes of local traders in the interior of the Province have been doing well during the triennium, while the larger interests, specially in Calcutta, have suffered from the depression in coal, jute and piece-goods. The increase observable in the lowest class of all is accordingly not confined to it and does not indicate any undue tendency to bring under assessment those whom Act XI of 1903 was intended to relieve. The greatest possible care is taken before assessing any person who has previously been exempt

10. The following statement shows the proportion of persons assessed to population and to villages in the Province and the incidence of the tax during the triennium under report:—

Incidence of the demand on population.

Year.		Proportion of persons assessed to population.		Proportion of persons assessed to villages.		Number of persons in proportion to each rupee of tax assessed.
		Persons.	Population.	Persons.	Villages.
1910-11	...	1	1,074	33	100	11
1908-09	...	1	1,091	34	100	10

The population statistics for 1910-11 are based on the provisional totals of the census of 1911 and those for the previous years on the census figures of 1901. The late census shows an increase both in the population and in the number of villages, and this accounts mainly for the fluctuations observable.

11. The proportion of the tax paid in Calcutta in comparison with that paid in the rest of the Province is exhibited below:—

Rural and the urban incidence of the tax.

Year.			Amount of tax realized in— Calcutta.	Rest of Province.	Total.
			Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1910-11	...	...	30,30,254	16,17,831	46,48,085
1909-10	...	...	32,87,964	16,20,269	49,08,233
1908-09	...	...	34,07,561	15,95,864	50,03,365

The number of assessees in each year has already been compared in paragraph 8 above. It will be seen that during the last year under consideration Calcutta contributed 40·9 per cent. of the persons assessed and 65·2 per cent. of the tax realized. In the last year of the preceding triennium the percentages were 42·2 and 66·6 This of course includes a large amount of income accruing in the interior of the Province from businesses which have merely a central office in Calcutta.

* * * * * *

The incidence of the tax in rural areas during the year 1910-11 varied from Re. 1 to every 73 persons in Cuttack to Re. 1 to every four persons in Darjeeling.

Excluding Calcutta, only one person in 1,774 of the population pays income-tax, and the average amount paid by each assessee is Rs. 58, which denotes an average assessable income of Rs. 2,220. In Calcutta (which for income-tax purposes includes the town of Howrah) the proportion is one person in 61, and the average tax paid is Rs. 165, representing an average assessable income of Rs. 6,340.

12. The incidence of the tax according to the different rates of incomes is shown in the following abstract:—

Incidence of the tax according to incomes.

Class.	Rate of income.	Percentage of assessees of each class.	Percentage of collections contributed by each class.
	Rs. Rs.
I ...	1,000 but less than 1,250	32·6	6·4
II ...	1,250 ditto 1,500	13·0	3·8
III ...	1,500 ditto 1,750	9·2	3·3
IV ...	1,750 ditto 2,000	7·6	3·2
V to XIII ...	2,000 and over ...	37·6	83·3

The proportion of the number of assessees with incomes of less than Rs. 2,000 a year was 62·4 per cent. and that of the amount paid by them 16·7 per cent. In the previous triennium the corresponding figures were 62·1 and 15·6 per cent.

14. * * * * * *

Objections to the demand.

The percentages of objections to assessment for the whole Province were 11·7 in 1910-11, 11·1 in 1909-10 and 11·8 in 1908-09 and an average of 11·4 during the preceding triennium.

* * * * * *

Exemptions and result of revision.

Year.	Number of persons exempted.	Amount of tax remitted.
		Rs.
1910-11 ...	741	74,176
1908-09 ...	657	88,105

15. The figures on the margin compare the number of persons exempted on revision and the amount of tax remitted by District officers, Commissioners and the Board during the triennium under report. The percentage of exemptions on the number of persons originally assessed was 1·5 in 1910-11 and 1·4 in each of the two preceding years; that of remissions on the original demand 1·6, 1·7 and 1·7 respectively. In the preceding triennium the corresponding average percentages were 1·4 and 1·5. The percentage of exemptions or remissions did not exceed 5 in any district, except in Hazaribagh, where the percentage of remission was 7·07. The high percentage in that district is ascribed to defective assessment and also to the straitened circumstances of some old assessees.

16. The following statement compares the amount of the tax collected under each part of the Act during the last three years :—

Collections of income-tax.

YEAR.		Part I—Salaries, pensions, annuities and gratuities.	Part II—Profits of companies.	Part III—Interest on securities.	Part IV—Other sources.	TOTAL.
		Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1910-11	...	8,37,101	9,12,728	1,36,058	27,62,198	46,48,085
1909-10	...	8,18,524	11,56,070	1,28,143	28,05,496	49,08,233
1908-09	...	7,91,775	12,03,608	1,26,865	28,81,117	50,03,365

The total collections on account of tax under all parts during the year 1910-11 showed decreases of Rs. 2,60,148 and Rs. 3,55,280, or 5·3 and 7·1 per cent., respectively, as compared with the figures of the preceding two years. The collections under Parts I and III in 1910-11 as compared with 1909-10 show an increase of Rs. 18,577 and Rs. 7,915, or 2·3 and 6·2 per cent., respectively, whilst those under Parts II and IV show a decrease of Rs. 2,43,342 and Rs. 43,298, or 21·05 and 1·5 per cent., respectively. The decrease is chiefly due to the general depression of trade in Calcutta. The transactions in piece-goods were almost at a standstill, and the loss on unsaleable stocks was very great. The jute mills and the jute presses suffered materially owing to the bad state of the jute market. The coal companies also fared very badly.

The gross collections during the year 1910-11, including arrears of tax, penalties, etc., amounted to Rs. 48,93,587, as compared with Rs. 51,36,767 in 1909-10, Rs 51,92,911 in 1908-09, and an average of Rs. 44,78,091 during the preceding triennium.

The percentage of tax collected under each part on the total amount of tax collected during the year 1910-11 was as follows :—

Part I—Salaries	... ...	... 18
„ II—Profits of companies	...	... 19·7
„ III—Interest on securities	...	... 2·9
„ IV—Other sources	... ...	... 59·4

The percentage of collections on the final demand on account of tax only during 1910-11 was 93·6 as compared with 95·6 and 95·97 in the two previous years, and an average of 97·02 per cent. during the preceding triennium. The falling off is mainly due to the large balance uncollected in Calcutta.

The percentage of collections on the final demand on account of tax, penalties, etc., both current and arrear, excluding advance payments and excess collections, was 91·6 as compared with 93·5 and 94·2 in the two previous years.

Outstanding balance of income-tax.

17. The outstanding balance on account of tax, penalties and costs in each year is shown below:—

YEAR.	BALANCE ON ACCOUNT OF—
	Tax.	Penalties.	Costs.	Total.
	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.	Rs.
1910-11 ...	3,97,153	19,065	4,544	4,20,762
1909-10 ...	2,63,990	13,757	3,365	2,81,112
1908-09 ..	2,48,947	12,186	3,699	2,64,832

The sum of Rs. 4,20,762 outstanding at the close of 1910-11 includes Rs. 53,787 for the year 1909-10 and Rs 39,174 for 1908-09. Calcutta alone returns a balance amounting to Rs. 3,41,398, as compared with Rs. 2,01,036 in 1909-10 and Rs. 2,04,758 in 1908-09. Of the total balance of Rs. 4,20,762, Rs. 1,31,066 is reported to be under realization, Rs. 1,97,302 as doubtful and Rs. 92,394 as probably irrecoverable.

Coercive measures.

18. The following statement compares the demand, collection and balance on account of penalties, fines and costs for the last three years:—

* * * * * *

23. The main feature of the triennium is the depression of trade and decline of business in coal, jute and piece-goods which mainly affected Calcutta and resulted in a falling off of revenue in the last year of the period from Rs. 54,78,408 to Rs. 52,15,305. The average result, however, is favourable, the increase of revenue over the last triennium being more than six lakhs. The tax cannot be said to be popular, but the people have become accustomed to it and the administration of the Act has been carried on smoothly. The thanks of the Board are due to Commissioners and to Collectors generally for their satisfactory management of the department.

REPORT ON THE ADMINISTRATION OF THE STAMP DEPARTMENT FOR THE TRIENNIUM ENDING THE 31ST MARCH 1911.

NOTIFICATION.

No. 418S.R.—The 29th August 1911.—The following extracts from the Report from the Board of Revenue, L. P., on the administration of the Stamp Department for the triennium ending the 31st March 1911, are published for general information.

H. Wheeler,
Secy. to the Govt. of Bengal.

No. 4006B., dated Calcutta, the 8th August 1911.

From—W. A. Marr, Esq., i.c.s., Secretary to the Board of Revenue, L. P., Miscellaneous Revenue Department,

To—The Secretary to the Government of Bengal, Financial Department.

Member in charge:
The Hon'ble Mr. D. J. Macpherson, c.i.e., i.c.s.

I am directed to submit, for the information of Government, the following report on the administration of the Stamp Department during the three years ending the 31st March 1911.

2. Important changes in the Law and in the Rules issued by the Government and the Board.—The stamp revenue during the period continued to be realized under the Indian Stamp Act, II of 1899, and the Court-fees Act (VII of 1870). During the period under review the former Act was amended by Act VI of 1910, which enhanced the rates of duty on certain instruments. The Court-fees Act of 1870 was also amended by Act VII of 1910, by which the probate of a will or letters of administration or succession certificate was made chargeable with stamp duty varying from 2 to 3 per cent. according to the amount or value of the property.

* * * * *

FINANCIAL RESULTS.

9. The receipts which in 1907-08, the last year of the preceding triennium, were Rs. 1,51,17,649 rose to Rs. 1,55,99,226 in 1908-09 and Rs. 1,56,17,389 in 1909-10. During the last year of the triennium under review the receipts as reported by the Accountant-General, Bengal, were Rs. 1,53,90,483, but to this figure has to be added a sum of Rs. 4,70,000 representing the fixed assignment from postal stamp receipts on account of income from sale of unified stamps for non-postal purposes. Since the accounts for 1910-11 have not been finally closed, this sum has not been included in the Accountant-General's figures. Adding this sum, the total receipts for 1910-11 come to Rs. 1,58,60,483, or an increase of 1·5 per cent. over the figures for the previous year, so that there has been a progressive increase throughout the triennium. The principal increase is in judicial stamps.

* * * * *

A.—JUDICIAL STAMPS.

11. The sale-proceeds of court-fee stamps (excluding stamps for copies) increased steadily from Rs. 1,00,51,023 in 1908-09 to Rs. 1,03,51,335 in 1909-10, and Rs. 1,05,09,357 in the last year of the triennium, shewing a progressive rise of 2·9 and 4·5 per cent. during the last two years. The increase is mainly attributed to larger resort to civil courts, to the payment of a larger amount of duty in probate and administration cases in Calcutta, and to the gradual development of survey and settlement operations. The enquiries held by revenue officers under section 19 H (3) of the Court-fees Act, VII of 1870, as amended by Act XI of 1899, have led to more careful valuations by applicants for the grant of probates and letters of administration. The receipts from the sale of stamps for copies increased from Rs. 5,51,112 in 1908-09 to Rs. 5,82,480 in 1909-10 and fell to Rs. 5,76,569 in 1910-11. But the receipts from the sale of plain paper rose steadily from Rs. 1,90,667 in 1908-09 to Rs. 2,05,821 in 1909-10 and Rs. 2,11,281 in the following year. The miscellaneous receipts declined from Rs. 648 in 1908-09 to Rs. 350 in 1909-10 and Rs. 258 in 1910-11. It may be mentioned that while the incidence of income-tax is only 1 anna 5 pies per head of the population of this Province, that of court-fee stamps amounts to 3 annas 5 pies per head.

B.—NON-JUDICIAL STAMPS.

12. The revenue derived from the sale of non-judicial stamps shows during the last year of the triennium a decrease of Rs. 2,43,238 or 5·6 per cent. when compared with 1908-09, but an increase of Rs. 85,438, or 2·1 per cent. when compared with 1909-10. This increase was shared by all classes of stamps except impressed stamps, notarial stamps, stamps for legal practitioners' licenses and "miscellaneous receipts."

13. (a) Impressed Stamps.—Receipts from the sale of impressed stamps (the most important item among non-judicial stamps) showed a progressive decrease during the past three years. The revenue, which amounted to Rs. 25,49,818 during 1908-09, declined to Rs. 23,99,721 in 1909-10 and to Rs. 22,27,694 in 1910-11. The decrease is principally due to the improvement in agricultural conditions owing to the high prices obtained for produce and the more favourable climatic conditions prevailing during the triennium. In Chota Nagpur the coming into force of the Chota Nagpur Tenancy Act (Bengal Act VI of 1908), which has considerably curtailed the power of the raiyat to mortgage or alienate his holding, has tended to reduce the number of instruments relating to land.

14. (b) Hundis or inland bills-of-exchange.—The revenue derived from the sale of stamps for hundis or bills-of-exchange rose steadily during the past three years. The receipts during 1910-11 were Rs. 1,64,978, and show an increase of Rs. 48,760 as compared with those of 1909-10 and of Rs. 50,588 over those of 1908-09. The largest increase occurred in Calcutta and is attributed to the raising of duty payable under Article 13 (b) of the amended Act VI of 1910.

15. (c) Impressed labels or special adhesive stamps.—Receipts from the sale of impressed labels, which are used only in Calcutta, showed in 1910-11 an increase of Rs. 99,308, or 10·2 per cent. as compared with those of 1909-10; but when compared with the receipts of 1908-09, a decrease of Rs. 48,682, or 4·3 per cent. is observed. The increase in 1910-11 is attributed to the growing popularity of this class of stamps with the mercantile community of Calcutta.

16. (d) Foreign Bill Stamps.—The receipts from these stamps, which are also sold only in Calcutta, amounted to Rs. 1,19,439 during 1910-11 and exceeded those of the preceding two years by Rs. 39,666 and Rs. 50,589, or by 49·7 and 7·4 per cent., respectively.

17. (e) Share-transfer Stamps.—Sales of these stamps, which are used for the payment of stamp duty on transfers of the shares of public companies and associations, are practically confined to Calcutta. The revenue fell from Rs. 1,14,934 in 1908-09 to Rs. 55,329 in 1909-10, but rose to Rs. 1,19,761 in 1910-11. The decrease in 1909-10 is attributed to the general depression in trade and to decrease in speculation in coal shares, the boom in which augmented the receipts in the preceding triennium. The improvement noticed in 1910-11 is due mainly to the raising of the stamp duty payable under Article 62, Schedule I of the amended Act VI of 1910.

18. (f) Stamps for Legal Practitioners' licenses.—The amount of revenue realised from the sale of these stamps during 1910-11 was Rs. 1,00,711, which shows a decrease of Rs. 2,290 as compared with the receipts of 1909-10 and an increase of Rs. 1,800 as compared with those of 1908-09.

19. (g) Notarial Stamps.—These are one-rupee foreign bill stamps over-printed with the word "Notarial" under rule 15 (d) of the rules issued with the notification of the Government of India No. 3632 Exc., dated the 29th June 1906. They were sold in 9 out of 33 districts in 1910-11. The sales of the year amounted to Rs. 1,170 in comparison with Rs. 1,642 and Rs. 1,593 during the two previous years.

20. (h) Forms for cheques and receipts.—Forms for cheques and receipts are impressed with one-anna stamps by the Controller of Printing, Stationery and Stamps in accordance with rule 7 of the rules issued with the notification just cited on receipt of a certificate of payment from a Government Treasury. Cheque forms of different kinds issued by the Accountant-General, Bengal, for the use of incorporated local funds, are also impressed in the office of the Controller of Printing, Stationery and Stamps with one-anna stamps and issued to all treasuries in Bengal. The receipts of the last year of the triennium from this source amounted to Rs. 1,59,533 and exceeded those of 1909-10 and 1908-09 by Rs. 13,023 and Rs. 11,928, or by 9·5 per cent. and 8 per cent., respectively. The largest increase occurred in Calcutta and is attributed to the fact that the Marwaris and other Indian traders now generally resort to the practice, hitherto confined to European firms, of embossing their receipts and bazar chits with one-anna coloured impressions, as well as to the vigilance of the Calcutta Stamp Department and to the deterrent measures adopted in cases of unstamped or insufficiently stamped documents.

21. (i) Miscellaneous receipts.—The receipts under this head are mainly composed of realizations under section 35 and sections 32, 37, 40 and 41 of Act II of 1899, adjudication fees and duty on debentures. The increase observable under this head for the past year is chiefly due to heavy stamp duty paid by the Corporation of Calcutta and the Port Trust on debenture loans raised by them and to the raising of the duty from 8 annas to 1 rupee per cent. under the Stamp Act as amended in 1910.

ARRANGEMENTS FOR THE SALE OF STAMPS.

22. The total number of vendors engaged in the sale of judicial and non-judicial stamps during the year 1910-11 was 2,816, showing a decrease, as compared with the previous two years, of 182 and 80 persons, respectively. The decrease is attributed mainly to the abolition of one-anna receipt stamps, the sale of which constituted a profitable source of income, and the discontinuance of discount on postage stamps, which led to the closure of the stalls of vendors who dealt chiefly in such stamps. The Board having commented on the apparently excessive number of vendors in the Midnapore district, an enquiry was made in 1910-11, and the number was reduced by 41.

The expenditure on discount allowed to stamp vendors shows a progressive decline from Rs. 2,08,746 in 1908-09 to Rs. 2,04,543 in 1909-10 and Rs. 2,02,430 in 1910-11. This is due to the decrease in respect of non-judicial stamps which occurred in all the divisions except the Presidency. In respect of judicial stamps and plain paper a progressive increase is, however, observed. The average discount per vendor during the triennium under report was Rs. 70 against Rs. 67 in the preceding period.

There were few complaints of difficulty or inconvenience in procuring stamps, and the sales were on the whole properly conducted by licensed vendors.

* * * * *

PUNITIVE ACTION OF THE COURTS AND REVENUE OFFICERS.

24. The total number of cases in which deficient duty and penalty were levied, dealt with by the civil courts during the last year of the triennium, was 2,560 in comparison with 2,512 in 1909-10 and 2,352 in 1908-09. There was a decrease of Rs. 1,339 in the duty and penalty realized by the civil courts in comparison with the realizations of the preceding year, and an increase of Rs. 693 in comparison with those of 1908-09. The increase in the number of cases may be attributed to more careful examination of documents by the courts. There was a decrease of 103 in the number of cases decided and of Rs. 6,084 in the duty and penalty realized by revenue officers as compared with the figures of the preceding year, and a decrease of 428 in the number of cases decided and of Rs. 28,087 in the duty and penalty realized in comparison with 1908-09. The decrease is attributed to a better acquaintance on the part of the public with the law and rules.

25. The number of cases instituted [for the infringement of the provisions of the Stamp Act] was 1,640, in which 1,655 persons were brought to trial against 1,996 cases and 1,991 persons in the preceding year, and 2,186 cases and 2,195 persons in the year 1908-09. The fines imposed amounted to Rs. 5,598 against Rs. 6,679 in 1909-10 and Rs. 9,562 in 1908-09. Compared with the last triennium, there has been a marked increase in the number of prosecutions. The annual average for that triennium was 773, while for the present one it is 1,940. The total of the fines imposed has not, however, increased in the same proportion, the average fine for the last triennium being nearly Rs. 7 per person convicted, but during the present triennium only about Rs. 3-8. The latter figure appears to be too low to act as a deterrent. The vast majority of the cases are instituted in Calcutta. The amount paid in rewards in 1910-11 was Rs. 5,056 against Rs. 6,822 and Rs. 8,081 in the two previous years. Outside Calcutta rewards are hardly ever given.

26. In paragraph 35 of the last triennial report it was stated that the increased activity in the prosecution of offences against the Stamp Act resulted in complaints in Calcutta. The Marwari Association, Calcutta, made a representation in 1906 to the Board of Revenue and, after a careful consideration of the points urged by the Association the Board instructed the Collector of Stamp Revenue, Calcutta, to exercise special caution in instituting proceedings in the case of old unstamped documents and laid down certain principles for his guidance. In September 1909 another representation was made by the same Association to His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor complaining that the provisions of the Stamp Act were being harshly worked to the detriment of their interests and praying for the amendment of the existing law by fixing a limit of time beyond which action should not be taken in the case of an under-stamped or unstamped document. Full enquiry was made into the allegations of the memorialists, and Government was satisfied that the instructions of the Board had been observed and was unable to accede to the requests made by the association.

WORKING OF SECTION 19 H ADDED TO THE COURT-FEES ACT, VII OF 1870, BY ACT XI OF 1899.

27. The number of cases reported to the Collector fell off gradually, while the amount of deficit duty realized rose from Rs. 38,602 in 1908-09 to Rs. 44,031 in 1909-10, but fell again in 1910-11 by Rs. 22,327, or about 50 per cent. Of the cases reported during 1910-11, 78·7 per cent. were enquired into; the corresponding percentages in the two preceding years were 79·3 and 79·5. The proportion borne by the deficit duty realized to the amount originally paid was 5·7 in 1910-11 and 10·9 and 9·3 in the preceding years.

28. No case of serious under-valuation was discovered during the triennium.

3. (1) No house to abut on a street shall be erected on any site, unless the site is of such a shape that the line of frontage of the house can be made parallel to the line of frontage of neighbouring houses, or as nearly parallel to that line as the Chairman may consider practicable. Condition of house site

(2) No piece of land shall be used as a site for the erection of a public building or a dwelling house, unless the site is certified by the overseer to be dry and well drained, or to be capable of being dried and well drained, in which latter case instruction should be furnished to the applicant as to what improvements are necessary before a certificate can be granted. THE CALCUTTA IMPROVEMENT BILL, 1911.

Clause 56H (now 63) (7).

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

296. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the words "for the loss of his land" be substituted for the words "of the building or wall for any damage that he may sustain thereby", at the end of clause 56H (now 63) (7).

Clauses 56H (now 63), new sub-clause (8), and 56J (now 64).

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir,—As regards amendment 297 and the amendments to clause 56J (now 64), I have the honour to suggest that they should stand over until we take up amendment 310 on clause 61B (now 70). Clause 61B (now 70) will raise the whole question as to whether there will be a Tribunal or not, and clause 56J (now 64), which deals with certain functions of the Tribunal, need not be considered until it has been decided whether there is to be a Tribunal at all."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"I agree that amendments 297 to 305 be taken up when amendment 310 is discussed."

The discussion of the following motions was therefore postponed :—

Clause 56H (now 63), new sub-clause (8).

297. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that, after clause 56H (now 63) (7) the following be added, namely :—

(8) In case of any dispute as to the amount of compensation payable under this section, the same shall be determined by the Court of Small Causes of Calcutta.

Clause 56J (now 64).

298. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur to move that clause 56J (now 64) be omitted.

Clause 56J (now 64) (1).

299. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "either by the person claiming compensation or by the Board" be inserted before the words "within a period of three months", in line 2 of the paragraph following immediately after sub-clause (c) in clause 56J (now 64) (1).

300. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "by either party" be inserted before the words "within a period of three months", in line 2 of the paragraph following immediately after sub-clause (c) in clause 56J (now 64 (1).

301. The Hon'ble MAULVI SAIYID MUHAMMAD FAKHR-UD-DIN to move—

(1) that the words "the matter shall be referred by the Board to the Tribunal within three months from" be substituted for the words "the matter shall be determined by the Tribunal, if referred to it within a period of three months from", in the paragraph following immediately after sub-clause (c) in clause 56J (now 64) (1), and

(2) that for the words "and the determination of the Tribunal shall be final", at the end of clause 56J (now 64) (1), the following be substituted, namely :—

and the matter shall be determined by the Tribunal, and such determination shall be open to appeal to the High Court.

302. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "and the determination of the Tribunal shall be final", at the end of clause 56J (now 64 (1), be omitted.

302A. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the words "and the determination of the Tribunal shall be final", at the end of clause 56J (now 64) (1), be omitted.

302B. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the words "and the determination of the Tribunal shall be final", at the end of clause 56J (now 64) (1), and the words "and shall be final", at the end of clause 61C (d), be omitted.

302C. If Motion No. 302A be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that to after the words "and the determination of the Tribunal shall be final", at the end of clause 56J (now 64 (1), the following be inserted, namely:

in all cases where the difference between the amount claimed and the amount awarded does not exceed one thousand rupees, but in all other cases the determination of the Tribunal shall be open to appeal to the High Court.

Clause 56J (now 64) (3).

303. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "clause (c) of" be inserted before the words "sub-section (1)", in line 2 of clause 56J (now 64) (3).

305. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause 56J (now 64) (3) and clause 61C (now 71) (c) be placed after clause 66, and be renumbered accordingly.

Clause 57 (1).

306. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "provided with water" be inserted after the word "lighted", in the penultimate line of clause 57 (now 65) (1).

He said:—

"Sir,—Here we have provision for everything except for water. If the Trust is going to do all in the shape of levelling, paving, metalling, flagging, channeling, sewering and lighting, the words 'provided with water' should come in after the word 'lighted' in the same way as in sub-section (3) of section 57 (now 65). I take it, Sir, it is the object of this section to provide for that, and it may have been a matter of oversight, because sub-section (c) of clause 57 (now 65) does provide for water and other sanitary requisites. It is really for the department to consider whether this amendment should be accepted or not."

The Hon'ble MR. SLACKE said:—

"It seems to me quite unnecessary to bring in these words because there are many other matters that should similarly be provided for, as, for example, sewerage. It is not to be supposed that the Trust having provided water mains to the streets the Corporation will refuse to maintain them."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir, I do not wish to press it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

Clause 58 (now 67).

307. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "the Corporation" be substituted for the words "the General Committee", in line 4 of clause 58 (now 67).

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Under the advice of the Chairman of the Corporation we accept this."

The motion was put and agreed to.

New clauses 58 A and 58 B.

308. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that, after clause 58 (now 67), the following be inserted, namely:—

Buildings unfit for human habitation.

58A. (1) If any building which is used, or is intended or is likely to be used, as a dwelling-place, is, in the opinion of the Board, owing to sanitary defects, unfit for human habitation, the Board may pass a resolution to that effect and may authorize the President to apply to a salaried Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class to prohibit the use of such building as a dwelling-place; and the Magistrate, after such inquiry as he thinks fit to make, may, by written order make a prohibition as aforesaid, or may pass such other order as he may deem just and proper.

(2) When any such prohibition has been made, no owner or occupier of such building shall use or suffer the same to be used for human habitation until the President certifies that the causes rendering the building unfit for human habitation have been removed, or a Magistrate, by written order, withdraws the prohibition aforesaid.

Buildings unfit for human habitation and likely to endanger the public health.

58 B. (1) Whenever the Board consider that any building which is used, or is intended or is likely to be used, as a dwelling-place is, owing to sanitary defects, unfit for human habitation and likely to endanger the public health, they may cause a written notice to be fixed to some conspicuous part of the building, requiring the owner of the land occupied by such building to execute such works or take such measures as the Board may deem necessary to render the same fit for human habitation.

(2) If any owner of land neglects for a period of three months to execute any works or take any measures required by any notice affixed under sub-section (1) with respect to any building situated on such land, the Board may authorise the President to apply to a salaried Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class for the demolition or alteration of such building; and such Magistrate may make an order directing that such building—

(a) be demolished by the owner, or altered by him, within a period specified in the order, to the satisfaction of the President, or

(b) be demolished or altered by the Board at the expense of the owner.

(3) If any demolition or alteration, directed by an order made by a Magistrate under clause (a), has not been completed by the said owner, within the period specified in the order, to the satisfaction of the President, the Magistrate may order the building to be demolished by the President forthwith, or may make such other order as he may deem just and proper.

(4) A Magistrate shall not make any order under sub-section (2) or sub-section (3) in respect of any building without giving the owner of the land occupied by the building and the owner and occupier of the building full opportunity of adducing evidence and of being heard in defence.

He said:—

"Your Honour—I already have indicated, in my note of dissent, the reason for the amendment I now move. Under the Bill, if any buildings in an area appear to the Board to be insanitary, they can proceed to declare the whole area to be an unhealthy area, and then proceed to put in force the elaborate machinery which the English Acts have provided only for large areas. We have no provision here for dealing with individual houses, or with small areas, as the local authorities in England have, with its less drastic procedure.

"We deliberately abandoned in Committee the original form of clause 35 which followed the terms of the English Act of 1890, that is to say, if the evils connected with unhealthy buildings and sanitary defects could not be effectually remedied otherwise than by an improvement scheme, the Board were empowered to frame an improvement scheme. But this was amended by the Town Planning Act of 1909, and we made a corresponding change in Committee, in exact accordance with the amendment made in the English Statute, and the form now is, that the Board must consider 'the most satisfactory method of dealing with the evils connected with unhealthy buildings and sanitary defects.' The meaning cannot be open to doubt. It is that the Board must consider, in comparison with other methods, whether the most satisfactory method is an improvement scheme. But the English Statute gives an opportunity of considering other methods: on the other hand, this Bill does not. I went into Committee under the impression, created by the terms of the Bill as it was introduced, that power for the demolition of individual houses would certainly be included in it, but that idea received its quietus during our proceedings in Committee.

"If the Bill had been left as it originally stood, the question in issue would simply have been whether or not an improvement scheme should be framed. But when we deliberately invite the Board to consider which will be 'the most satisfactory method', I submit that the intention is clear that they should have the opportunity which we invite them to exercise. I hope I may be pardoned if I say,—not with any idea of attributing any motive, but only to emphasise my contention—will it not be a sham if we purport to impose upon the Board an obligation to consider which method will be the 'most satisfactory' in comparison with other methods, and then we leave them with opportunity to consider only one method, in distinction from the English law, which presents more methods than one? What was the meaning of the change we made in Committee unless we desired really to afford other methods than an improvement scheme for the Board's consideration?

"We may be perfectly sure that the amendment in the English Statute, which has been so faithfully followed by us, was not made merely for the sake of a change of words, but had a real purpose behind it. And the purpose is apparent even to a humble student of the subject like myself.

"After the Acts of 1875 and 1890 came into force, the local authorities have been—to quote from a publication of the Manchester University—'oftentimes inclined towards housing pyrotechnics in the shape of extensive and costly demolition schemes, the execution of which brings newspaper renown and public commendation.' But while the utility of far-reaching clearance schemes is not denied, and if it be not presumptuous to say it—and I say it only to make my own position in this issue plain—I am in full accord with that view. But it is contended that such schemes should be adopted with discrimination and reluctantly. A clearance scheme has been likened to an operation by a surgeon undertaken as the most direct method of cure, and just as the physician now is asserting his influence, so it is being realised that large clearances, when considered with relation to their real purpose: the effect on overcrowding and allied evils, the transference of population into good sanitary houses with proper conditions of ventilation and other desirable conditions, are a little, if at all, more than failures.'

"The knowledge that experience has afforded of the wastefulness of large clearances; that the fewer houses are demolished the less hardship will be incurred; the large disturbances of population and the hardship caused to those whom the law is designed to help; the heavy expense and delay entailed by the preparation of numerous plans and maps and detailed estimates, these and many other questions into which I will not occupy time by entering.—all have forced attention to other more practical and sufficiently useful methods of sanitary reform which have been provided.

"What is the purpose of the amendment made by the Act of 1909, which we have so ostentatiously followed? Evidently to bring to the attention of local authorities that there are methods other than an improvement scheme, and that they must not regard the issue as being merely whether or not an improvement scheme shall be framed, but they must consider the other methods that have been provided: and that, only when they arrive at the opinion that 'the most satisfactory method,' in comparison with other methods, will be an improvement scheme, an improvement scheme should be adopted.

"Insanitary houses and conditions must be wiped out. I urge this as strongly as any enthusiast in the Council. There must be no question on this point. But this view will not conclude the consideration of the means for this purpose. And I agree with the view now prevalent, and I submit to this Council that it is better to place on the right shoulders, that is, the owners, who are responsible for unhealthy conditions, the cost of making their houses fit for habitation. Unless we desire to say that the Board may abdicate their discretion and accept whatever may be proposed: that if an improvement scheme is proposed then an improvement scheme, it goes without saying, is the most satisfactory method.

"I submit if they find by improving individual houses, without devasting a large area, all that is required for the area will have been done; they should be given the power to act upon that opinion. I have not the remotest idea of precluding improvement schemes, but only to allow an alternative, and I propose to provide a comparatively short, sharp, effective procedure, and if by adopting it the Board will have done all that is necessary, they should not be precluded from utilising it. I have not been able to give effect to my views fully in the proposals I now submit to the Council. It would have required new clauses, involving many details that would have taxed powers greater than a non-official can command, to introduce at the present stage of our proceedings. But I am submitting clauses, the policy of which is borrowed from the English Statutes, in a form that is taken practically in its entirety from the Municipal Act in force, and for practical purposes these clauses will be sufficiently comprehensive."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"Sir,—I am surprised that this amendment should be moved by the representative of the Corporation in this Council of all people. The amendment is before the Members of Council, and they will see that it embodies in this Bill clauses taken from the Calcutta Municipal Act which give certain drastic powers to the Corporation. The first clause is that the Corporation may go to a Magistrate and get an order that a certain house is unfit for human habitation and is be be closed. The other clause is that under the orders of the Magistrate a notice should be served on the owner to carry out repairs required by the Corporation, or have his house demolished. These are very stringent powers that are left with the Corporation. The Hon'ble Member wishes the Trust to exercise concurrent jurisdiction in this matter with the Corporation. Are the citizens of Calcutta really willing and anxious that two separate authorities should possess these very drastic powers? This power cannot be exercised by the Trust without trespassing upon the domain of the Corporation. It is perfectly true that there are many other ways of dealing with insanitary properties besides the framing of general improvement schemes. These matters can very well be left with the Corporation which is a body much more under popular control than the Trust will be. Public opinion in Calcutta would, in my opinion, prefer that these powers should be exercised by the Corporation, and not by the Trust. I do not believe that the public of Calcutta would at all welcome the duplicating of these very stringent powers."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"Sir,—I cannot presume, of course, to speak on behalf of the public of Calcutta, but it does strike me, speaking as an individual member of that public, that it would be always desirable to have some less drastic powers in the hands of the Board that may be exercised with regard to the areas where the more drastic powers and the more expensive schemes would, for obvious reasons, be undesirable or impracticable. It is not any small isolated insanitary areas that the Board will have to deal with, but its work will be vast, and its improvement can never be commensurately rapid, however generous the contribution of the Corporation and the Government may be, after they complete the bigger scheme. Are the smaller insanitary areas, where these less drastic measures would be effectual to deal with, to wait till the Board has all the means and all the time that are necessary for turning their attention to these areas? The Municipal Act provides partially for what the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar's amendment proposes to vest the Board with; but how has that section been hitherto applied? It is not by way of complaint that I am drawing attention to the lack of proper application of that section to the insanitary conditions of Calcutta. There may have been good reasons for the abstention, of which we know nothing. The fact, however, is there. Although this section has been in the Statute Book since 1899, much of the objectionable feature ought to have disappeared from the insanitary areas of Calcutta which under other circumstances would probably have been necessary to deal with if these clauses had been given proper effect to. It is not a question of really exercising concurrent jurisdiction. When the Improvement Trust takes up important matters like these, the machinery at its disposal will necessarily be more perfect, more practical, more businesslike than that of the Corporation, which, knowing that another and fresher and stronger body is engaging itself in looking after the sanitary improvement of Calcutta from the larger point of view, will necessarily think that these powers are delegated to them in one shape or other. There may be objection to people living in the fools' paradise in the hope that because Improvement Trust is in existence, insanitary areas will not be dealt with by the Corporation any longer. But this increase of the powers of the Board will not necessarily lead to these results. I appeal again to the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation and to the late Deputy Chairman to say if it is not the fact that whenever any big Improvement Scheme—I am not speaking of the absolutely small ones—came before the Corporation within the last three or four or five years, the invariable answer had been that they must stand over in view of the Improvement scheme. I would once more refer to the abandoned Nebutollah-Wooriapara scheme, which would have long ago blotted a plague spot that is a disgrace and menace to the town specially towards the south. 'We do not know, the Corporation must have felt, what they are going to do. It is best to stay action and let the thing be in abeyance.' We have repeatedly been told that secrecy will be the watch-word of the Improvement Trust, and even the Corporation is not likely to know where the attentions of the Trust are going to be devoted. Everything will be cut and dry with regard to a particular scheme when it is fit to go before the Local Government, and it will be too late for the public for consideration of the details. In that state of things it would be very difficult and undesirable for the Corporation to apply these drastic powers at their disposal under the Municipal Act, not knowing when next the Trust was going to take up some quarter and in a more drastic way. Suppose the Corporation were to apply the provisions of section 444 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, which calls upon the owners of houses to make the improvements at considerable expense and inconvenience and to a particular locality. What would happen if the next day, in spite of that improvement and in spite of the action under section 444 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, the Trust is not satisfied with what ought to have been and could have been done under that section proceeds to deal with the property. The owner would be lawfully exposed to this double risk and expenditure, but how terribly hard and injust it would be? Even if all that has been done does not appeal to the Trust, they will be competent to take up the question from the larger point of view and organise an Improvement Scheme of their own. Whether that would be the right way of doing things, instead of accepting the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar's suggestion, should have appealed to those who are wanting larger powers for the Board. The amendment provides that while you are dealing with bigger and more expensive schemes, your power ought not to be limited and you ought to have power regarding the smaller matters for you will be able, having seizin of the whole of Calcutta, to know exactly where the plague-spots are. It does not require you to embark upon more expensive schemes, and you may be satisfied with undertaking smaller works such as this amendment seeks to place at your disposal for the necessary powers. That would certainly be a more convenient and, from the point of view of public, a more acceptable, course of things. I take it, Sir, that after attention has been called to section 444 in the way that has been done in this Council and elsewhere, that the Corporation may be willing to take more action under it than it has done in the past. If it is so, and if at the same time there is possibility of the Improvement Scheme being taken up in hand not in the very distant future, the prospects of the citizens of Calcutta, on whose behalf the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas has made such a stirring appeal, will be any but enviable. In these circumstances, it appears to me that although it might have the look of concurrent jurisdiction, there would be no objection to it. If there be, of course it can be done away with without really taking away the powers from the municipality under the Municipal Act under a short repealing Act, if it is desirable. The whole power of sanitary improvement should concentrate into one hand, and that is the hand of the Trust. This seems to be the most acceptable and practical solution of the whole difficulty, not only with regard to the larger schemes that beset us in the past with regard to the sanitary improvements of Calcutta, but also the smaller. Therefore this amendment ought not to be resisted, but it should find acceptance, with regard to which however I find very little promise from the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas's speech."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"Sir,—We have been given an instance—if I may say so without offence—of an answer being given merely for the sake of saying something, without having anything to say, because there has not been any attempt to meet the points that I have raised. The Hon'ble Member himself introduced his amendment of the original form of the Bill in Select Committee, and what is the meaning of the amendment now that he himself has made it? What is the meaning of an improvement scheme being 'the most satisfactory method of dealing with an insanitary area?' The Hon'ble Member in charge has omitted to notice the real points in issue in my amendment: to afford an alternative to the Board, if that body find that by attention to individual houses will meet the sanitary requirements of an area. Action by the Corporation would not solve a question so entirely in the discretion of the Board. It seems to me that there is a desire that there should be no limitation of power and that no risk or excuse should stand in the way of these large clearances. The Hon'ble Member must pardon me if I say that I do not follow him at all into what the public may desire or may not desire. I have not found that sensitiveness to public opinion that has been displayed on this occasion. It is nevertheless consistent with what has been done throughout. When a precedent is relied upon, that precedent is quoted as one that should be observed, but there is no desire to be consistent where inconvenient to the Hon'ble Member's own contentions. Then all precedent is thrown aside altogether. The Hon'ble Member says that it is open to the Trust to say that the scheme is expensive and to leave it to the Corporation. But when the Corporation are to contribute so largely, as from the first, 7 lakhs of rupees to the Board, are the Board going to turn round to the Corporation to say that a scheme is too expensive and we shall leave it to the Corporation to execute it? Is that really seriously intended as an answer to me?"

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"The Corporation would not execute schemes, but in any area it may happen that a cheaper remedy than an improvement scheme would meet the circumstances of the case; and the Corporation will be left, as at present, to apply such remedies."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"Sir,—I misunderstood the Hon'ble Member. My purpose is quite evident. It is that, if it will be sufficient for all sanitary requirements to demolish individual houses, it should be done. I do not intend in any degree to hamper the Board. If it is necessary to execute an improvement scheme, by all means undertake it; but it may happen over and over again, when the matter is looked into more closely, that it will be found that the object aimed at will have been accomplished by the demolition of a few houses in an unhealthy area. All that is really needed may be done, although we now have heard that, after all, this Act is intended to be put in force for few houses, and that it must not be supposed that it will be used for large clearance schemes; nevertheless, this perfectly reasonable proposal—that would obviate large clearances which, we now hear, are not intended, and yet serve to obtain sanitary conditions that are desired—is to be rejected. I must ask Your Honour to put the amendment to the vote."

A division was then taken, with the following result:—

Compensation.

58C. (1) Where any building is to be demolished in pursuance of an order made by a Magistrate under section 58A or section 58B, the Board shall first pay compensation to the owner thereof.

(2) If any question or dispute arises as to the sufficiency of the compensation paid or proposed to be paid under sub-section (1), it shall be determined by the Tribunal, if referred to it within a period of two months from the date of the order for demolition.

Clause 61B (now 70).

311. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that clause 61B (now 70) be omitted.

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, this amendment of mine is the same as of other Hon'ble Members following me, and, if Your Honour permits, I would ask that it might be moved first by my friend and then by myself. I am looking up certain papers."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"I have no objection, Sir, if the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moves his amendment after mine His amendment is similar to mine."

"I cannot realize why the ordinary provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, which is in force throughout the whole of British India, should be discarded, cast aside, thrown overboard, and in their place unusual and extraordinary provisions formulated and new procedure adopted for acquisition of land in executing the Improvement Scheme.

"In case of urgency, the Collecter has ample power under the Land Acquisition Act to take immediate possession of the lands required. Under the circumstances, where is the necessity for the enactment of new provisions and procedure unless it be to pay as little as possible for compensation.

"Why is it that a particular class holding property in and about Calcutta, and the poor owners of residential houses, some or the majority of which were built when the British settlement was founded here, should be called upon and compelled to conform to peculiar provisions which would entail severe pecuniary sacrifices upon them? Where is the necessity for singling out Calcutta for such drastic treatment which is altogether different from the rest of India?

"The whole tenor of the procedure laid down here seems to favour the idea, seems to be designed that lands and buildings are to be acquired for the benefit of the Trust on payment of as little as possible to the property-holders, that those people and the residential house owners should be sacrificed at the altar of the supposed public benefit or the greatest good of the greatest number, otherwise, where is the necessity, I beg to repeat, for the supersession of the time-honoured provisions of the Land Acquisition Act? Where is the justification for a creation of a Special Tribunal for the adjudication of civil rights as has been done under the Crimes Act for the suppression of the crimes of anarchy and sedition? I humbly beg to point out that the words 'Special Tribunal' have now come to have a sinister meaning attached to them, for they now connote a Tribunal for the trial of heinous offences against the State.

"A Tribunal may be a better Court in the opinion of the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, but when people in one voice say we do not want it, why thrust it upon them? Please keep your own better Court to yourself. The only object is to pay little or nothing for compensation, to give the trial the appearance of trial by jury and to make the decisions unappealable, and thereby get rid of the obnoxious High Court. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas will intimate in what cases appeal would be allowed, that is, unreservedly in all cases where the question relates to apportionment, that is, when the question relates to parties themselves but not in the case of awards relating to the amount of compensation, in the latter case when the amount of claim exceeds Rs. 5,000 the appeal should be on the certificate of the President.

"Next, I beg to point out that the constitution of the proposed Tribunal is extremely faulty and one-sided. Where is the necessity for associating two assessors with the President of the Tribunal unless it be to give it the appearance of a trial by jury and to make the decision of the Tribunal final and unappealable. If we are to have assessors, which, in my opinion, is quite unnecessary, then they must not be dependent on the favour of Government for their appointment. I beg to point out that if the President and one of the assessors are both to be appointed by the Government, the public can have no faith or confidence in such a Tribunal.

"The several Indian High Courts have, from time to time, laid down the dictum that it is not sufficient that justice would be done by a certain Tribunal or judge, but the party concerned must be convinced or must have faith that he will have justice from such a Court or Judge.

"In the case of such a Tribunal as proposed here, it is rightly apprehended that the decision of the Tribunal in more than ninety per cent. cases will be shaped, moulded and coloured by the views of the President whose decision will be the decision of the majority of the Tribunal. Under the circumstances, instead of giving us the show or appearance of trial with the aid of assessors, I earnestly appeal to Your Honour and to the Council to provide in the Bill for the appointment of two additional judges for the speedy trial of the very numerous land acquisition cases that would naturally crop up in executing the improvement scheme and give the parties aggrieved, as usual, the usual right of appeal to the High Court."

The Hon'ble RAI BAIKUNTHA NATH SEN BAHADUR, said :—

"With regard to this clause I beg, in the first instance, to raise the question as to whether this Provincial Council have authority to create a Tribunal for awarding compensation for lands acquired, not contemplated by the existing Act of 1894, which is an Act passed by the Imperial Council. It is true that the powers of the Provincial Legislative Council have been enlarged by the Parliamentary Indian Councils Act of 1861 and 1892, but I venture to submit that those enactments do not authorise or justify, or give jurisdiction to this Provincial Council for enacting a law as is sought to be passed by this Bill. I am afraid the Bill, if passed, would be ultra vires. Act I of 1894, as a whole, is not going to be repealed or amended, and therefore the assumption of jurisdiction by this Council, in my view, is not in consonance with the provisions of the Parliamentary Acts. The jurisdiction of the High Court would be affected, and this Council, I beg to submit, cannot adopt any Act which would affect the rights, privileges and jurisdiction of the High Court. The Tribunal sought to be created will not be a court as has been held by the Bombay High Court in a case reported in 27 Indian Law Reports (Bombay Series). The Tribunal with the Assessors would be merely a body of arbitrators performing the functions of a Court. Should, however, the Council be pleased to hold that it has jurisdiction, the question that will next arise is, is there any justification or necessity for this Special Tribunal.

"Clause 61 B (now 70) provides for the creation of a Tribunal for the purpose of performing the functions of the Court in reference to the acquisition of land for the Board under the Land Acquisition Act of 1894. Clause (d) of section 3 of the Land Acquisition Act of 1894 has been sought to be amended by the insertion of the words 'and except for the purpose of section 54 of this Act, includes the Tribunal' in the Bill. This Act I of 1894 has been in operation not only in this Province but throughout British India for over 17 years, and the Court has administered the law to the satisfaction of all concerned. Why should there be then this new departure? Facts, and strong cogent and valid arguments ought to be brought forward for the justification of this new departure. One law ought to govern all His Majesty's subjects at least in one province. No reasons for such a change in the forum can be gathered from the Statement of Objects and Reasons in the Bill. The preamble is also silent. From the notes on clauses 62-67 (now 72-77) it may be inferred that this Special Tribunal is sought to be created on account of the proceedings being numerous and hence a Special Tribunal, as in Bombay, has been considered necessary. Largeness of the number of cases, in my opinion, does not render it necessary to create a Special Tribunal, because under the existing law (the Land Acquisition Act of 1894) special judicial officers can be appointed by Government, as the Government has hitherto been doing. Difference in the value of town lands and suburban and rural lands can never be considered a valid ground for the creation of a Special Tribunal, or for enactment of different laws for different places. A plot of land in Calcutta would be of very high value. Similar plots of land, say, in Bankipore, Muzaffarpur, Murshidabad, Nadia and Jessore would fetch different values, in that case different laws for the disposal of claims in different districts have to be enacted. An argument has been put forward that the Special Tribunal as provided in section 48 of the Bombay Improvement Act has worked satisfactorily, but I venture to submit that the system has not given satisfaction to the general public. Even if it be conceded for the sake of argument that the Special Tribunal in Bombay is a success, that is no argument for the innovation sought to be introduced in Bengal. If it could be shown that the Act of 1894 has been a failure in Bengal and has not worked satisfactorily, then that may be a justification for the institution of a new forum for the trial of cases.

"I beg now to conclude that clause 61 B (now 70) be omitted, as this Council has no authority to pass such a law as is contemplated by this clause, and that there is no justification for it on the ground of necessity."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:

"Your Honour, I am thankful to Your Honour for granting me some time to move this amendment. This is one of the crucial points of the Bill, namely, the Tribunal to be provided for the disposal of cases. It is more important than any amendment that we have ventured to place before this Council for the past two days and more important, I think, than any that will follow, for it is a trite saying to say that after all every measure of Government must be tested by the measure of justice it seems to mete out. Why is it and how is it that the ordinary Tribunal which has decided land acquisition cases all along up to now without any serious complaint should be done away with. No indication has yet been given as to why this course has been followed. The only indication that I can find is the model of the Bombay Act. Well, Sir, this following of the Bombay Act may be carried too far. When we seek to apply English models we are met by the doctrine of the Fur coat. When in other matters, we seek to establish that the people of Bombay and Bengal are the same, we are met by the argument that India is composed of divergent creeds and different nationalities as opposed to each other as the Poles, and that their claim to any representation based upon the question of similarities is not to be taken into consideration. Only on a recent occasion a retired Lieutenant-Governor has given expression to that opinion in England. Well, Sir, if in every other matter that affects the welfare of the people of India the argument is advanced and advanced with some sham of justice, that the law of analogy cannot be applied because they are not analogous why should it be in the case of land acquisition under this Act? Nothing has been said. Let us see the grounds which might justify it. We have not got them yet. I suppose my hon'ble friend Mr. Bompas will come out with them very soon. If it is intended that there should be expedition, why, the Land Acquisition Act, as we have got it, does provide that the Collector may take possession of land before awarding compensation and may make over the land to the acquiring authority. If it is on the question of cheapness, why, the people concerned do not want cheap Tribunals for cheapness and the other element to which I did not refer are always invariably associated in the minds of the people, but it is not desirable that there should be in the mind of the people a belief that they will not obtain justice from this Tribunal. On the one hand, we have got a scheme—an Act for carrying out Improvement schemes in Calcutta which is very drastic in its nature. On the other hand, we have got a Board—a small body, oftentimes conducting its operations in privacy and secrecy, and I have been trying to point out with the elements of popular representation very weak if at all present there. Between the people and the operations of a Board like that the only safeguard is your Tribunal. Why then give the go by to the Tribunal which the people have come to know and to respect; why introduce a novel procedure.

I, for my part, and many in this Council and elsewhere, do not like Special Tribunals under particular Acts. Courts are after all the greatest shields of the people's rights, and big and specially constituted Courts are not at all looked upon with confidence. Is it not desirable that your Court should command confidence? Is it quite so certain that people in Bombay have confidence in their Courts? There will be in your Tribunal a Government official appointed as a President. Generally, this official, I may take it, will come to Calcutta, with very little knowledge of the state of things in Calcutta. I may tell you, years ago when under the previous Land Acquisition Act there was the provision of assessors being associated with the Court and nominated by the parties, I had the misfortune of being appointed an assessor when land acquisition cases were being dealt with in respect of the road now known as the Harrison Road. There was a gentleman, the President of Court, who was a recent arrival from Barisal, and there was a claim put forward by a party for a sum of Rs. 80,000 for a cottah of land, and this gentleman from Barisal said this was a preposterous claim, for Rs. 80,000 would buy a big pargana in Barisal. I said it might buy, but it would hardly buy more than a cottah of land in Harrison Road, and considerable time elapsed before he came to realise the great difference between parganas in Barisal and the value of land in the centre of the Empire. And more than that, in the ordinary Tribunals, as now constituted, we have got the right of appeal. That keeps the Tribunals straight. My friends here who have exercised large judicial functions, must be aware that where there is a right of appeal, greater care is bestowed upon the cases—at least upon the records being properly kept—than it would otherwise be. When that safeguard is withdrawn, that amount of care is not likely to be bestowed. It does not matter however high you put the character of the Tribunal, if you take away from the people the right of appeal against the judgment of this Tribunal. If you give to the people a right of appeal, I have nothing to say. I have shown that under the existing Land Acquisition Act you can proceed as expeditiously as you desire. That the cost of the parties before the Special Tribunal will not be less than the cost before the ordinary Courts is almost self-evident. The question at issue is so great, and the values of land to be taken will be so large, that the people will have to seek the assistance of experts—experts in surveying and valuation and in law, and, as my friend knows, experts in any department of life including the civil administration of the country are expensive commodities, so that their expense will be just the same— the expenses so far as the people are concerned, whether they have got their cases before the Special Tribunal or before the ordinary Tribunals. Thus, by taking away the right of appeal, what is it that you gain? Will you tell me what you gain? What you think you gain is the avoidance of vexatious appeals. As you know when a man carries on a civil case on to appeal he does so at his own risk as to costs. That in itself ought to be a sufficient protection against the vexatious appeals. But more than that, it is not a mere hypothetical case that I am putting. I took the trouble of gathering some figures from the records of the Original Side of the High Court for the last three years. In 1908, there were 1,117 cases and 66 appeals; in 1909 there were 1,185 cases and 62 appeals; in 1910 there were the same number (1,185) and 76 appeals. That is not much, 6 to 7 per cent. or less than that of cases taken on to the Appeal Courts is not much, then where is the objection to the ordinary Tribunal. Let us take the procedure that they follow in England in these special cases of Town Improvements and Town Planning. There is an arbitrator appointed between the local authority and the people by the Local Government Board, but against the decision of that arbitrator the right of appeal is given. In this country, the right of appeal against the arbitrator's decision is very much restricted, but under the land acquisition cases in England, in every case of damage by sufferance, there is an unrestricted right of appeal. In other cases there is an appeal from the judgment of the arbitrator where the value exceeds £1,000 or more. There I can understand some reason for the procedure adopted. An arbitrator dealing between the parties appointed by an authority which has nothing to do with the local body or people, can expeditiously deal with these matters before him in issue. But should he go wrong there is the right of appeal upon a certificate of the judge to the jury.

You intend to deny us this privilege. Well, Sir, you may say 'beggars cannot be choosers,' but at the same time it is my duty to point out to you that while creating a lot of discontent, while shaking what ought to be very dear to me and to you, namely, the confidence of the people in the justice of your administration, you are introducing a machinery which will serve no useful purpose, which does not in any way help you beyond the ordinary procedure that is at present followed under the Land Acquisition Act. If that is so, why should you not follow it. Is it because it is in Bombay that we must slavishly adopt what they have got there. Why not trust to time. When we find that the ordinary Tribunal which we have now got under the Land Acquisition Act is able to do its work in connection with the scheme as it has done its work in the past in connection with other schemes. If they fail, what is there to prevent you from bringing an amending Act; you will then be greatly strengthened by the experience of the past behind you, and you will then be able to tell us 'we have tried and we have given a fair chance to the Tribunal as it stands, but it has failed and therefore we must have something else.' Here you anticipate; why should you do that? In a matter of such a serious import it is the only safeguard against arbitrary acquisition and arbitrary compensation. You seek to introduce a Court which will be looked upon with suspicion as the creation of the Board itself, or rather the creation of a body for the purposes of the Board. You have tried that experiment under the Calcutta Municipal Act by the creation of a special Magistrate. Where is the official in Bengal who will have the hardihood to say that that Tribunal has commanded the confidence of the public of Calcutta, I say this before the Chairman and the Deputy Chairman who was there until lately. Will the Chairman say that the people are satisfied with the work done in that Court? I will not impugn that work. I will not for a moment say that the work is done unfairly or unjustly, but I say the feeling is that it cannot be done justly; though it may be done with as much fairness as the work of any other Tribunal. Therefore, I say there is no ground for the creation of this Tribunal, no necessity and therefore this clause should be omitted and the Land Acquisition provisions should be left as they are under the present Act. They will do you no harm on the contrary they will do you much good."

" Sir, we have now heard three members of the Council who object to the constitution of the Tribunal for the trying of land acquisition cases under this Bill. But I think that when I explain it to them there will be very small ground for quarrel between us. The usual procedure in a land acquisition case is that it is first tried by a Judge, against whose decision an appeal will lie with the High Court. We are asked why we are not content with that procedure. The answer is that we are confident that the Tribunal is a better Court than the Court created under the Land Acquisition Act. There are two reasons why the Tribunal will be a better Court. It is in the first place intended to be a Court of Experts. In England, the valuation of land when compulsorily acquired for public purposes is not a matter for the decision of the Civil Court. Such cases never go before Civil Courts at all. The procedure in England referred to by the last speaker is as follows:—Cases under fifty pounds in value are summarily decided by a Magistrate. In cases over fifty pounds in value—there is provision for determination of the compensation payable by two arbitrators, one appointed by the promoters of the undertaking and one by the claimant, with an umpire, who is generally appointed by the Board of Trade and who is an engineer or a surveyor. The award of the arbitrators or umpire can only be set aside by the Courts for excess of jurisdiction, otherwise no Court of law in England can interfere. If the parties will not agree to accept the decision of the arbitrators, then the compensation is assessed by a jury,—not a jury sitting under a judge, but under the Coroner or the Sheriff, who sometimes calls in a barrister as Assessor. That is the usual procedure. But when land is acquired under Acts relating to sanitation, it is somewhat modified. Under these Acts, as finally amended in 1909, if land is taken for an improvement scheme, compensation is determined by a single arbitrator appointed by the Local Government Board. If the award exceeds £1,000, the party dissatisfied with the award may apply to the High Court, and if a Judge is satisfied in a summary manner that a failure of justice has taken place, he gives leave for the appointment of a jury to try the case. That jury does not sit under the judge and does not know the award of the arbitrators It may lower as well as raise the original award. But in smaller cases there is no appeal to a jury at all. Where land is acquired for building houses for the working classes, it is expressly provided that the single arbitrator shall neither hear Counsel nor assessors unless he is specially empowered so to do by the Local Government Board. This is the method which in England has been considered to be the most satisfactory method. In India, when the first Land Acquisition Act was introduced, Government adopted the English method. The system of getting lands valued by arbitrators, at least in the mufassal, at once broke down because there were no such trained experts as exist in England, with their long and special experience. Therefore it was speedily arranged that the assessors appointed by the different parties should sit under a judge, and that system continued for several years. When, however, the law came to be amended in 1894, the assessors disappeared because it was found that, even when sitting with a judge, the assessors, the class of assessors that were available, instead of helping the Judge to come to a right conclusion, acted as mere partisans. They were faithful to their trust, as was observed by Mr. Justice Parker of the Madras High Court, and delivered their opinions with their minds totally unaffected by the evidence. So the assessor system proved a failure in this country, and these cases began to be tried by a single judge— a method which was deliberately adopted owing to the impossibility of getting impartial assessors in the mufassal. But the conditions are different in Calcutta at the present day: experts in land valuation are procurable, and it is desirable to appoint a Tribunal for the trial of such cases which shall be an expert body. This body will be better fitted than any Civil Court without any expert knowledge It is only by an accident, as it were, that the system has grown up in Bengal and in India of having valuation questions decided by lawyers. It is said that the procedure followed in the past has proved satisfactory. It is of course not open to me or to any one on this Council to criticise individual decisions of the Courts in land acquisition or any other cases. But everyone who has experience of the Corporation knows that the results of land acquisition cases in Calcutta have been so unfavourable to the Corporation that the general opinion is that the method of valuation adopted by the Courts was not satisfactory. The Building Commission, which was presided over by a High Court Judge, advised, expressly in view of the 'extravagant prices' which the Corporation was made to pay in certain cases, that a special rule should be framed for valuation of Calcutta properties, and this was subsequently introduced in the Calcutta Municipal Act, and by it unless the contrary is proved, the property is valued at twenty-five times the municipal valuation. I can, moreover, say that not only on these grounds is an expert court necessary, but we have also the experience of Bombay. There, a Tribunal has been created to try land acquisition cases on the same lines as this Tribunal I will not raise the question of what amount of public confidence the Tribunal enjoys, but only say that from inquiries which I made in Bombay from many lawyers, I learn that in the opinion of the legal profession the Tribunal enjoys great public confidence. I will only produce some judgments which will show what the Bombay High Court thinks of the decisions of the Tribunal. Here is a case involving Rs. 1,69,000:—

'The judgment states that it is common ground that in this case rental should be the basis of calculation: so that after arriving at the net rental what has to be determined is the rate of return investors in this class of property expect, for this will determine the number of years purchase to be allowed, after giving due weight to any special conditions.'

'It is then obvious that the inquiry is essentially one where experience is of the greatest use, and in this respect the Tribunal is in a far stronger position than this Court. It has been in existence and at work for some years, and though its members have changed from time to time, still it must have gained from the multiplicity of cases that have come before it an insight into the value of land in Bombay which we do not possess, and an experience which must make this Court slow to interfere with its adjudication on a question of value, involving no legal principle, in the absence of evident error.'

'Though the President of the Tribunal is a gentleman well known as a careful lawyer, still it cannot be regarded as a Tribunal possessing only legal qualifications, for associated with the President are two gentlemen obviously selected on the ground of their fitness to deal with questions of land valuation, one of whom at any rate has had considerable professional experience in such matters in the city of Bombay.'

In case XXXIII Bom. Mr. Justice Bachelor says:—

'In these circumstances, and having regard to the special knowledge and experience possessed by the Tribunal on such points, we must adopt the alternative finding.'

In 14 Bombay XXIX 565, Sir L. Jenkins says:—

'The Tribunal made an award based on hypothetical development of the land. Only matters of fact were involved and those of a very special character requiring the application of expert knowledge and opinion.'

'The maxim that a court of appeal ought never to reverse the judgment of an inferior Court unless quite confident that that judgment is wrong, applied with special force to appeals from the Tribunal.'

After reviewing the professional qualifications and experience of the two assessors—an Engineer and an Architect the judgment proceeds—

'It is obvious then that though we are in no sense bound by the determination of the Tribunal, its opinion is entitled to the greatest weight on the matters which arise in this appeal and that its award is not lightly to be set aside.'

"Can any one say after this that the Government propose to establish the Tribunal for the purpose of attacking rights of property in Calcutta? In the opinion of the Bombay High Court, the Bombay Tribunal is a most eminently fitted body to try valuation cases, and its decisions have so far given satisfaction that there were only a few appeals against them. In view of these facts, the advisability of the appointment of an expert Court will not be questioned.

"But there is the question of appeal. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu has said that if there is an appeal against the decision of the Tribunal he will be content. I am sorry to detain the Council, but as it is an important matter, I must explain it. In the Bombay Act, as it was originally passed, there was a provision that an appeal should lie to the High Court on the certificate of the President. In one of the appeals—the case has already been cited by the Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur—the Bombay High Court held that the legislation was ultra vires of the Provincial Council. It was held that the Legislative Council could confer no jurisdiction on the High Court. That had to be remedied by the Government of India in 1904 by passing a Validating Act giving legal sanction to that provision which has been passed by the Bombay legislature. It is impossible for us to do anything here that has been decided to be ultra vires. It is impossible for this legislature to confer any right of appeal to the High Court--and I will presently ask you, Sir, to rule out of order any amendment which has that effect. But it is obviously fair that there should be some appeal against the decision of the Tribunal. But I submit that if you have an expert Tribunal, of which the High Court speaks in the terms I have quoted, the right of appeal may fairly be limited. No High Court would speak in such a way of a land acquisition judge. It is therefore not unreasonable to say that there should be very few appeals against the decision of an expert Tribunal. In this question the Government has allowed itself to be entirely guided by the High Court of Calcutta. And it seems to me that the critics of this measure will have to make out a very strong case in order to make us abandon what has been accepted not only by the Government of India, but also by the Calcutta High Court. The letter of the High Court has been circulated as a paper to this Bill. It will be remembered that the Chief Justice and the Judges stated that an unrestricted right of appeal should not be allowed against the decisions of the Tribunal. They suggested that the High Court should have power to grant special leave of appeal in cases over five thousand rupees, provided that such an appeal should be restricted to points of law only, that is to say, to points on which generally a second appeal lies to the High Court. The suggestions of the Hon'ble Judges were accepted in toto. The Government of India were asked whether they were prepared to consider a Bill drafted on these lines, and they have intimated their willingness to do so, and that they are prepared to undertake such legislation as may be necessary. A draft Bill has been submitted in which it is provided that an appeal shall lie in all cases in which the President sitting alone decides a matter that will be principally questions of apportionment. The appeal will also lie against the decision of the full Tribunal if the President grants a certificate. If the President refuses to grant a certificate in any case over five thousand rupees, a motion may be made to the High Court which may grant special leave of appeal. This is our special safeguard. The Hon'ble Member who spoke last is now, I hope, satisfied with the right of appeal which now gives all that in the opinion of the Judges of the High Court is wanted, and I hope he will withdraw his amendment.

"There is one other point raised by the Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur, in which he raises the question whether this whole legislation regarding land acquisition is not ultra vires. This is a matter that might more fittingly be dealt with by the Legal Remembrancer; but as I understand the case it is sufficient that the Government of India should sanction all those clauses of this Bill which affect the operation of the Land Acquisition Act, and such sanction has in fact been obtained.

"I think, Sir, that I have dealt with all the points that have been raised, except that I would convict the last speaker out of his own mouth as to the desirability of assessors. He quoted a case where he sat as an assessor with a Judge from Barisal who was doubtless a good lawyer, but was entirely ignorant of the value of land in Calcutta. The Hon'ble Member's local knowledge enabled him to show the incorrectness of the opinions of the lawyer judge. We are creating an expert Tribunal; and because it is expert no appeal on mere questions of valuation is required to the High Court—a Court which is already so much congested with work that it need not be overwhelmed with the work which will be undertaken by the Tribunal."

The Hon'ble BABU MAHENDRA NATH RAY said:—

"I rise to support this amendment, and I venture to offer some observations in addition to those advanced by the last speakers; and as the subject is a legal one, I do not desire to remain silent on this motion. The large number of amendments which are on the list show that both the proposal for the constitution of the Tribunal and the proposal for the modification of certain provisions of the Land Acquisition Act will be very hotly contested in this Council. I apprehend, Sir, that the large powers with which it is proposed to vest the Tribunal are liable to be abused. The decisions of the Tribunal will not always be satisfactory. The non-official Members of this Council on several occasions have tried to support their argument by precedents furnished by the English statutes. The danger, however, of relying on the English statutes will be manifest on the present occasion. There is no doubt that the provisions regarding the constitution of Tribunal, as well as the modifications suggested of the Land Acquisition Act, are all based more or less upon English statutes. As regards the modifications proposed in the Land Acquisition Act, some of the most important modifications which would be contested in this Council, for instance the disallowance of the additional compensation for compulsory acquisition, are all based on the English statutes, so that it is not always safe, when considering the legislation to be proposed in the circumstances of this country, to rely upon English statutes. The powers proposed to be given to the Tribunal are extensive and, with due respect to the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill, I beg to submit that the right of appeal is much restricted. My principal objection, however, to the proposal for the constitution of the Tribunal is this. In this country we have not yet formed that high ideal of sanitation or have not got that keen appreciation for sanitary needs that the mass of people in England and any other highly civilised countries have. Moreover, a proposal to bring a large area under an improvement scheme is generally welcomed in England, where we find a large number of private philanthropic agencies coming in to provide funds for promoting these improvement schemes. But improvement schemes introduced in this country on such an extensive scale as the scheme now under consideration in Council do not generally meet with the approval of the people of this country. Now under such conditions it is, I submit, the duty of the legislature to legislate in consonance with the growth of public opinion. If that is so, let us examine this measure accordingly. Whenever, in a country like this, the usual machinery for the settlement of disputes or administration of justice is proposed to be replaced by special measures, a suspicion is aroused in a large number of cases that the proposed special measures would virtually amount to a denial of justice which had hitherto been administered, and it is a feeling, Sir, which I am bound to say largely prevails. This, Sir, I am afraid is one of the incidents of an alien rule, however just and benevolent, but it is one which true statesmanship should take note of. From that point of view, it is to be asked has any strong case been made out for displacing the usual machinery for the settlement of such disputes, and introducing a machinery which the people generally look upon with suspicion as calculated to deny justice hitherto administered? The onus, I submit, lies on those who desire to introduce the new machinery to prove that it would be found efficient if introduced, and in spite of what the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has said, I submit the onus has not been discharged. The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill said that the present system is unsatisfactory inasmuch as the determination of valuation is not left to experts, as is the case in England and other countries. If that view be correct, it is rather a criticism against the present land acquisition law which it is not proposed to abolish, and it is rather essential in that view that the whole of that law ought to be repealed by the Supreme Legislature, and that valuation in all cases of compulsory acquisition should be left to experts henceforward. I do not know whether the Government would be willing to countenance and give effect to that view by some substantial modifications of the present Land Acquisition Act. If the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act would be found to work well in areas not covered by the Improvement Scheme, it is difficult to say that they would not be found to work as well in the areas covered by it. Upon this ground, Sir, I shall venture to submit that the proposal for the constitution of the Tribunal is premature, and that until it has been found by experience that the existing machinery for the settlement of disputes is inefficient, the public would not be prepared to receive such a substantial change in procedure without suspicion—though the suspicion may be unfounded. I have very little to add, Sir, but I am bound to say as a lawyer that I do not agree with the Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur that this piece of legislation would be ultra vires. It is too late in the day to question the power of a Provincial Legislature to modify or repeal any Act passed by the Imperial Legislature for the purpose of the Province, with of course the necessary sanction. And I say further that the correctness of the decision of the Bombay High Court that a Provincial Legislature has no jurisdiction to deal with rights of appeal to the High Court is at least open to question."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir, I was anxiously looking out for the bold man that the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas wanted to take up his stand against the high authority of the High Court. I am glad that the Hon'ble Babu Mohendra Nath Ray has after all broken his vow of silence and treated the Council to a maiden speech which, without presumption, I may claim to congratulate him upon. I did not, however, bargain for the latter day David going so far as to question the high dictum of Sir Lawrence Jenkins in questioning the validity of the Bombay Act as it then stood, and which, as a result of that dictum, had to be validated. I raised the question that has been referred to by the Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur very pointedly in connection with the Calcutta Police Act. That contention met the usual fate of all our contentions. But the broad fact of the highest judicial authority of the land questioning the validity of Provincial Acts legislating in this particular way stood and stands, and the Government of India accepted the condition by passing a validiting Act for Bombay. What was done in Bombay by way of a later corrective Act is attempted to be done here under the cover of sanction of the Government of India under the Indian Councils Act recited in this particular case in the preamble, an omission in the case of the Police Bill that is fortunately made up here. If, Sir, that authority remains unchallenged in spite of the opinion of the Hon'ble Babu Mohendra Nath Ray, as it must, I really do not see how, if this legislature could not confer the right of appeal on the High Court, it can take away from the jurisdiction of the Courts of the land constituted with regard to this particular purpose under section 3 of the Land Acquisition Act. This section insists upon all questions being dealt with by a Court, and not a body carrying on the functions of the Court, which is the happy phraseology of the clause, following the Land Acquisition Act phraseology for quite another object, that we are now criticising. The Court contemplated in that section of the Land Acquisition Act no doubt is a creation of the Government of Bengal, and if the ordinary Court fails, the section provides that the special judicial officer within the specified local limits may be deputed to perform the functions of the Court under this Act. I do not know, Sir, whether the words 'perform the functions of the Court' here have been borrowed from section 3 of the Land Acquisition Act or have an independent genesis. If the first happens to be the alternative in question, it is difficult to understand why elaborate and painstaking provisions should have been necessary to arm the Tribunal with powers which the Government would have vested it with without such provisions if the Tribunal continued to be a Court in the sense of section 3 of the Land Acquisition Act. I refer, for example, to sub-clause (c) of section 61 C) (now 71), sub-clause (3) of 56 (J) (now 64), under which, for the purpose of determining any matter referred to in the sub-clause, the Tribunal shall have all the powers with regard to witnesses, documents and costs which it would have if the Land Acquisition Act of 1894 was applicable to the case, and to the clause under which the Tribunal shall have power to summon and force the attendance of witnesses and compel the production of documents by the same means as are provided under the Code of Civil Procedure. Sir, two lawyer members of this Council have described the Tribunal as more or less occupying the position of an arbitrator. That is the position also attributed to it by the analogy of the English Acts by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. The point of agreement between the non-official lawyer members of the Council and the Member in charge of the Bill is complete with regard to that, that the Tribunal is an arbitrator such as they have under the English Acts. And, as the Hon'ble Babu Mohendra Nath Ray has pointed out, he is an arbitrator appointed by the Local Government here, corresponding to the Local Government Board in England. That appears to be the unquestionable position of this Tribunal. If that is so, where do we stand? A student of the Evidence Act will know, on referring to section 1 of that Act, that it has no application to proceedings before an arbitrator. The most important safeguard of a Court of Law, the Evidence Act, that mighty piece of intellectual legislation that has not been surpassed in this country and not even approached will be altogether unavailable for the purpose of all trials or proceedings. And if the High Court has any right of hearing appeals from such non descript Court it will be by a mere sufferance of the Imperial legislature, such as we have been promised in the course of the speech of the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. Is that a satisfactory state of affairs with regard to important and engrossing interests like those at stake? I venture to think not. Sir, if there was not some doubt of the kind that I am indicating, I doubt the possibility of the Evidence Act being applicable to the proceedings before the Tribunal. But for such doubts and misapprehensions I am afraid sub-section (c) of clause 61C (now 71) and sub-section (3) of clause 56J (now 64) would not have found place on this Bill, and if my apprehension is well-founded it is the greater reason for not having the Tribunal but to adhere to the Court provided by section 3 of the Land Acquisition Act. Sir, we have been told that a Tribunal must be a very excellent body, because so far as its valuation is concerned in the many Bombay cases referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas that valuation was not upset. It stands to reason; because there are on that Board experts well-acquainted with the question of valuation—exactly what would be if we have a body of capable and trustworthy experts standing or otherwise to give evidence, to assist the orthodox Court in dealing with these matters, if the existing machinery was not attempted to be disturbed in the way we are seeking to disturb it by clause 61C (now 71) (d). Experts of that high capability and character would carry weight with all Courts, and if it has been the misfortune of the Calcutta Corporation not to have been able to command the services of experts like these, by reason of which they may have suffered in the course of Land Acquisition proceedings in which they may have come off second best and that have been referred to here. It is a matter capable of remedy ; all that you want is to have proper experts in the box as are attempted to be made a part of the tribunal. A reference has been made to the deliberations of the Building Commission which are supposed to have been so angry at the state of things obtaining regarding exorbitant prices that had to be paid that they thought of adopting the rule of thumb; but a rule of thumb has application only with regard to certain cases, that is to say, where it could not be affirmatively proved that the value was more. The moment that could be done the rule of thumb would cease to have any application. Therefore, that is a matter again which does not help us. We are entitled to go to the recommendation of the Building Commission and see how they dealt with this particular question in their recommendations."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I think that the Hon'ble Member's version of that recommendation is somewhat incorrect. Will the Hon'ble Member kindly paragraph section 138(f) of the Report."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"I was not going to trouble the Council by reading the whole of it. But as my friend wishes me to read it I will do so.

'In order to prevent to some extent fictitious transactions for the purpose of enhancing the apparent value of property to be acquired it may be well to exclude evidence of dealings with the property within two years before the declaration.'

"I do not know whether, unless you prove to the contrary, that would be the rule of thumb. But, Sir, I was drawing the attention of the Councli to quite another matter with regard to the mode of trying those claims, and that is dealt with in paragraph 141. I was telling the Council that this was in 1887, about five years after the Land Acquisition Act had been passed and justifying itself if I may call it. One of the most distinguished Barrister Judges of the High Court was the President of that Commission, and they say in paragraph 141—

'The only other suggestion we have to make as to proceedings under the Land Acquisition Act is that, when the amount in dispute between the Corporation and the land-owner exceeds Rs. 5,000, the High Court should exercise the power of or " the Court" under the Land Acquisition Act. In cases of large amount, proceedings in the High Court are less expensive. Moreover as questions of importance often arise it is better that the higher Tribunal should have original jurisdiction and we believe that the arrangement which we suggest would be appreciated both by the Corporation and by the owners of property in this city.'

The Hon'ble MR. OLDHAM said :—

"Are we concerned with the procedure of the High Court. Is the Hon'ble Member in order ?"

The PRESIDENT said :—

"I think it is relevant as to the question whether the Tribunal is the best machinery."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"I do not know, Sir, whether the Corporation has changed its mind ; the people of the city certainly have not. But the tertium quid has come and that is the Trust; and those responsible for inaugurating that Board think that it is an advantage to be as far away from the ordinary law and from the ordinary Courts of the country as possible.

"I hope nobody else would again be rising on a question of order when I refer to another assertion of the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas that it would not be desirable to let the High Court to be flooded with appeals because of its congestion. The High Court itself has said nothing in that particular way. The general tendency now-a-days of course is to abridge appeals. We have evidence—and I was going to say painful evidence—of that in the gradual evolution of present appeal sections the Civil Procedure Code. Appeals on questions of law such as section 100 of that Code contemplates would be little relief to the present situation, for rarely would any questions arise in connection with land acquisition cases and none could arise in connection with the question of valuation. We cannot complain of that here, and if we did, questions of order would probably arise. But we must remember that under the new legislation now going through Parliament, the strength of the High Court is to be increased and no question of pressure of work or congestion would arise. Before strengthening of the Court was ever attempted or thought of, the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Trevelyan, who worked as hard as any of the latter-day Judges, did not shirk the responsibility of the High Court, and said that with regard to the high claims it would be convenient all round to give original jurisdiction to the High Court so that questions of valuation of importance, such as usually arise, could be dealt with more satisfactorily. If questions of importance were likely then to arise which the Hon'ble Mr. Justice Trevelyan properly asked to provide for by laying down the Rs. 5,000 limit of jurisdiction at the time on his recommendation as President of the Building Commission, much more important questions are likely to arise in connection with the administration of a Trust like this. Therefore, I say that it is not only right but desirable that the ordinary machinery of the land so far as the administration of justice is concerned should not be interfered with. If there is any doubt in the mind of the Government as to whether a particular officer is fit to do the onerous duties that will be cast upon the special judicial officer contemplated by section 3 of the Land Acquisition Act, it is always open to it to make the best possible appointment under the circumstances, and to appoint as many judges as it thinks fit and necessary. The question of cheapness has been referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas; but I do not think that the Tribunal after all will be so very cheap a body, and more than one judge under the Land Acquisition Act will be sufficient to deal with all the emergencies. There will be no delay in completing the land acquisition, and the machinery will run on smoothly and all the safeguards that the people think necessary will be provided. Sir, the failure of the appeals to the Bombay High Court has been referred to with seeming effect by the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas. The question of appeal and the question of assessors are bound to be mixed up and I see with regret that appeal after appeal is failing in Bombay which does make us apprehensive however much such judicial triumphs may benefit the trust. Why need there be any apprehension that trusting time-honoured Judicial machinery for retention of which we plead will be attended with disastrous results? There is no occasion to think that so far as the Objects and Reasons on this particular clause is concerned all the opinion published was that such proceedings will be numerous and that a special Tribunal will be required as in Bombay. That statement of Objects and Reasons has to-day been supplemented, and I must say with great power and clearness, by the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas; but what does it come to? After all the Tribunal which has been provided for is just the same as they have in England in the shape of assessors and arbitrators, and we ought not to complain. That is not enough or satisfactory, and we say that you have not shown any cause why the orthodox legal machinery of the land should be interfered with, or why the current procedure should be departed from. That is a thing to be proved without a loophole of doubt and misapprehension before such a revolutionary charge is made, even though Bombay had it forced upon it under peculiar circumstances at a crisis. And until that is done—the Bombay precedent or not—this clause cannot justly find a place in the Statute Book of this country, if what we considered is the rights of the situation to prevail.

"Sir, reference has been made to the reasons which led to the abandonment of assessors in 1892—strictly speaking, because it was then that the Bill was introduced The Hon'ble Mr. Bliss in introducing the Bill on the 11th March 1892, and in reference to the Land Acquisition Act of 1870 said :—

"In England there are many men, in all parts of the country, who make land valuation the business of their lives. In this country, there are no such persons, save perhaps a very few in three or four of the larger towns. What happens in practice is that the person interested appoints an assessor, who is virtually pledged beforehand to endeavour to protect and advance his interests. The Collector's assessor is under no such understanding, it is true, but is very probably indisposed to go against the Collector. The assessors are supposed to be remunerated by the fees provided for by the Act, but it is credibly reported that in heavy cases the claimant's assessors receive additional fees by private arrangement, while it is certain that the Collector cannot secure the services of competent persons from want of power to grant them adequate remuneration. Under all the circumstances, it seems to me idle to suppose that the employment of assessors can in any way lighten the labours of the Court, or relieve it of responsibility, or ensure justice as between the Government and the persons interested"

"That is stronger language than the language referred to by the Hon'ble Member in charge in quoting from Mr. Justice Parker who thought that the assessors were far too faithful to their trust and were impervious to all evidence and arguments. I am afraid, although the question of corruption or misconduct can never come with regard to the assessors such as those we are seeking to introduce here, much of the observation of the Hon'ble Mr. Bliss will continue to apply to the case. There will be no statement of principles which should guide the assessor, such at all events as the Land Acquisition Act contains and such as we think ought to be insisted on. Then again, there is no obligation on them to give reasons for their findings such as you except in the case of a regular and orthodox proceeding in a Court of Law. Of course there will be no chance of wasting public money, far less of robbery, and the evil will be quite the other way; but the evil will be none the less if the owners unjustly suffer, as it is apprehended they will do. That was the pronouncement of the higher legislature with regard to the question of assessors not many years ago, and when the Buildings Commission came to deal exactly with the same question four years later, they had no improvement to offer on the existing machinery [Act I of 1894], except to indicate that in the larger cases above Rs. 5,000 the original jurisdiction should be conferred on the High Court so that expeditious hearing of the cases could be insured. Why is it that we are going back to the old assessor system and what are the assessors? If you look at them, the assessors under the olden rules would be representing the interests concerned. Whether that is helpful or not is a matter of more than doubt, and in fact it has been proved and pronounced to be objectionable. Here also the first assessor, that is the President, will be a Government nominee; the second will be appointed by the Government, and the third assessor will be a nominee not of the party vitally interested, but of the Corporation. The Corporation has and must have a distinctly hostile interest so far as that party is concerned, because the ultimate financial responsibility of the scheme is on the Corporation they are liable to pay 2 per cent. on the taxes, which would naturally make them anxious to see that as little expenditure was incurred on acquisition as possible. Therefore, so far as the Government and the Corporation are concerned, they will be perfectly at one, they are the parties who are principally financing the situation between them and they would naturally be anxious to keep down the costs as much as possible. Is that carrying out the principle of assessors to its legitimate issue and consequence? I presume not. If it is to prevail at all, some one representing the party vitally interested, whose land you are going to take up, ought to be there; but he is not there. I think under the circumstances the authority to deal with the situation ought to be a Court dealing with expert evidences and adjucating on the claim as a whole; that is our ideal as taught by principles of British justice and periodical notions that have not yet been challenged. I do not want assessors; assessors are objectionable and if assessors are objectionable, part assessors are still more objectionable. The parties financing the situation will have their representation on the Tribunal, the party which is to be very vitally affected is to have none. Therefore, the modified assessor principle is not a sound one. We respectfully submit to the Council that the orthodox machinery of administrating the law ought not to be interfered with."

The Hon'ble MR. B. C. MITRA said:—

"I shall confine, Sir, myself only to one point which I think legitimately falls on me to explain to this Council, which the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas left untouched. This is the only point upon which I desire to make my submission before this Council. The question raised by the Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur, as to whether it is within the competency of this legislature to create any Tribunal which affects the jurisdiction of any Tribunal or Court created by the Governor-General of India in Council. That naturally resolves itself into two points. First of all the question arises as to whether this Council has any power to enact any law the result of which would be to affect the jurisdiction of the present Land Acquisition Court. In the next place the question arises, incidentally, as to whether the taking away of the power of the Land Acquisition Court does not indirectly affect the powers of the High Court, which has the power of hearing appeals from that particular court. With regard to the first question, whatever doubts might have existed upon that subject before the Act of 1892 was passed, there is hardly any doubt on this point since the passing of that Act, which is specifically intended to meet cases of this character. This legislature has power to make rules and regulations which, if they receive the sanction of the Governor-General of India in Council, would repeal the existing Acts. As to the second part of the question, it might be that the indirect effect of this legislation is to take away from the High Court the power which it now has of hearing any appeals which might arise out of the Land Acquisition Act. If in law this Council has the authority to make legislation which would affect the jurisdiction of the Land Acquisition Court, it must necessarily follow, as a matter of course, that the suit which is instituted in the Land Acquisition Court itself being affected, the appeal must necessarily be affected. Therefore, I beg to submit that is not a question of affecting the jurisdiction of the High Court. The contention of the Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen does not seem to have been based on any solid foundation."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

In this amendment I very frankly acknowledge and appreciate the spirit in which the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas has replied to us. It shows that he is aware of the difficulties that we are struggling against and he has tried to meet them as far as he can from his standpoint. My hon'ble friend says that the Tribunal which he is creating is a better Tribunal. He is giving us something better than we have got under the present Land Acquisition Act. Well, we who represent at least the non-official view I may say that we are content with what we have got and we do not seek a better Tribunal. It is no business of ours to claim for anything beyond what we have got and with which we are pleased and satisfied, and I suppose it is no business of Government to force down our throat something which we do not think is better and which we do not much like. Apart from that why is it better. It is because my friend says this Tribunal follows more or less on the lines of the English system of appointing an arbitrator. This Tribunal will discharge the duties which the arbitrator in England discharges. My friend the Hon'ble Mr. B. C. Mitra, has said that the proceedings of this Tribunal will not be a proceeding of an arbitrator. That cannot be. It is a Tribunal and a Court of Law, and its proceedings must be governed by ordinary legal procedure. Therefore, the benefit whatever it may be which arises from a case being tried by an arbitrator will not be secured by this Tribunal. Then the only other ground upon which it has based its claim is that it is better that it will be a Tribunal of experts. Let us see how far it will be a Tribunal of experts. The Tribunal shall consist of a President and two Assessors. The President shall be either a Barrister, Advocate or Pleader of not less than ten years' standing who has practised in the Calcutta High Court for not less than five years. So that, so far as the question of valuation are concerned, the President certainly is not an expert, except I may say so without any disrespect, that a Member of the Civil Service is an expert in whatever branch of service he is put. If it is the intention of my hon'ble friend not to appoint a Civilian it makes the case worse, because there also, so far as you can take experts, the President will not be an expert. He will be an expert certainly on questions of law, but not on questions of valuation.

The two assessors in all likelihood will be experts on matters of valuation. But a Judge who is not an expert will be in a better position to decide than if he is hampered by two men who will be experts sitting with him as assessors, for it is quite certain that when a question of valuation has got to be decided, the Improvement Trust on its own side and the people on their own sides will be placed before the Tribunal, whatever it may be, whether it is a Tribunal of experts or non-experts; and the parties will place their own evidence—which evidence will necessarily be the evidence of experts. It comes to this, that whoever is the Court, he will have to decide the evidence as it is laid before the Court. Then, if this Tribunal is exercising the functions of a Court, as clearly it is contemplated that it should, wherein is it that this Tribunal is in a better position than the Tribunal we have got. In this case, the inexpert Judge will, to a great extent, be hampered by the position that the experts will take, experts who may decide the case upon their own knowledge and not upon the evidence before them. For these reasons, I say respectfully that, if there was a right of appeal against this Tribunal under certain circumstances, we should not object to it. My friend says that that right has been given. Then why is it that we object. I will tell my friend that that right of appeal has not been given. The proposal of the High Court, for which, I am glad to find, my friend professes such great veneration, is not conferring upon us a right of appeal, except in those cases in which there would be an appeal by way of second appeal. Well, Sir, that is very different. The High Court says that we can have an appeal under the same circumstances as a party would have a second appeal under section 100 of the Civil Procedure Code. Well, section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure provides that an appeal shall lie to the High Court on any of the following grounds, namely, (a) the decision being contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law, (b) the decision having failed to determine some material issue of law or usage having the force of law, (c) a substantial error or defect in the procedure provided by this Code or by any other law for the time being which may have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits. Does my friend contend that that would satisfy the people if an appeal is only permissible when there is misdirection on a question of law, and if they exclude absolutely all appeals against the valuation. I think that it was not present to the mind of my friend, for if it was I am quite sure that with his characteristic frankness, he would have said that this appeal that is proposed to be given to you is mere moonshine, for this appeal will not protect anybody, will not safeguard any interest; whereas under the ordinary law, as it now stands, we have a right of appeal against valuation. Then my friend says that in England there is a right of appeal only where the valuation exceeds £1,000 or which is Rs. 15,000 in Indian money; whereas in India we are generous in giving an appeal in cases of Rs. 5,000. I do not know just now, I am not ready with figures as to what is the exact equivalent to an Indian of Rs. 5,000 as against an Englishman in England of £ 1,000. I am disposed to think, from my knowledge as far as I can rely upon it at the present moment, that Rs. 5,000 of Indian money means nothing to an Englishman at home. That is hardly the point about which I insist; I would be content even if you had raised to Rs. 10,000. This right of appeal which you seek to give us is not what is wanted. It does not secure to us the protection that we seek. It does not confer upon us the safeguard that is necessary, and in the second place we do not agree with you that you are giving to us a Tribunal which is a better qualified Tribunal than the present, for the purpose of disposing of this classes of cases to the satisfaction of the parties concerned. If we had an expert at an earliest stage where negotiations were going on between the party and the Trust for the acquisition of the land, that would be the stage at which expert advice would be very valuable—a stage where you would not be bound by the expert advice but where you would necessarily be guided by non-expert advice. We are entitled to say that you are giving us a much worse machinery for the determination of our rights than we have under the existing law. My hon'ble friend has said that in England the procedure though analogous is different. There where the valuation of the arbitrator is not accepted, it goes to a jury and my friend says that the people in England are so much afraid of the jury that they do not desire to go to the jury. Well, Sir, I am not in a position to say about the feeling of Englishmen about their jury system. Give us one of your English arbitrators, we do not want anything more. Let it be only an arbitrator appointed by Government. Will you do it? Will you accept that offer."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"You are wandering away from the point and wasting the time of the Council. There is no such proposal before the Council."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"I say that the Tribunal that you have given us cannot command the same confidence as the Tribunal which you are displacing. My hon'ble friend has said that in Bombay originally or even now there is no complaint, and that the High Court has said that the Tribunal has done its work in the way which has commanded public confidence. I shall not go into personal questions. The late President of the Tribunal who is now a Judge of the Bombay High Court was a man who was held in great esteem in Bombay. The original idea in Bombay was that this President should be a man of the standing and position of a High Court Judge, whether he belonged to the Civil Service or outside it. I do not know what the President that is going to be given to us will be like, but I may tell my hon'ble friend that since the translation of this gentleman from the Board to the High Court, the same amount of confidence is no longer reposed in this Tribunal at Bombay. These are the considerations which I seek to place before the Council.

"My hon'ble friend has not answered the arguments that I raised as to what is the comparative inconvenience of the Tribunal as it at present exists. He has referred me to a finding of the Building Commission. I will not accuse him of reading only a part of the report for the purpose of his argument, but I must say that he has overlooked what the Commission were relying upon—

> "The extravagant prices which the Corporation has been made to pay for property acquired by it have arisen from the interpretation put by the Courts upon the decision of the High Court of Calcutta in the case of Prem Chand Baral and another, versus the Collector of Calcutta, I. L. R., Calcutta 103."

"So long as that interpretation remains, so long as the Land Acquisition Act is not amended, so as to negative that interpretation of the late Chief Justice Sir Richard Garth, your Tribunal will not protect you against these extravagant prices, for if your Tribunal decided against that interpretation, there is a sure right of appeal to the High Court, for it will then have to decide a question of law; so that the object with which you want to go to this Tribunal, namely, to go behind the ruling of the High Court and not to rectify the procedure of the Tribunals, as they stand, your object in seeking to go behind it will not be attained. Well, the only advantage that you seek to attain being unattainable, why is it that you want to force this Tribunal upon us? We do not seek it, and we have shown the dangers with which such a Tribunal would threaten the Courts of Justice in this country."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said :—

"As I have got a similar amendment, may I have the right of reply?

The PRESIDENT said :—

"I understood you had given it up in the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu's favour. You cannot reply now."

A division was then taken with the following result :—

The Hon'ble Raja Rajendra Narayan Bhanja Deo.
The Hon'ble Mr. K. B. Dutt.
The Hon'ble Mr. M. S. Das, C.I.E.
The Hon'ble Khan Bahadur Maulvi Sarfaraz Hussain Khan.
The Hon'ble Babu Braja Kishor Prasad.

The Hon'ble Sir Bijay Chand Mahtab, K.C.I.E., Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan abstained from voting.

The result of the division was ayes 13, noes 31, and the motion was therefore lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

311. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that clause 61B (now 70) be omitted.

311A. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur to move that clause 61B (now 70) be omitted.

312. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that after the figures "1894" in line 4 of clause 61B (now 70), the following be inserted, namely:—

and for the purposes referred to in section 56J (now 64) of this Act.

He said:—

"This is a formal amendment, though in my humble opinion very necessary.

"The 'Tribunal' is defined in clause (1) of section 2 as meaning 'the Tribunal constituted under section 62 (now 72).'

By section 61B (now 70), the purpose for which the Tribunal is constituted is limited to the performance of the functions of the Court in reference to the acquisition of land under the Land Acquisition Act.

"The question is whether this Tribunal will have jurisdiction to decide matters referred to in section 56J (now 64) which are not under the Land Acquisition Act, but which refers to compensation for loss or damage such as payable to a person in consequence of closing any street causing any inconvenience. This Tribunal has also power to decide the questions referred to in sub-clause (b) (i) and sub-clause (b) (ii) of clause 56J (now 64), namely, whether or not the closing of streets, etc., will cause damage or whether the access provided for under section 54 (now 55) is reasonable or sufficient.

"These are matters which are beyond the scope of the Land Acquisition Act and beyond the powers of a 'Court' referred to in that Act. Therefore if section 61B (now 70) stands as drafted, 'the Tribunal' referred to in the definition and referred to in section 62 (now 72) shall have no power in my opinion to act under section 56J (now 64)."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I think that the Hon'ble Member knows that we are legislating for Calcutta, and not for Bihar or any other place, and clause 61B (now 70) will apply to Calcutta only and apply for the purposes referred to in clause 56J (now 64)."

The motion was then put and lost.

The PRESIDENT said:—

"I think we should now go back to amendment No. 297."

Clause 56H (now 63), new sub-clause (8).

297. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that after clause 56H (now 63) (7) the following be added, namely:—

(8) In case of any dispute as to the amount of compensation payable under this section, the same shall be determined by the Court of Small Causes of Calcutta.

He said:—

"Sir,—I want to add to this clause a new sub-clause. There is a provision in this clause enabling the Board to deal with houses which fall on projected public streets, and I have suggested that where there is a dispute as to the amount of compensation payable under this section, the same shall be determined by the Court of Small Causes. Does my friend accept this amendment?"

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

305. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause 56J (now 64) (3) and clause 61C (now 71) (c) be placed after clause 66 (now 76), and be re-numbered accordingly.

Clause 61C (now 71).

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

312A. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that clause 61C (now 71) be omitted.

313. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause 61C (now 71) be omitted.

314. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "this Act and the said Land Acquisition Act, 1894," be substituted for the words "acquiring land under the said Act for the Board" in lines 1 and 2 of clause 61C (now 71).

315. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "(except for the purposes of section 54 of that Act)", in clause 61C (now 71) (a), be omitted.

316. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "(except for the purposes of section 54 of that Act)", in clause 61C (now 71) (a), be omitted.

317. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "(except for the purposes of section 54 of that Act)", in clause 61C (now 71) (a), be omitted.

318. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that clause 61C (now 71) (b) be omitted.

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"With regard to this and some similar amendments, it would be very much more convenient if we take them up when we discuss the Schedule in detail."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"I prefer it to be postponed till we come to the discussion of the Schedule."

The discussion of the motion was then postponed.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

319. If Motion No. 312A be not carried, the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "and shall be final", at the end of clause 61C (now 71) (d), be omitted.

320. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "and shall be final", at the end of clause 61C (now 71) (d), be omitted.

321. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "and shall be final", at the end of clause 61C (now 71) (d), be omitted.

321A. If Motion No. 313 be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the words "and shall be final" at the end of clause 61C (now 71) (d), be omitted.

The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "subject to the provisions of the Land Acquisition Act, 1894," be inserted before the words "shall be final" at the end of clause 61C (now 71) (d).

He said:—

"Sir, in withdrawing this amendment, I wish to make myself clear that we do not consent to this:—'and shall be final' except so far as proceedings may not be brought up in another Civil Court. But for the purposes of appeal which, my friend says, may be conferred upon us by the Supreme Government, it may not be said that we accept this. We want to safeguard against that assumption."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The President ruled the following motions to be out of order on the ground that it is ultra vires of the Bengal Legislative Council to confer jurisdiction on the High Court:—

323. If Motions Nos. 316 and 320 be not carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that for the words "and shall be final", at the end of clause 61C (now 71) (d), the following be substituted, namely:—

(2) In any case in which the President of the Tribunal grants a certificate that the case is a fit one for appeal, there shall be an appeal to the High Court from the award or any part of the award of the Tribunal.

(3) Subject to the provisions of sub-section (2), the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, with respect to appeals from original decrees shall, so far as they can be made applicable, apply to appeals under that sub-section; and orders passed therein by the High Court may, on application to the Chief Judge of the Court of Small Causes of Calcutta, be executed by him as if they were decrees made by himself.

(4) An appeal to the High Court under sub-section (2) shall, for the purposes of No. 156 of the first schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1908, be deemed to be an appeal under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, in a case not provided for by Nos. 151 and 153 of that schedule.

(5) In cases in which a certificate has been refused by the President under sub-section (2), the High Court may grant special leave to appeal.

324. If Motions Nos. 313 and 321A be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that for the words "and shall be final", at the end of clause 61C (now 71) (d), the following be substituted, namely:—

"and shall be liable to appeal when the sum involved amounts to or exceeds two thousand rupees."

325. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that for the words "and shall be final", at the end of clause 61C (now 71) (d), the following be substituted, namely:—

and such award shall be subject to appeal to the High Court, and, if no appeal is preferred, shall become final on the expiration of the period allowed for appeal.

326. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that at the end of clause 61C (now 71) the following be added, namely:—

Provided that an appeal shall lie to the High Court from the award or any part of the award of the Tribunal in any proceedings under the said Land Acquisition Act,—

(i) whenever the amount of the award is not less than five thousand rupees,

(ii) whenever the right or interest acquired does not admit of any money-value, and

(iii) in every case referred to in section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.

Clause 62 (now 72).

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

326A. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that clause 62 (now 72) be omitted.

327. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause 62 (now 72) be omitted.

328. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that for clause 62 (now 72) the following be substituted, namely:—

62. (1) The Tribunal shall consist of two members, one of whom shall be a barrister, advocate or pleader of not less than ten years' standing who has practised in the Calcutta High Court for not less than five years, and the other shall be either a member of the Judicial Branch of the Imperial or Provincial Civil Service who has for at least three years

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"No. It is really an amendment to the next clause which provides that these disputes shall be decided by the Tribunal."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"I do not press this amendment, Sir, but I thought that it was a simpler method."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

Clause 56J (now 64).

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

298. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur to move that clause 56J be omitted.

Clause 56J (now 64) (1).

299. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "either by the person claiming compensation or by the Board" be inserted before the words "within a period of three months", in line 2 of the paragraph following immediately after sub-clause (c) in clause 56J (1).

He said :—

"Does my friend accept this amendment? It is only a verbal alteration."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"If the Hon'ble Member will put it that the words 'either by the Board or by the claimant' be inserted before the words 'within a period of three months' in line 2 of the paragraph following immediately after sub-clause (c) in clause 56J (now 64) (1), I will accept the amendment."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"Sir, I accept the change and move the amendment as altered."

The motion was then put in the altered form and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

300. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "by either party" be inserted before the words "within a period of three months", in line 2 of the paragraph following immediately after sub-clause (c) in clause 56J (now 64) (1).

301. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move—

(1) that the words "the matter shall be referred by the Board to the Tribunal within three months from" be substituted for the words "the matter shall be determined by the Tribunal, if referred to it within a period of three months from", in the paragraph following immediately after sub-clause (c) in clause 56J (now 64) (1), and

(2) that for the words "and the determination of the Tribunal shall be final" at the end of clause 56J (now 64) (1), the following be substituted, namely :—

and the matter shall be determined by the Tribunal, and such determination shall be open to appeal to the High Court.

302. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "and the determination of the Tribunal shall be final," at the end of clause 56J (now 64) (1), be omitted.

He said :—

"Sir, I take it that this amendment will be governed by what fell from the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, as to motions relating to appeals being out of order.

If we are to have appeals of the kind that has been indicated, even these words will have to go for the present; because we cannot say that the decision shall be final and at the same time have appeal provisions elsewhere. Therefore, whatever the appeal provisions may be, these words will have to go for the present."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I do not quite accept that view of the case, Sir. The words 'and the determination of the Tribunal shall be final' need not necessarily have any reference to the existence of an appeal. If the Hon'ble Member will look at clause 61C (d) (now 71) he will find that the words appear there also. These words were not in the original Bill as introduced in Council, and was inserted on the express advice of the High Court. The words exist in the B mbay Act and they have no reference to an appeal. The words 'shall be final' are necessary to prevent the finding of the Tribunal being called in question by a Civil Court. The Hon'ble Judges of the High Court advised us to insert these words, and every one will agree that the Tribunal should have this power and that it is extremely undesirable to have its decisions called in question in, say, a Munsiff's Court. The question of appeal is dealt with otherwise and not under this clause."

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, in this amendment I agree with the Hon'ble Member in charge. These words 'the determination of the Tribunal' were included on the recommendation of the High Court to prevent these decisions being appealed against, but not from being raised in a Civil Court. If that view is accepted, it deals with a much simpler matter, and I think that it might be left as it is. I also think that the Tribunal ought to be trusted and their decision ought to be taken as final."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir, in view of what has been said I do not wish to press this."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

302A. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the words "and the determination of the Tribunal shall be final", at the end of clause 56J (now 64) (1), be omitted.

302B. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that the words "and the determination of the Tribunal shall be final", at the end of clause 56J (now 64) (1), and the words "and shall be final", at the end of clause 61C now 71) (d), be omitted.

302C. If Motion No. 302A be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that, after the words "and the determination of the Tribunal shall be final", at the end of clause 56J (now 64) (1), the following be inserted, namely:—

"in all cases where the difference between the amount claimed and the amount awarded does not exceed one thousand rupees, but in all other cases the determination of the Tribunal shall be open to appeal to the High Court."

Clause 56J (now 64) (3).

303. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "clause (c) of" be inserted before the words "sub-section (1)", in line 2 of clause 56J (now 64) (3).

He said:—

"Sir, I have had an apportunity of discussing this amendment with the Hon'ble the Vice-President of the Council, and in view of his explanation I do not wish to press this motion."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

served as District Judge or held judicial office not inferior to that of a Subordinate Judge, or a barrister, advocate or pleader of not less than ten years' standing who has practised as an advocate or pleader in the Calcutta High Court:

Provided that no person shall be eligible for appointment as a member of the Tribunal if he is a Trustee or is, for any of the reasons mentioned in section 9, disqualified for appointment as a Trustee.

(2) The senior member of the Tribunal shall be its President.

(3) The term of office of each member of the Tribunal shall be two years; but any member shall, subject to the proviso to sub-section (1), be eligible for re-appointment at the end of that term.

(4) The Local Government may, on the ground of incapacity or misbehaviour, or for any other good and sufficient reason, cancel the appointment of any person as a member of the Tribunal.

(5) When any person ceases for any reason to be a member of the Tribunal, or when any member is temporarily absent in consequence of illness or any other unavoidable cause, the Local Government shall forthwith appoint a fit person to be a member in his place.

(6) All appointments made under this section shall be published by notification.

He said:—

"The object of this amendment, Sir, is to have as compact and workable a Tribunal as possible, eliminating the assessor element, objection to which I set out at some length in the previous portion of the debate and which I do not wish to repeat. The assessor element was found to be a failure, will be a failure again; and if a prompt and workable Tribunal is the objective of this Act, the proposal that I venture to make, whether an appeal is allowed or not, would meet the requirements of the case. So far as the expert element is concerned, they will come before the Tribunal in the shape of witnesses. It is not necessary for a member of the Court itself to be an expert in engineering or in sanitary matters, but expert opinion ought to be adjudged upon judicially. The experts themselves would be constitutionally and instinctively incapable of this, for they have their own groove out of which the true judge has often to take them out. Of course nobody would go in the first instance to the Court for adjudging whether the Victoria Memorial, to which the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas has referred by way of illustration, is a safe structure or not; but if it was a question between the Trustees and the contractors with regard to any of the matters appertaining to that colossal but ill-conceived monument when the question of paying the contractors came up, one would have to go to the Court, and the evidence of the expert would have to be taken, and the "lawyer-finding" of valuation so scoffingly alluded to by the Hon'ble Members, I hope such a contingency will not arise; but if it does, no special expert Tribunal will deal with it but the High Court devoid of its expert element would have to be binding on all concerned. All the branches of law are said to be represented in the constitution of the Court as I suggest it ought to be, and the only objectionable element, the experts, will be done away with, and they should be relegated to their proper places as witnesses. There is no question of majority governing the situation. Two Judges form High Court Appellate Benches, and even in original special matters, for example, when an important case is being tried, a Bench of two Judges is constituted. In that view of things the Bench of two Judges such as my amendment provides for would be acceptable and the objection from my point of view would be eliminated.

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I oppose this amendment, because the Tribunal, to the creation of which this Council has just assented, is not the Tribunal created by this draft clause. This Tribunal is not going to be an expert Tribunal. If we retain clause 61B, as we have decided to do, it is not worth while to debate further on this subject. The whole advantage of our Tribunal is that it is an expert Tribunal. And I am not going to discuss the advantages of an expert Tribunal once again. Sir Lawrence Jenkins, the present Chief Justice of Bengal, held that the strength of the Bombay Tribunal lay in the fact that on it sat two expert land-valuers. What authority would be possessed by a Tribunal composed of lawyers only? It will be seen from the Hon'ble Member's amendment 329 that no appeal shall lie against the concurrent decision of the two members of the Tribunal. I think that there is no precedent for making the decision of two judges sitting together final. This is not the kind of Tribunal which has been approved by the Council."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"I have not indicated, Sir, that they should necessarily be junior officers. It is the minimum qualification that is provided in this amendment, but if it is adopted, I have no doubt that the best available men would be appointed. If we have a Tribunal of the kind, I suggest the question of appeal would be of comparatively less importance than it would it be under the system of assessors who may go wrong on many questions outside the absolute question of valuation. For that reason I ask that a Tribunal like thi. should be accepted."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

329. If Motion No. 328 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the following sub-clause be inserted at the end of the new clause 62 there proposed, namely:—

(7) In case of difference of opinion between the members of the Tribunal, the decision of the senior member of the Tribunal shall prevail, and an appeal shall lie against it to the High Court. In all other cases the decision of the Tribunal shall be final.

330. If Motion No. 328 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that all consequential amendments be made in the clauses in the Bill preceding and following clause 62 (now 72).

331. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "vakil" be substituted for the word "pleader," in lines 1 and 3 of clause 62 (now 72) (1) (b).

332. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that the words "for not less than seven years" be inserted after the word "practised," in line 2 of clause 62 (now 72) (1) (b).

He said:—

"Sir, I beg to move that the words 'for not less than seven years' be inserted after the word 'practised' in line 2 of clause 62 (now 72) (1) (b). In the clause as it stands no mention has been made of the period for which a barrister, advocate or pleader should have practised as such in the High Court before he is eligible for the appointment of President. It may be that any pleader or barrister or advocate of ten years' standing who has practised for an infinitely short period in the High Court could claim to be appointed as President. But that is not desirable; he should at least have practised in the High Court for a period of seven years."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I oppose this amendment, Sir, on the ground that it will unduly restrict the selection of Government in appointing suitable officers for this purpose. There is no such restriction in the Bombay Act. It may be difficult, with such restrictions, to appoint a man who is thought fit to hold such a post."

The motion was then put and lost.

333. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that for the words "the President of the Tribunal and one of the assessors shall be appointed by the Local Government," in lines 1 and 2 of clause 62 (now 72) (2), the following be substituted, namely:—

The President of the Tribunal shall be appoited by the Local Government, and one of the assessors shall be appointed by the person whose property is to be acquired.

He said:—

"Sir, in this amendment I seek to have one of the assessors appointed by the party concerned whose property is to be taken up. There are three interests concerned—the Government, the Corporation and the parties. The Government interest would be safeguarded by the President, who is a nominee of the Government. The Corporation assessor will safeguard the interest of the Corporation; and there is clearly and distinctly a third interest that of the party that is nowhere provided. Under the Land Acquisition Act of 1870 he had such a right. Previous to that his rights were larger. But these rights were curtailed in 1870 and were limited to an assessor nominated by himself who used to be associated with the Assessor of the Government and assist the Judges and take part in the trial. If we are to have the assessor principle adopted, it ought to be adopted as a whole, and the predominating party ought not to have two-thirds of the representation on that Tribunal and the party most vitally interested ought not to be left altogether out of consideration. I dilated on this matter at some length in connection with the previous amendment, and therefore have no desire to repeat these arguments."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I suppose, Sir, that the Hon'ble Member is scarcely serious in moving this amendment. The system of assessors being nominated by parties has absolutely broken down, as I have explained to the Council a little while ago. It is necessary that the constituted members of the Tribunal should be above suspicion and absolutely impartial. They will be appointed for a term of years, and they should in no way resemble the system of assessors for the determination of any particular case, which system broke down in this country and was despatched without a tear from anybody. The expert members of the Tribunal are called in the Bill 'assessors,' but their position is entirely different from the assessors nominated by the parties who were not impartial and who considered themselves to be in duty bound to protect the interest of the party they represented. I explained this morning that our Tribunal is not only going to be composed of experts, but of men who will also be absolutely impartial."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"Sir, I would not have intervened except for an observation by the Hon'ble Member in charge who said that the system of assessors had broken down throughout India. Certainly there was objection taken to it in Bengal, and it is because of objections taken to the system of assessors by members of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce that the proposal was brought forward to change the Tribunal as it then existed. In Bombay it did not break down; they were quite content with it, and it is because they were content that they made no objection to the present constitution of the Tribunal when it was proposed with reference to their Bombay Improvement Act. I have made this statement because I have felt that I should not remain silent in view of what has been said."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I do not think Bombay asked for the system of assessors to be retained when the Land Acquisition Act was under amendment.

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, I am sorry that in this motion I cannot associate myself with my friend, Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari, with whom I have been in agreement throughout. Well, I opposed the Tribunal, and I still oppose it. But that opposition has now gone. If we have to get a Tribunal, let it be the best and impartial Tribunal that we can have—a Tribunal which will secure the confidence of all parties. If it is going to be a Tribunal of experts, as I hope it will be—though I oppose it on other grounds, unless you can get men who will exercise their functions irrespective of any consideration of the parties before them, you cannot have a Tribunal of qualified, independent and impartial experts. The only ground upon which any suspicion could be cast is this; but I do not think it is much. In the first place, we have for the President a member of the Indian Civil Service or a member of the Bar. Whatever may be the shortcomings of the Civil Service, nobody will accuse a judicial officer belonging to that service of partiality, and as in this case he is not deciding a case between the Government and the people, but between the Trust and the people concerned, he is absolutely independent of any bias either as a Government servant or in any other capacity. Then the assessor whom the Government appoints has also nothing to do with the Trust or with the people. All that we are concerned to see is this, that he should be a duly qualified man and a man against whose integrity or honesty not the slightest reproach can be uttered. If that is done, we trust that the President and the assessor appointed by the Government will be absolutely independent men. The next man is the assessor appointed by the Corporation. Though the Corporation has got heavy financial responsibility for the success of this Trust, it does not pay to the claimant the amount of his compensation which is paid by the Board. When it is found that the Corporation is not directly interested, and I think it may be safely left to the Corporation to send the man there on behalf of the Corporation who will be able to protect and safeguard the interests of the people. In Bombay I have found that the Corporation representative is a man in whom not only the Corporation and the people, but the Government all place the greatest reliance and confidence. It is difficult, I know, to get a man of that stamp every day. If, on the other hand, my friend accepts this, I may say that I felt myself that it was a suggestion which could not be properly placed at one time in the Select Committee. If we have a change of Court in every case, that would prevent an expert body being created, and it would also throw some amount of want of confidence on the decisions of the Board. For these reasons, I think that the more independent we can make the Tribunal the better for us; for after all we cannot get away from this Tribunal—it has been thrust upon us. Since it has been thrust upon us, let it be as independent and impartial and command as much confidence as possible, so far as the people are concerned. The only difficulty to my mind, and that difficulty my friend observes is this, that the Government is so largely interested and represented on the Board that it would be difficult for the Government to disassociate itself, and one of the assessors being a Government nominee may feel himself under some obligation to Government in arriving at his awards. I hope the remuneration of the assessor, his position and qualifications will be such that such an imputation may not be made; and I am quite sure that the Government will take care to make its intentions distinctly understood that, so far as this Tribunal is concerned, Government does not wish to influence or interfere with its judgments in any way. This, I am quite sure, will be made clear; and that being clear and the Tribunal being such as it is, the best form of a Tribunal would be to have three men absolutely independent either of one side or the other."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"I regret, Sir, that I cannot share the sorrow of my friend to the left that he is unable to agree with me. If there is occasion for me to disagree with him, I shall as freely disagree with him as I have disagreed with other friends. But I regret that I should have been charged with want of seriousness. I thought we were taking ourselves a little too seriously. To us, who are neglecting our health and our every-day avocations, in our attempts to do the best we can for bettering this Bill, it does cause some regret, if we are seriously told that our observations are lacking in seriousness. I deny, Sir, that the assessor system broke down because of the assessor being nominated by the claimant concerned. It would be impossible for the one single assessor to contribute so vastly to the breakdown to that system unless there are contributory causes. The other assessor and the Judge concerned must have contributed very largely to that failure. When in full view of that you are seeking to bring back the old assessor system, you are deliberately riding for a fall, and it is our place to warn you. And you seek to insure your own individual safety by shutting out the claim. It will not be a Tribunal of three Judges appointed by the Government, to which the observations of objection that I am now addressing, would not apply. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu has started an objection on the ground of inconvenience because of the likelihood of the want of continuity of the Court if individual assessors of the parties instead of standing assessors were to form the Court. Was that ever an objection or difficulty under the older and the now condemned system of Assessors in Land Acquisition cases? And what happens to the Criminal Courts? The presiding Judge and differing Juries in the different cases try criminal cases. Do they suffer for lack of continuity? The same would be the case here, and the new assessor about whom we have no right to imagine black and dark things, would bring fresh light on the situation which ought to be a help to the Tribunal under proper conditions and an education to the standing members of the Tribunal. I am seriously pressing this on the attention of the Council. A little humour may sometimes contribute to lessen the tediousness of the hour, but these are far too serious questions to have genesis in humour as the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas gratuitiously imagines. The professional expert will have opportunities of taking his colleagues into his confidence. Their interchange of ideas will help in a better understanding of things. Why should we imagine that a designing and partial assessors will always be the real difficulty. The breakdown of the assessors system could not have been due merely to the assessor of party concerned. In that view of things, and as well as in view of what I have urged in regard to the Jury system, I do not see that it would be difficult to have reliable expert opinion on behalf of the party. The monopoly of experts need not necessarily be with the Corporation or Government. My friend to the left has said that the matter is not between the Government and the people concerned, but between the Trust and the people. Taking it at that, there is no reason why the Government assessor should come in as the President is there already. So far as the Corporation is concerned, it has very heavy financial responsibility, and its object legitimately and properly would be to keep down the costs as low as possible as they have vital interests. The only person as vitally interested is the party who is not to be represented. If you are sitting on the Court because of your vital interest there is no reason why the claimant should be kept out of Cour.'

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

334. If Motion No. 327 be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that for clause 62 (now 72) (3) the following be substituted, namely:—

(3) The President of the Tribunal shall be appointed by the Local Government and one of the assessors shall be appointed by the Corporation and the other by the claimant.

335. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "to be" be substituted for the words "for appointment as", in line 1 of the proviso to clause 62 (now 72) (3).

336. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "the President" be substituted for the words "each Member" in line 1 of clause 62 (now 72) (4).

337. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "at the end of that term", at the end of clause 62 (now 72) (4) be omitted.

338. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "remove any" be substituted for the words "cancel the appointment of any person as a", in line 3 of clause 62 (now 72) (5).

Clause 63 (now 73).

338A. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that clause 63 (now 73) be omitted.

He said :—

"My amendment was originally framed because we have objected to the Tribunal altogether, but there is another matter. Would it be better to fix the remuneration of the members of the Tribunal on such a scale and before the public so that the public would have some confidence that these members would be capable and independent men? We would like to know the standing and the remuneration of the members of the Tribunal."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"It was difficult to incorporate in the Bill any definite provision as to the remuneration of the members of the Tribunal. A great deal will depend on the amount of work which the Tribunal has to do and on the frequency of its sittings. In Bombay it only sits once a week. A fee for a weekly sitting would be different from the fee for a daily sitting."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"Sir, I withdraw my amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

338B. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause 63 (now 73) be omitted.

338C. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur to move that clause 63 (now 73) be omitted.

Clause (64 now 74).

338D. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that clause 64 (now 74) be omitted.

338E. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause 64 (now 74) be omitted.

338F. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur to move that clause 64 (now 74) be omitted.

Clause 65 (now 75).

338G. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that clause 65 (now 75) be omitted.

338H. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause 65 (now 75) be omitted.

338J. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur to move that clause 65 (now 75) be omitted.

Clause 66 (now 76).

339. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that the words "High Court" be substituted for the words "Local Government", in line 2 of clause 66 (now 76) (1).

He said :—

"Sir, I think it would be more appropriate that the High Court should sanction the rules which are not repugnant to the Code of Civil Procedure than that the Local Government should undertake such work. For this reason I move the amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I oppose this amendment, because, if passed, it will impose a duty on the High Court which we have no power to impose."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"Sir, would my friend accept a modification of it (in consultation with the High Court)?"

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"They will not agree to consult with the President of the Tribunal."

The motion was then put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that clause 66 (now 76) be omitted.

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said :—

"I prefer, Sir, that it be omitted altogether."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I think it is obviously desirable that the President of the Tribunal should have power to make rules for the conduct of the business of the Tribunal, and these rules should be published by notification for the information of the public."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

341. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause 66 (now 76) be omitted.

341A. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Bàsu to move that clause 66 (now 76) be omitted.

341B. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur to move that clause 66 (now 76) be omitted.

342. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "after previous publication and" be inserted after the word "time" in line 2 of clause 66 (now 76) (1).

He said :—

"I move this amendment in order that the general public may have an opportunity of making any representation that may be desirable on the rules that may be framed by the Board for sanction of the Government. I believe such words would not have been necessary under other conditions, because under the General Clauses Act, where the framing of rules like these is contemplated, previous publication would be necessary. I am not sure, Sir, that the General Clauses Act, would have any application to cases like these; if I am in error with regard to that I do not wish to press this amendment. Should I, however, be right, I think the ordinary protection and safeguard of previous publication ought to be provided for in the Statute, so that the people concerned may have an opportunity of knowing what the rules are going to be and of making their representations with regard to them."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I oppose this amendment, Sir, because I do not see what purpose a previous publication will serve. I do not see that any such publication is necessary. Rules which are to affect men going about their ordinary business, it is very desirable, should be published before they are enforced. But with our rules there will be no such consideration, and they will deal with matters far too technical in nature for the ordinary public to take an interest in. There is no precedent in the Bombay Act, too."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"We had some very startling propositions made, Sir, in this Council from the beginning of the debate, and this is not the least startling of them. I was going to say it is the most startling, because it is laid down that the ordinary man in the street need not know anything about the technical details as to how the tribunal should work under the proposed rules. Who can be more interested in these rules than the so-called 'ordinary man in the street,' which I take it is the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas' way of calling the condemned owner. I could have understood his saying all this about the rules for the guidance of the Board which is to carry on its work in secrecy. But it is "prodigious" to deny the claims of the man in the street to know about what is going to govern him and his claims. To borrow my friend's own language a few minutes ago, I ask whether he is "serious" in laying down this for the acceptance of the Council or any legislature. If what he contends was correct, no Bill need be published that governs the conduct of our courts, because the man in the street need not know what is going to govern his rights. In fact according to dictum like this he need not know very much more of laws or rules than what side of the road he is to keep when walking. For all laws and rules, however pertinent to him and his, are always a highly technical matter. Yet unfortunately for some legislatures these things are published and criticisms have to be listened to. I think that the General Clauses Act governs the situation, but it is considered doubtful; that is pre-eminently the reason why the amendment ought to be adopted. I hoped that the Hon'ble Member in charge would have the good sense to accept it."

A division was then taken, with the following result:—

The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur.
The Hon'ble Babu Bal Krishna Sahay.

The result of the division was—ayes 10, noes 30, and the motion was therefore lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

Clause 67 (now 77).

342A. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that clause 67 (now 77) be omitted.

342B. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause 67 (now 77) be omitted.

342C. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur to move that clause 67 (now 77) be omitted.

343. If Motion No. 328 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause 67 (now 77) (1) (a) and (c) be omitted.

344. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that the words "or the apportionment of compensation" be inserted after the word "allowed", in line 3 of clause 67 (now 77) (1) (a).

He said :—

"The decision of the question of the apportionment of compensation, as to how compensation is to be divided amongst the different claimants, often require technical knowledge, knowledge of engineering; and as one of the assessors, I understand, is to be an engineer, it is in my opinion necessary that the question of apportionment should be decided by all the members of the tribunal, and not by the President alone."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I do not think that this amendment will meet with the approval of the Council. The legal Members of the Council will bear me out that the question of apportionment directly gives rise to the most complicated questions of law, such as are involved in any ordinary title suit. These legal questions of apportionment will be decided by the President sitting alone, and there will be an appeal against his decision in the ordinary course. The assessors are only experts in regard to valuation of land, and it is only in regard to questions of valuation of land that the opinion of the Tribunal as a whole is recognized as a final authority. In Bombay there is at present no provision empowering the President to decide these legal questions by himself. The assessors have therefore to attend at every sitting of the Tribunal, though actually they take no part in the discussion or decision of such matters. This of course involves a pure waste of public money."

The motion was then put and lost.

345. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that clause 67 (now 77) (1) (b) be omitted.

He said:—

"Sir,—I beg to move this amendment because this is a matter that comes strictly within the purview of the expert tribunal. No doubt, as questions of mere valuation are not concerned, the absence of assessors is to be condoned, if I may so call it, in going on with the question. But important questions may often arise in connection with titles or shares, and it may be the duty of the Civil Court to adjudicate upon the different titles that may be set up by the parties concerned. It is desirable therefore that this encroachment, at all events, on the jurisdiction of the Civil Court should be avoided. This will not affect the Trust or the Board in any way. If people have to litigate with regard to their own shares in the compensation, they ought to be allowed to do so elsewhere. This tribunal, which is less than a Court and more than a Court, ought not to be allowed to adjudicate on the titles of differing shareholders."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"We have got an expert Tribunal to make a proper valuation of the land, but the question often arises, who is entitled to receive the money to be paid by the Trust? Under sub-clause (b) this question is to be decided by the lawyer member of the Tribunal, who will be the President, and against whose decision there will be an appeal as against the decision of any judge. I oppose this amendment."

The Hon'ble BABU MAHENDRA NATH RAY said:—

"Under clause 61B (now 70) we have constituted the Tribunal which shall perform all the functions of the Court in reference to the Land Acquisition Act, and one of the functions which the Court under the Land Acquisition Act has to do is not only to determine the compensation to be paid, but also to apportion the compensation. Therefore the only result of omitting clause 67 (1) (b) (now 77) would be that all questions of apportionment and questions to whom the compensation is to be paid have to be decided by the President with the help of the assessors, which is certainly not desirable as the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has pointed out, and I cannot support the amendment."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir—It may not always be a question of law purely; facts will also arise, but I do not wish to have the assessors for that particular purpose there, and the clause, as it stands, ruthlessly excludes them. But I fail to see where the ordinary remedies of appeal comes in with regard to the decision of cases of title."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I have explained this morning that if the President sitting alone decides a question, there will be an appeal to the High Court."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir—I do not quite acknowledge that this is perfectly satisfactory—this division of the Tribunal into compartments to suit the passing needs of the hour,—but I do not wish to press my amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

346. If Motion No. 344 be carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the words "or the apportionment of compensation", in clause 67 (now 77) (1) (b), be omitted.

347. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "or the High Court, as the case may be, having regard to the amount of the award or payment" be inserted after the word "Calcutta", in line 3 of clause 67 (now 77) (7).

New Clause 67AA.

348. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that after clause 67 (now 77) the following be inserted, namely:—

Restriction on Acquisition.

67AA. The Board shall not purchase or acquire, in pursuance of section 60 or section 61A, fifteen or more dwellings in any area in the Calcutta Municipality which, three months previous to the publication of the notice referred to in section 42, were occupied, either wholly or partially, by persons whose income does not exceed an average of fifty rupees per mensem, or by the families of such persons residing with them, whether as owners, tenants or occupiers, unless the Local Government has sanctioned a scheme for providing new dwellings for such a number of persons as were residing in such dwellings at the said time, or for such other number of persons as the Local Government may, after iqnuiry, deem necessary.

Restriction on acquisition.

He said:—

"Your Honour—In all proposals for the sanitary reform of cities, one of the cardinal principles is to remove overcrowding, and the Government of India, in an early stage of the consideration of the subject, expressed the fear that there was a risk that the measures contemplated for Calcutta might result in creating the very evil which it was intended to remove. Sir, my amendment is submitted as a contribution, with the object of coping with difficulties that are anticipated. But I observe that it is labelled in the agenda as a 'Restriction on Acquisition.' I certainly have no such idea. The clause I move for adoption may be numbered as it may please the authorities, but I wish it to be understood that it is not intended to affect, and does not affect, acquisition. It might be said to be a 'Restriction on displacement of working classes', as repeatedly appears in the earlier London and Manchester Improvement Acts from which my amendment is taken; or better still, in the term now adopted in the Housing Act of 1890, as 'Requisites of improvement scheme as to accommodation of working classes.' I hope that the description given against my amendment will not give a colour to it and predisposes any Hon'ble Member, on that account, to reject it.

"Re-housing of persons of the poorer classes, who have been dishoused, admittedly is a necessity, and so we have it in England, local authorities are made responsible for rehousing. The London County Council must re-house half of the working classes ejected: and in an improvement scheme elsewhere—in an area out of London—the local authority must provide for so many persons of the working classes as the Local Government Board may require, on a report made by their officer who conducted the local inquiry. The superior classes are left to look after themselves.

"Previous clauses of the Bill provide for construction, but construction only, and then all discretion is to devolve on the Board.

"The question in England is treated as one of the highest importance. In London, the County Council is controlled by express terms of the law; for areas outside London, the Local Government Board, which is an expert department of Parliamentary Government, may be said to have assumed control. The Government of India in their despatch of 1907, from which I already have quoted, has appreciated the importance of this question in the significant warning conveyed of the risk that precisely the same congestion and the same conditions may recur, as the improvement scheme is designed to remove, and, in a telling phrase, that the working classes prefer to 'huddle together' in their insanitary lodgings in the neighbourhood of their old lodgings.

"There will be demolition and reconstruction on a large scale. And where overcrowding is present, as we may assume will be the case in the opinion of the Board, it will occasion great complexity because dishousing of occupiers of the poorer classes will necessarily follow also on a large scale. In such circumstances, it will not be fair or just to the public to leave the Board to conduct their operation practically uncontrolled. It will require, to be of any avail, systematic procedure and control. We cannot ignore the experience that has been gained and the practice that has been developed in England. If the same proceeding is followed, as should be done, before the Board exercise their legal powers, the extent of the accommodations available in the neighbourhood of the area in question should be ascertained and a register prepared. The size, earnings, and occupation of the families of the poorer classes resident in the area to be dealt with should be essential points for inquiry. All this is done effectively and tactfully in England. It should be possible to do equally well in Calcutta. If, as we must presume will be the case, dishousing of the poorer classes will be numerous, it will be a question whether all will be treated simultaneously. In all these, and in many other questions involved, I submit a firm and consistent supervision by the authority of the Government is a necessity and should be given.

"My amendment is taken from several Improvement Acts applying to such great Corporations as the London Country Council and of Manchester. But I have reduced by nearly one-half the income of persons for whom provision should be made, and the provision will be for so many only as the Government will direct. The amendment will not imperatively impose any construction on the Board : and if any construction is needed, to such an extent only as the Government will think fit. But above all, and in this I attach the greatest value, it will assure us active interest and supervision in rehousing the poorest classes, on the part of the Government And, here again, I offer the Hon'ble Member in charge an opportunity of commenting on my desire—a strange desire he seems to think—of Government supervision. I submit that it will not meet requirements to leave all discretion to the Board. I submit that, in the public interest, it is necessary that the Government should assume control, and be well informed and vigilant, and exercise an independent discretion on a question of such vital importance as the rehousing of the poorest classes. And that the Government will exercise their functions should be made clear by a declaration to that effect in the law. It is only the inevitable corollary to the responsibility of introducing a measure of the character of this Bill."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I almost regret to oppose the amendment moved by the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar. Because we must all recognise that he, of all the non-official members of the Council, has devoted serious study not only to this Bill, but to the whole subject, and more particularly to the subject as developed in England. His suggestions, though often I have resisted them, have been deserving of the most serious consideration, and I have generally resisted them on the ground that we have in other ways secured the object which he sought to attain, and here I have the same reason for resisting this amendment.

"It is quite true that it is useless to attempt to remove overcrowding and congestion by merely pulling down houses that are built too closely together. The people are merely driven elsewhere and cause greater overcrowding in the locality to which they remove. In English legislation it is often laid down that accommodation must be provided for every person who is evicted in the course of carrying out a public work. The Hon'ble Member in this amendment very wisely does not go so far as that. He leaves to the Local Government to decide what number of persons should be re-housed. But if the Hon'ble Member will look at clause 50A (now 52) which provides for re-housing schemes he will find that the Board has power to take up re-housing schemes for the accommodation of people likely to be displaced before it undertakes an improvement scheme. Clause 46 (now 47) (b) which we have passed provides that the Board in submitting an improvement scheme to Government shall state what arrangements have been made or are proposed for the re-housing of persons likely to be displaced by the execution of the scheme. This definitely implies that Government will consider whether the arrangements or proposed arrangements are sufficient and satisfactory and if, in its opinion they are unsatisfactory, it will not approve of the scheme. It seems to me therefore that all that the Hon'ble Member aims at is already secured. A hard-and-fast law that everyone who is displaced must be re-housed would not be suitable to Calcutta. People belonging to different religions, castes and races would certainly never agree to go and take up their quarters in buildings constructed by or under the orders of the Board for their accommodation. When these people are removed they select their new residences generally with the object of living near people of the same community or of the same occupation. I consider that the amendment of the Hon'ble Member is not necessary."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"Sir,—I am reminded that, when the Hon'ble Member speaks of these provisions being made in clause 50A (now 52) for re-housing, nothing but the bare power to construct for the poorer classes is reserved. But is that power to be exercised? I cannot understand the Hon'ble Member when he says that my amendment is either too definite or it does not go far enough, as it leaves this practically to the discretion of Government. Why should there be objection to such matter being left to the discretion of the Government? It is my turn to comment on what the Hon'ble Member says on the subject of Government intervention. He apparently thinks that it ought not to be left to the discretion of the Government. At every turn we have indications that the Government will stand aloof, and the Board will be free from any control. Well, I think, on my part, that it should be left to the Government. Where application for sanction to acquire is made to the Government, then the Hon'ble Member says that if the duty of considering this question be left to the Government, it would be imposing an inquisitorial inquiry. But will not the Board inquire? How can they provide for re-housing unless they do? As to proceedings being to a certain extent inquisitorial it is unavoidable. There are inquisitorial inquiries, as the Hon'ble Member very well knows, now proceeding in regard to houses in Calcutta, and it is an inquiry that is regularly pursued in England. How are you going to construct houses unless you know for how many you are to provide, and the size of their families? I would prefer that power should be reserved to construct houses for a certain class of persons, who, in fact, have been actually displaced. We have no indication how this power is going to be exercised and to what extent. It may be found that ordinarily, as the new houses will be of a superior character to those from which people will be evicted, it will be persons of a superior class who will take up their quarters in the new houses. I think that due consideration should be given to all these matters. Here we have no indication given of the steps to be taken, and unless there is this provision as a protection against overcrowding small though it be, I fear that the remedy that we are adopting may prove to be worse than the disease, as the Government themselves feared."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

Clause 67A (now 78) (1).

349. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "in excess of that" be substituted for the words "which is not", in line 3 of clause 67A (now 78) (1).

350. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words " may retain the land " be substituted for the words " may make an application to the Board, requesting that the acquisition of the land should be abandoned ", in lines 5 to 7 of clause 67A (now 78) (1).

He said :—

" The amendment that I now seek to put before the Council is, in one sense, an amendment affecting the draft only, for my friends are agreed that the clause, as drafted, does seek to carry out what I desire to secure by the words that I suggest. I will explain to my friends what the clause is, and what I want to secure. This clause gives parties liberty to retain the land which is not actually required for this scheme. There are schemes in which we provide firstly for the actual execution of the scheme, and then we provide for areas which are not actually required, but which we have got to take up either for the execution or by way of recoupment, and, in these cases, we desire that parties affected may be at liberty to retain the land. We are all at one, Government side and ourselves, that, when land is not actually required, it may be retained by the party upon payment of a sum to the Board. What that sum will be is a matter for consideration. For the purpose of this clause the sum is fixed by the Board. It is admitted that the party may retain, but the language of the clause is rather vague, and, if I may say so, it is not put so clearly. It says that, ' in any case in which the Local Government has sanctioned the acquisition of land in any area which is not required for the execution of the scheme, the owner of the land may apply to the Board for the retention of the land by paying a sum to be fixed by the Board.' So, if you take it positively, the Board shall be bound to admit such obligation, if these conditions are complied with. This clause is borrowed from our Municipal Act, section 357. There we have got the words ' may retain.' I am reading the proviso to clause (2):—' provided that, in any case in which it is decided to acquire any land under this sub-section, the owner of such land may retain it by paying to the Corporation an annual sum to be fixed by the General Committee, in their behalf, on a lump sum to be fixed by the General Committee not being less than twenty-five times such annual sum.'

" I am aware that the framers of this clause also desired this, but there is no provision in the law which confers upon him the express desire of being able to retain. You get it by a very roundabout way. The following observation I respectfully submit for the consideration of Your Honour and the Council that this is not sufficient. Let us say so in express words. Let us say that, in any case where the land is not required and if the owner does want to retain this, he must go through certain formalities, he must get all these co-sharers, and he must apply within a particular time. I think that it is a very reasonable proposal that I have made ; it carries out what you aim at, and at the same time it gives a distinct privilege and right which does not appear in this clause, but does appear in the section from which you have borrowed this clause."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

" If I accept this, it will upset the subsequent sub-clauses. It will be more acceptable in the form of motion No. 358. I would suggest postponing this motion till we come to motion 358."

The further consideration of the motion was then postponed.

351. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the word " Tribunal " be substituted for the word " Board ", in the last line of clause 67A (now 78) (1).

He said :—

" Sir—The object of this amendment is to give the assessment to the assessing body, and that is the tribunal instead of the Board adjudicating upon what would be paid to the party. It ought to be the tribunal. I am of course aware that it will add to the work of the tribunal, but it will so much lessen the work of the Board and as the tribunal is the better body for the purpose of assessment, it would perhaps be convenient to have the assessment by the tribunal itself. With regard to the action of the Board, there will be no check or appeal. For that reason, I move this amendment."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"I beg to support this amendment. I wish to put forward the grounds upon which I support this, so that my friends opposite may have an opportunity of replying to them. My friend knows that though it is not in essence the betterment principle adopted in the English Acts, it is on the same lines as in England. When an improvement is made and lands are improved, which are not actually taken up by the improvement scheme, there is a provision under which these lands are retained by the owners, but upon certain terms. The terms are that the party retaining pay an assessment of 3 per cent. upon half the value of the enhancement. The enhancement means the value at the time of the improvement and the value when the assessment is imposed—3 per cent. upon half the value. I will not trouble you by reading this section, but if I am incorrect, my friends opposite will correct. This enhancement is assessed not by the local body concerned, and naturally because it is a matter between the local body and the owner.

"Thus there an independent person makes the valuation. If the party fails to apply, the Act affords a further protection that it will not be done by the local Council. Then the local body has to apply as to what should be the value and to how the things should be done. There is no suggestion that the Board will not deal fairly, but I think that it is an accepted principle that in a matter in which you are concerned principally, and the Board would be an individual for this purpose, it is always better, when you cannot agree, to leave the question to be decided by a third party. Here we have provided a Tribunal upon which my friend has great confidence and upon which I hope, notwithstanding what I have said this morning, we shall learn to place confidence, and therefore I think it is just and fair, where you cannot agree to the value of the land to be retained, it should be decided by the Tribunal. I do not know as to how the value of the land is to be decided here. It is a valuable privilege that you are conferring upon the people, that they should be allowed to retain the land which is not actually required. My friends, both European and Indian, are aware of the strength of feeling which we attach to our ancestral dwellings, and what we are anxious about is this that the Trust will have to deal with a large number of Indian families with whose sentiments it may not be familiar. Perhaps you do not know the strength of this great feeling amongst us that makes us stick to our ancestral dwellings at whatever cost it may be; and therefore you should carry out your improvement scheme in such a way that people may save their ancestral houses. They will strain every nerve to do it and I do not think, having regard to this intense feeling for the retention of their homes, that they should be placed at the mercy of the opposite side, because the opposite side will be fixing a value knowing the great tenacity of the people to this little house. It is just and fair that that valuation should be made by an independent person unless you agree. If you agree, there is an end of the whole thing. I think it is fair that my friend opposite ought to accept that now we have provided for a tribunal, the tribunal shall decide. It stands to reason that poor people will not go to a tribunal. I am quite sure, so long as the Board is presided over by my friend, he will so deal with matters that people will not be driven for protection outside the Board, but at the same time it is desirable to provide a safeguard. If we do not agree what better safeguard is there than this tribunal should decide. I place these suggestions and these arguments before my friends opposite, hoping that they will realise the situation. I am afraid they cannot realise because the condition of things amongst which they live is so different—the practical helplessness of our people in regard to their ancestral homes. Therefore, in matters like these, where one party is practically at the mercy of the other, an independent third person should be called in, and now that a third person (tribunal) is handy, in whom both of us trust, he should decide the case."

"I cannot hold out any hopes of my accepting this amendment, or the principle embodied in it. This is a clause which gave us a great deal of trouble in the Select Committee, and some members of that Committee felt very strongly on the subject, and I am sorry I do not see here the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha who had a great deal to say about this clause in the Select Committee. There is, I think, some misapprehension as to the scope and meaning of this clause, and I will ask the Council to bear with me for a few minutes while I explain what it is we intend to do and what it is we do not intend to do.

"Unless I am compelled, I would not be enticed into a discussion of the principle of betterment raised by the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu, because the principle of betterment is not incorporated in this Bill and has never been advocated during any of the previous discussions. There are, so far as I know, three possible methods by which a body or a local authority, carrying out improvements, may expect some return from the land which is benefited by its improvements. One is the betterment system which, after a prolonged fight, has been more or less adopted in England, and which has there proved more or less a failure. Under that system you impose a rate calculated on the rise in value of the land benefited by your improvement. No one has suggested that that principle should be applied in Calcutta. There is another system which at one time was advocated by Sir Herbert Risley in connection with this Bill. And that is the system under which you impose a rate on the frontages abutting on the land acquired, not calculated upon the extent of the benefit derived by that land but calculated on the cost which you have incurred in making improvements. That system was strongly advocated, but was finally abandoned in deference to public opinion of Calcutta. Most of the associations consulted objected to it, and finally the Secretary of State thought that it should be dropped. We are then left with the principle of recoupment which is a system always enforced in Calcutta and to which the people are accustomed, and which in principle has been accepted by everybody who has spoken in Council on this subject. The Bill provides that we can take up excess land the increased value of which is entirely due to the capital which I have expended in making the road. Then I can re-sell it. This is a system which is extensively followed by the Calcutta Corporation. But it is quite possible that, instead of buying or acquiring this land and selling it when it has risen in value, we may shorten that complicated process by coming to an arrangement with the actual owner. It will be seen in clause 68 (now 81) of the Bill that when the Board comes to dispose of the land we are giving the right of pre-emption to the former owner. If we are going through the process of acquiring land and keeping it for several years, and then re-selling it, when the price has gone up, to the former owner, the question arises whether the same object cannot be attained by a short cut. This clause is intended to give the Board the power to make an arrangement with the previous owner who, for the payment of a certain sum, can retain his land. It will be purely a matter of bargain between the Trust and the owner as to what the latter has to pay in order that the land may not be acquired. This is a process which is sure to have the approval of the landowners. For, it must be remembered that in many cases the owner of the land is anxious to avoid acquisition, and the Board on its part is anxious to avoid the expense and risk and locking up of capital involved in making acquisitions. The whole of this complicated clause is to regulate negotiations between the Board and the owner. Of course the owner has a right to say that somebody must judge between them. But that is not the question here. Here we merely say that we may negotiate with the owner and abstain from acquiring a land which he is anxious to retain. So if this amendment is accepted, it will upset the whole of the procedure under this clause."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"I am afraid, Sir, that it would have been better to let the consideration of this matter stand over till we realised as to how much in the way of right would be conceded by the rewording of the clause. When that particular matter stood over, I understood my friend to recommend that a right as such was to be conceded. Some such intention was the reason of letting this matter stand over."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"It is a right to negotiate terms of agreement with the Board."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"Of course, if there is to be no right and it is to be merely a matter of bargain, there would be much force in what my friend has just stated. But I am reminded that it should hardly be a matter of bargain, and it was in that view of things, I understand, that the re-wording of the clause stands over. The Hon'ble Member in charge is morbidly anxious to avoid entering into a discussion of the question of betterment in spite of the alluring enticement of the Hon'ble gentleman to my left who has been constantly referring to it, because it is really the basis of all that we are attempting here, whatever name you give it. It strikes me from what is really advocated here is a sort of benamee betterment, if I may so call it. The absolute principle of recoupment, which was to be adopted in this Bill, found place in paragraph 17 of the Governor-General's Despatch to the Secretary of State, which was the basis of this legislation, and there, as my friend reminds us, the Prussian system was given the go-bye to and the orthodox recoupment system, which has found place in the Bombay Act and the Municipal Act, was finally adhered to. But what he has stated just now goes a step further and makes us think that it is really betterment benamee, that we are now having. Be that as it may; unless it is to be an absolutely downright bargain, there would be an advantage of letting the constituted assessors of the Trust having the last word to say as to what would be the right and proper amount for letting the owner retain his land. In this connection, Sir, I may read to the Council a very short extract from that letter, in which we are told—

'We agree with the Lieutenant-Governor that the method of recoupment adopted in section 15 of the Prussian Street Alignment Law (Fluchtliniengesetz) of 1875 should be retained as an alternative to the methods of selling or leasing surplus lands which may have been acquired during the progress of the improvement scheme. Exception has been taken by several of the local bodies consulted to the adoption of the Prussian method, but the objections they have made appear to us to be based, to a large extent, on a misapprehension of what is proposed. The Bengal National Chamber of Commerce, for example, is under the impression that at least half the cost of constructing a new road is to be recovered directly from the frontage owners, and refers to the inability of house-owners to pay huge lump sums on this account. But the Prussian Law which it is proposed to adopt fixes half the cost on frontage owners, and it is not proposed that this maximum should be exceeded in Calcutta. Also the amount to be recovered would be converted into an annual charge to be spread over as long a term of years as might be convenient. The system would have the special advantage that it would not lead to the dispossession of any save the persons whose property was actually required for the construction of new road or open spaces, and that it would avoid the opposition which the acquisition of surplus land and the dispossession of owners has aroused in the past and must inevitably arouse among people who, like the Hindus, are greatly attached to residential houses on sites on which their families have lived for generations. All that we propose at present is that provision shall be made in the Improvement Trust Act for this method as an alternative to that with which the people of Calcutta are already familar. The method would not be adopted in any particular case without careful consideration.'

"Can we say, Sir, having regard to that letter, that something very closely resembling a right of retention is not to be given to the public? The principle of bargaining would remind one of the old chauth days, when the strong man appears on the scene and says—well, how much are you going to pay me in order to be allowed to retain your property? Here is a constituted body; they know exactly what to make of the situation, and you are going to let them come to an arrangement between you and the owner as to what is right and proper figure to pay, so that they may help in the realization of the scheme and yet be able to retain their property without any undue stress and strain. That is the whole object of my amendment. I had thought, Sir, that a tribunal that enjoys so much of the confidence of the Trust would not be objected to in making an apportionment of the kind that would be necessary before they were allowed to retain the property."

A division was then taken, with the following result:—

352. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that the word "Collector" be substituted for the word "Board," in the last line of clause 67A (now 78) (1).

He said :—

"Sir, I have been studying this clause more critically than before within the last few days, and I am puzzled to understand how it will be worked. I must confess that I am still more puzzled after the explanation that has been given by the Hon'ble Member in charge. I understand that this clause is based on section 357 of the Municipal Act, and under the impression that it was intended to be worked on the basis of betterment, that is to say, when there is a charge made for improvement, it is to be calculated according to the benefit to be derived from the improvement. In England, a percentage on half of the benefit by improvement is taken, and by the Corporation it is nominally stated to be two-thirds of the improvement itself, but in effect the whole of it is taken. We are now told that there is to be no question of betterment on the Prussian system or any other system under this Bill, but only of recoupment. I do not know to what degree I should enter into a disquisition on such a question as that. The only question that I now have to submit is with reference to this: whether or not the Board shall decide as to the amount to be paid, or whether the Collector shall decide. I submit that it is much better that there should be an independent and impartial person, because naturally the Board will be interested in this question, and if it is to be regarded as land that has been taken away and is to be purchased by the owner, it means that the Board is placed in an advantageous position, and is really becoming, what is a bugbear to me, a judge in their own cause. They will always take a rosy view estimate of the improvement, and it may be pardoned to the owner if he thinks that he is not meeting with fair and just treatment, if he is to be left at the mercy of the Board. I think, Sir, that, in these circumstances, the Collector should be a party to decide what sum is to be given. But I cannot help proceeding to say—it is difficult to resist going in to the ground on which the Hon'ble Member has invited discussion. I have seen no authority in this Bill for acquisition of land for the purpose of profit, because profit is not a purpose of this Act. Here, in this clause, Your Honour will see that it is where the land is not required for the execution of the scheme, that its owner may apply to the Board to retain it: if it is not required for the execution of the scheme, it is a land for the acquisition of which sanction cannot be given under section 61 A, (now 69), and if it is not needed for public purpose, then it cannot be acquired under the Land Acquisition Act. It is the land which is distinctly kept out, as being not required for the execution of the scheme. Then, why is it to be acquired? 'Required' does not mean 'demanded.' That is settled law. Lord Chancellor Selbourne decided that required means not 'demanded' but 'necessary.' If you say that it is not required, you say that the land is not necessary. There are so many questions involved that I shall not go into them now in an incidental manner. I would not offer any objection to the agreement being arrived, voluntarily between the parties. But it is only when an agreement has not been arrived at, we submit that it should not be the Board who should decide what payment is to be made. I have been puzzled from the beginning to understand this clause, and I confess that I have not yet fathomed it; but, any way, if there is any contention as to the value of the property, I submit that the price to be paid should not be fixed by the Board. Your Honour will see in what a dominating position the Board is in this case. A man cannot retain his own land except with the sanction of the Board. There are other obstacles, with regard to all of which the Board are made masters of the situation, and if the owner passes the various ordeals, then an arrangement is to be arrived at by the Board. I cannot conceive on what principle it can be insisted if there is a dispute, the Board should be placed in a position to demand an exacting price, and that their decision shall be final. It seems to me unfair, and in these circumstances, and dealing only with the question of whether the Board shall decide or whether the Collector shall decide, I submit, Sir, the Collector should be permitted to decide the question of price. I reserve my remarks with regard to the many questions that have been brought up, though I have been tempted to anticipate, in a measure, what I may have later on to say, when a statement has been made with regard to betterment and recoupment".

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I resist this amendment on the same ground that I resisted a similar amendment In this amendment the word 'Collector' is to be substituted for the 'Board.' I do not think that there is anything in the theory that the Hon'bl Member has just supported, that the Board has no power to acquire land for the purpose of recoupment. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari said there is no doubt that the Board has power to acquire land for the purpose of recoupment within an improvement area. I think there is no legal difficulty such as is suggested by the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar. I still adhere to the decision that, as under the Calcutta Municipal Act, so under this Act also, the only possible way to fix a price is by bargaining. The Trust will not want to acquire land unnecessarily. It will not want to lock up its capital. It is not a question merely of buying land and selling it again at an enhanced price. When land is acquired much expenditure is incurred. in paying for trade losses, costs of removal and similar claims, for which there is no return by recoupment. These considerations tend to curb the operations of the Board in this direction. I see a further difficulty which will arise if the suggestion is adopted that the Collector is to fix a price for the land that may be retained. Supposing the Trust demands ten thousand rupees and the owner offers two thousand, they may go to the Collector and the Collector may fix the price at five thousand. Is the Collector to have the power of compelling the man to pay five thousand rupees? This would not be fair, for he may prefer to have the land acquired. But if the Collector's award is to have no binding force, then there is no advantage in a reference to him,—for he merely makes an offer which the landowner has power to reject, and that is an offer which the Board is quite capable of making by itself. For this reason, as well as for the others which I have advanced, it seems to me inadvisable to accept this motion."

The Hon'ble BABU MAHENDRA NATH RAY said:—

"Sir, I beg to raise a question asked by some of the previous speakers, which has not yet been answered by the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill. Does clause 67A mean this—that subject to certain conditions which are set out in the clause, the Board would be bound to permit the owner to retain the land, or that even when these conditions are fulfilled, the Board have power to consider whether the application for retention should be admitted or not? The section, as it is now worded or as it is proposed to be worded, perhaps leaves it discretionary with the Board to admit the application or not. It would then be a matter of pure discretion and the position the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas has taken up would be irresistible. But if the clause confers a right on the owner, the matter would be different."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"I want to point out that the provisions of section 357 of the Calcutta Municipal Act makes it obligatory on the part of the General Committee or the Corporation to receive an application from the owner. We have worded the clause so as to allow the owner, fulfilling certain conditions, to retain the land which will not be required for the execution of an improvement scheme, and it was under that impression that we gave notice for the amendment that a reasonable sum should be paid to the owner. But in bargaining with the owner, there is nothing to show as to who is to fix the price. The Board may fix a fancy price. There is nothing in the clause to check it doing so."

The Hon'ble MR. PAYNE said:—

"I think that the question of the right has been a little bit misunderstood. The procedure is entirely based on the authority of the Corporation, only it has been simply put in a different form, and to my mind, after having had some experience of that procedure in the Corporation, it is a better form. The only real right that the Calcutta Municipal Act gives and the same right as given by this Bill, is that of absolutely requiring the General Committee in the one case—and in this case the Board—to fix a certain fee in return for which they leave the owner to retain the land. It is optional with the owner to retain the land or let it be acquired. In the Corporation we have had a large number of such cases, and we find that the interest of the Committee and the party are identical. The Hon'ble Rai Sitanath Ray Bahadur has said that the Board may fix a fancy price. But it cannot, as the party is going to reduce it, and the Board must come to his terms or must acquire the land. The question is a simple one and need not have been discussed at this length !"

"Sir,—I of course have learned that all questions raised are, in the opinion of the Hon'ble Member in charge, simple and can easily be decided against an amendment. But I think we will fiind difficulties under this clause in practice. The Hon'ble Member (the late Deputy Chairman) is an authority on the subject to which he has now referred, and I acknowledge that, in some details, he has been instrumental in improving this clause; but this clause is not the same in its terms as the section of the Municipal Act to which he has referred. He does not suggest that it is not the system of betterment that is followed in the Corporation. Now, we are told that it is recoupment that will be adopted here. I prefer recoupment to betterment. What is recoupment? Where you purchase before improvement is undertaken and you sell after improvement has been made. It is land speculation, but under the principle of recoupment you take a commercial risk: if there is gain, the benefit goes to the Board, that is the public funds; if there is loss, then there is a loss to the public funds. But what is betterment? It is a game of heads I win and tails you lose against the individual owner. You fix a price, in perpetuity, a continuous charge on the land, and it is all gain for the Corporation and loss to the other side; but here, Sir, as we are dealing with this particular clause, permit me to point out when you once say the land is not required you cannot acquire it, because you distinctly put it out of your power to acquire it. You declare that it is not needed for the purpose of the carrying out of your scheme, so that you cannot acquire, and what the Hon'ble Member in charge suggests is that he will hold out to the owner this threat—you either take this sum that we offer or leave it. Leave what? His own land which is not required for the purpose of the scheme and which cannot be acquired. I am only giving what the clause is, and in these circumstances where we have a section without the least indication of any principle as a guide, you will be coming to a conclusion as to the charge to be made without any guidance, depending on any principle. It cannot be recoupment unless you acquire before improvement and sell after, and you take your risk whether of gain or loss. The principle of recoupment, I repeat, cannot be applied under this clause.

I am endeavouring to limit myself to the issue, but it is impossible to do so in view of the discussion that has been proceeding. What I wish to say on this amendment is this—I do not by any means desire to prevent a friendly arrangement. On the other hand it is not fair to put the owner of the land which is not required for any purpose of an improvement scheme in the position that if he does not agree to your own terms you will take the land. It should at least be permitted to the owner to have an impartial person to decide the sum that is to be paid. Here there is nothing to indicate to the wretched owner whose land is threatened when it will not be required. In England, with regard to superfluous lands, the owner has the right to take it back again if, within a certain period stated in the Act, it has not been appropriated for a scheme. There is thus a time-limit fixed. Here no kind of limit is fixed, and he has got nothing to guide him. When the Board steps in and says that I require so much money and you must pay the amount we have fixed he has no kind of appeal with regard to the sum that is fixed or with regard to anything else. Therefore, I submit that it is advisable that there should be an impartial person brought in, in order to assist in this matter. With the rest I am not concerned now, but I submit that it would be unfair if the Board, who are masters of the situation and who are concerned on their own behalf, are allowed finally to fix the sum that has to be paid to the owner.

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

353A. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that for the words "a sum to be fixed by the Board in that behalf", in the last line of clause 67A (now 78) (1), the following be substituted, namely:—

a reasonable sum fixed by the Board according to its market value.

353B. If motion No. 353A be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that for the words "a sum to be fixed by the Board in that behalf", in the last line of clause 67A (now 78) (1), the following be substituted, namely:—

a sum equal to half the difference between the present value of the land and its prospective value.

355. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that at the end of clause 67A (1) the following be added, namely:—

such sum not exceeding half the amount of the increased value (if any) of the land.

He said:—

"Sir, I must frankly confess that when at this late hour of the day I rise to move my amendment, I do so with some degree of trepidation. I scan the faces of my friends behind and opposite. My friends opposite are no doubt supported by the approbation of their conscience in beating us down, and friends behind who have left their business naturally feel that, as amendment after amendment is lost, it is unnecessary to press these amendments. I cannot say that I myself do not share in that view. But at the same time I believe there is some object served in putting our views forward, however briefly, so that I may at least justify my position that the amendments that we have sent in were not sent without due and proper consideration and without some justification. Whether that justification appears to my colleagues to be sufficient or not is a matter for them to decide.

"Sir, this clause with which we are dealing, namely, the recoupment provision, is a very important feature of the whole measure; important in this way—it is important to the Trust for it saves a lot of expense, and important to us poor people because it makes it possible for us to save our ancestral dwellings. This provision essentially affects the poorer classes of the rate-payers and the residential owners of this city. As regards properties which are tenanted houses yielding large rents, there the question of valuation is not difficult; it does not matter whether you take or give up. I shall not repeat the argument that I used in reference to dwelling houses, but, as I said, we are not free agents and therefore we suggested that some independent person should intervene. That has been lost. Now the question arises as to what is the amount that a man has got to pay. My friend the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas says that it is a question of pure bargaining. There ought to be a principle, because so far as there is no principle it is a very unsafe thing to go on. A man who has got sufficient influence probably will save more than the poor man who has got no friends and no money and cannot secure friends to support him; so that in the interests of that very class whose interests I always know the Government places before every other interest, I submit that some principle ought to be laid down. But what is the principle upon which you are going to settle with the man who wants to keep his land. As a pure matter of bargaining? Is that fair? I am not a Municipal Commissioner and have been so many years, and therefore I do not speak from my own knowledge, except what I hear from many people, that a similar provision of the Municipal Act has not been very widely applied except recently. Even I did not know of it except in connection with a case in the High Court. The Hon'ble Mr. Payne will perhaps correct me if I am wrong. There was recently a case in one of the northern quarters of the city in which a gentleman named Babu Satish Chandra Mitter wanted to retain surplus lands. The municipality wanted from him Rs. 1,06,000 for permission to retain those lands. This gentleman went up from Rs. 50,000 to Rs. 75,000, while the municipality did not accept this offer, and I understand ultimately the Land Acquisition Collector awarded him Rs. 1,22,000 for the whole land including compensation, so that the real value of the land itself was a little over one lakh of rupees, and to retain this land which was his own property, by merely paying for betterment, he was required to pay practically its price, the land being his and you claiming the betterment. The abovenamed gentleman has, I believe, gone to the High Court. Poor men have complained to me, but I have told them that I am not a Municipal Commissioner and cannot intercede on their behalf, as I am quite powerless. We find that they are often made to pay heavily. There ought not to be a feeling of insecurity in the minds of the people. Deal with them fairly and justly upon a principle and they will not complain. You ought to say 'we will take so much,' but do not leave it to chance and to extraneous or outside influences. Wealthy men can often go up to a Court and place you before it to justify your action. Let that not be, and therefore I would ask you to adopt a principle. Well, am I wrong in making that submission that you should adopt a principle and act upon it? If we are agreed upon that proposition, and I believe my friends on the opposite side, who, I was assured yesterday, are quite prepared to vote independently and according to the best of their convictions, being high Government officials, will also agree that it is safest always to have a principle to go on. Well, Sir, the principle being admitted, the question is what ought to be the principle. If we follow a principle, what is the principle that we should adopt. I have suggested that let it be half the improved value. My friend opposite says that I have dragged in the question of betterment which does not find place in the scheme of our present measure. I quite admit that; betterment in the sense in which it is adopted in the English Act does not find place in our Bill, but I was only arguing from analogy. The analogy that I wanted to apply was this. Where they have got betterment, which means the same thing and which has been introduced for the same purpose as we are going to introduce namely, to reduce the cost of acquisition, we find the analogy that in the English Statutes they have adopted a certain principle. I say that unless strong reasons to the contrary are shown we should also adopt that principle. That principle, viz., of half has been invariably adopted through all the Acts that have been passed in England beginning from a very early date. I had made a note of all these Acts, but I cannot unfortunately find it now. If we take for instance the Manchester Corporation Act of 1904, we find in section 22 the same principle applied, viz., half. Then if we see the London Council Improvements Act, 1899, we find in section 61 the same principle adopted. Then, if we see the Tower Bridge Improvement Act, I believe it is an Act of 1897, sections 58 and 59, we find the same principle adopted. Then if we look to the Town Planning Act of 1909, an Act which has the latest say on the subject, there it says:—

(3) Where, by the making of any town planning scheme, any property is increased in value, the responsible authority, if they make a claim for the purpose within the time (if any) limited by the scheme (not being less than three months after the date when notice of the approval of the scheme is first published in the manner prescribed by regulations made by the Local Government Board), shall be entitled to recover from any person whose property is so increased in value one-half of the amount of that increase.

So I have got a very large body of opinion on my side. I have got first of all principle, secondly justice, and thirdly precedent. Precedent not of a single instance but of many instances, precedents not of one town but of many towns, precedent lately and lastly of the Town Planning Act which applies to the whole of England. If they there think it desirable to safeguard the people by laying down a principle, namely, that the betterment claim should not be more than half, why should we in this country place the poor house-owner entirely at the mercy of the Board, however well constituted the Board may be. Supposing I had not the remotest objection to that constitution, even then I would suggest that for the guidance of the Board itself some definite principle was necessary. I have said half; you may say you are entitled to the whole of the value of the increase. Well, if that strikes you as fair, take the whole. But let me know, so that I may not be driven into a corner, as I have said; I am not free agent, and you say that I am driving a bargain with you. What is your object. Your object is to keep down the costs as much as possible. You are a powerful body composed of official men.

I have placed the case from a humanitarian point of view. There is another object which my friend will admit as very important. As the section stands it does not confer a legal right upon any individual to retain his land. The language has been as confused as can be, and if we analyse it, I feel no hesitation in speaking in the presence of the Law officers of the Government that we come to the conclusion, at which every Court will arrive, that there is an implied right which can not be taken away. For those reasons I do humbly submit that the amendment, which I propose, namely, that you mill take from the owner not any money that you chose but the money fixed upon some principle, that principle being half the value of the enhancement that is brought about by an improvement, is one that should be adopted.

"Sir, I am afraid I must make some call on the attention of the Council because reference has been made to the English betterment system, and that is rather a technical matter. I wish members of this Council to clearly understand that the betterment system has not been adopted in framing this Bill, and therefore all references to it are out of place. The Bill has been before the public for a very long time, and, so far as I am aware, no recommendation was ever made that the principle of betterment should be incorporated in the Bill. The Hon'ble Member wishes us to adopt some system that will be favourable to the landowner whose land is to be taken for recoupment, and urges that we should not place him in a corner. But he is in a corner. The position is that Government has given the Board power to acquire land. And if the owner objects to that acquisition, no alternative which he accepts will be favourable to him. I think that the wording of the Calcutta Municipal Act has given a misleading idea of what that section really effects. When the section begins by saying that the owner may retain the land it looks as if a right to retain it is conferred upon him. But when the section is studied it will be seen that there is no such right and that the only right conferred by the section is the right to negotiate for the retention of the land at a sum to be fixed at its discretion by the General Committee. The wording of the clause as it stands in the Bill seems to me to give a more accurate idea of the rule than the section. The system of recoupment has been deliberately adopted in order that these improvements should be carried out as cheaply as possible, and at the least possible cost to the taxpayer. It is admitted on all hands that in some shape or other the owner of the land that is particularly benefited should contribute to the cost of the work. But if this amendment is adopted, it becomes a pure matter of chance as to how much recoupment is effected for the benefit of the public. If the land is acquired and sold again, the Trust secures the full benefit of the enhanced value, but under this amendment the owner may claim to pay to the Trust only one-half of the enhanced value. It will always be a matter of chance whether the various persons holding interests in a given piece of land can combine and come to an agreement with the Trust to stay the acquisition, or whether they will fail to do so. Then, again, the amount of recoupment on the whole is left to chance. This, I submit, is not a desirable system. I repeat that I have no doubt that if the Trust is willing to allow any land to be exempted from acquisition, it will be to the interest of the Trust to offer very reasonable terms to the landowner. The Trust thereby saves the expenses of the acquisition and the locking up of capital. He will also bear in mind that its estimate of the enhanced value is only an estimate and not absolutely to be relied on. I have stated before that the only possible method seems to me to be to allow the parties to to arrive at a sum, which is satisfactory to them, by negotiations. I do not think that the law can speak of half the enhanced value of the land when that enhanced value is purely a matter of estimate. The system under which the amount of money to be recovered is settled some time after the improvement has taken effect is, as I have said before, not the system embodied in this Bill, and is not a system which has hitherto been advocated as applicable to Calcutta. It seems to me therefore useless to speak of the enhanced value or half the enhanced value as a fixed and definite sum when it is purely a matter of guess, that is to say, no matter for negotiation."

"Sir, I am in entire agreement with the principle that, if land is benefited by the action of a public body, the owner should have to pay for any benefit that he derives from the improvement, and it is because I am in sympathy with that principle, that I support my friend's motion, for it seems to me, Sir, that the clause, as it is framed and in view of the declarations the Hon'ble Member has made, it is either the principle which is now offered or the Board will not get anything at all. Certainly, there can be no question of recoupment under this clause, and as to betterment, the principle of it is offered by my Hon'ble friend's amendment. The Hon'ble Member has referred to the action taken by the Corporation, but in the arrangements that are made under section 357 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, in practice it is betterment, pure and simple; it is the benefit that is derived by the improvement that the Corporation take from the owner. And their methods are regarded as being of a very exacting character. If the Hon'ble Member has been depending on the action that has been taken under section 357 of the Municipal Act, as precedents, I would remind him that there has been no case that has been carried to a conclusion in a court of law under that Act that I am aware of, and I warn him that it is dangerous to rely on an action by our Corporation as a precedent here of the character he foreshadows. With regard to betterment, it is always a matter which is dependent on speculation as to the price to be fixed. It depends on the prophetic capacity of the assessor or arbitrator, but there is no principle of betterment defined in the clause. In accepting this amendment, there will at least be some principle introduced. The Hon'ble Member has misconceived the whole question if he thinks that recoupment can be adopted under this clause. The Hon'ble Member himself has recognised that where there has not been any express sanction of betterment, that principle cannot be adopted. Betterment was recognised in 1895, and it was only lately, in 1909, that it was incorporated, for the first time, in an Act of general application. But there have been many local Acts. At the time when a Committee of the House of Lords recognised the principle of betterment, the Acts of 1895, to which my Hon'ble friend has referred, the London County Council Act and the Manchester Act, were before Parliament, and the sections, to which my friend has referred, were taken as model sections which have been incorporated over and over again in local Acts, and so far from betterment having been a failure as the Hon'ble Member in charge has assumed, it is remarkable that it should have been adopted in the general Town Planning Act of 1909."

"So that it is nothing new. It is what has been adopted in the Town Planning Act of Mr. John Burns, and I think, Sir, on my part, that it would be advisable if this is accepted."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"Sir, I would only say a few words in reply. My friend says that the English system has not been adopted. All that I wanted was to argue by analogy. He says how are we to fix not knowing what time would be allowed. Well, in England also, these are more or less hypothetical questions. If my friend had the will, I am quite sure he would have the way to solve the difficulty, for the English Act makes special provision as to time which is fixed by the scheme, up to the extent of three years. It is between 12 months and 3 years and probably more. I do not ask you to enter into negotiations with these people as soon as you begin operations. You have got an area marked out for acquisition. First of all, you acquire lands required for the carrying out of the scheme. This scheme refers to portions which you do not need. What is there to prevent you from securing them or dealing with them after the improvement has been carried out, so I say, if you have the will you will surely find the requisite way. There, in England, they have got a time limit. You can have a time limit fixed and it does you no injury, because it is not required for the purpose of an improvement immediately. There are excess lands on the border which you may acquire or may not acquire and, therefore, when my friend thinks of that difficulty, I believe he must feel that the force of the difficulty may be easily removed. Then he raises another difficulty that there may be extravagant landlords and long leaseholders. Under our law all the interested holders must combine to apply. If they do not, there they go. They will go under the present law and they will go under the future system that we may adopt. Therefore I do not see what the real difficulty is. My friend has been good enough to say that he would welcome a principle. If he is willing to accept a principle, he has suggested three difficulties. The three difficulties are, first, that the increment is not known ; secondly, that no period is fixed ; and thirdly, that we must deal with 16 annas shareholders. Well, in the first place, with the law as it is, you won't take from the land the whole value of his land. Supposing a land is worth Rs. 10,000. You will have to pay Rs. 10,000 to acquire that land. I will not speak of incidental expenses. Well, from A you buy the land for Rs. 10,000, and then you calculate how much, after improvement has been effected, you will be able to recover. You think that you will be able to recover Rs. 15,000. Then the difference is of Rs. 5,000. You then ask now much of this Rs. 5,000 the party is prepared to pay,—that is your present position. You will take from me if I was the party, something which is a margin of improvement—difference of the present value and the future value. My friend opposite will have to deal with hypothetical claims even under his present scheme. So there is really no difficulty. He may wait, because my property is not immediately required. Then, my friend admits that he would prefer as much as anybody that there should be some guiding principle which both parties should follow. Now that we have come to this, what I want to ask is, what is the difference between the present value and the hypothetical value, not the whole difference, because I contribute as the owner and you contribute as the carrier of the improvements. I say let it be half—why half, because that has been the standard in your own country, and if it has worked well there, why should it not work well in my country. I do not think that I have made any extravagant claim, nor have I put forward anything which my friend will have to reject, because, after all, it will create confidence in your Board and it will ultimately do much good to the people. I would, therefore, respectfully urge upon official members to let the consideration of this stand over and to think over the suggestions that we have made as to why it should not be adopted, seeing that the principle is the standard in the English Acts. There is, my friend would admit, if he was not the member in charge, that there will be great scope for abuse. I do not mean to say that there will be abuse, but there may be abuse and why should they not be prevented?"

356. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that at the end of clause 67A(1) the following be added, namely:—

"such sum not exceeding the amount of the increased value (if any) of the land."

He said:—

"Sir, I have now come to my last ditch. I feel that I am bound to be defeated, but I am stepping back step after step. I wanted to have it laid down that it should not exceed half. Well, I will go further to ask that it should not exceed the whole of the difference. You may take the whole of the difference, but do it upon a principle. The limitation I seek to place upon you is that you can take the value of the whole of the improvement, to which I have not contributed except by being the holder of the land. In this connection I may read to my friend a passage from the latest report of the London County Council which will show that we are practically building our hopes on sand. About the benefits that we are likely to receive from recoupment they say:—

> In considering the cost of any large public improvement, regard must be had to the fact that usually a considerable sum is obtained by sale of surplus land after the completion of the new street. It has been popularly supposed that the Board might frequently have been in a position to repay the whole or at least a large portion of the cost of an improvement by acquiring more property than was actually needed for constructing a new street or widening an existing thoroughfare, the large valuable sites fronting the improvement being sold upon the completion of the works. Experience proved, however, that the sums realised by the re-sale of property did not equal the amounts paid.

So that we have got the experience of London embodied in its former report, showing the effects of the various improvements, the various big roads, and they say that they have not benefited by the recoupment process, in fact, they have lost having realised less than they paid for. I am only placing this before the Council in order to show that all that glitters is not gold, and that our imagination may play tricks with us and that experience is after all the best guide. It is a sorry nag, but reliable. Therefore, I say, having regard to the experience of London and also to what my friends have said, that some principle is better. What more can you expect—take the whole prospective valuable improvement. Surely you cannot object to that. I am now offering the price for which I may retain my ancestral house. Take from me the whole of the difference, in case you are determined; but do not take more. Am I wrong or unfair? I hope, Sir, that this will appeal to my hon'ble friend."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I am glad that the Hon'ble Member has moved this amendment, as I wish to make some remarks on his reply to the former amendment. I am glad to do so because very often new points are raised by Members in their reply which I have no opportunity of dealing with, and I am always anxious to explain my position as clearly as possible and to meet any objections that are brought against me. My answer to the case about the Trust anticipating a probable increase in value of five thousand rupees and to the question how much of that five thousand repees I am going to accept, is that I cannot give him half of my estimate because the owner will not accept my estimate. We are dealing with probable increase, and you cannot lay down hard and fast rule about it. Nor could the tribunal or the Collector come to a satisfactory conclusion about probabilities; they can decide on facts and values; their guesses as to the future would not command respect. I do not know very much about business, but I understand that people buy jute in July for delivery in December, both the buyers and sellers agreeing to a price which they think will be the price ruling in December. But it is impossible to lay down any rule which will help them to decide at once the price of jute in December; they must act on their own opinion of the probabilities and stand to lose if their opinion is wrong. The case of land which it is proposed to acquire under an Improvement scheme is precisely similar.

"The suggestion of the Hon'ble Member that you should decide whether you can come to terms after the work is complete is not practical. You do nothing when the declaration is made that the land should be acquired. You simply say it is wanted for betterment. You wait till the improvement has brought its whole effect, and then you say, 'Now, what about this land which you want to retain.' Probably the man will say, 'I do not want to retain it now.' But who can then decide on the original value of the land, and with what feelings would the owner receive, say, Rs. 1,000 for land worth Rs. 5,000 as it stands. The system in England, which the Hon'ble Member has cited, is different. For one thing land never comes under acquisition there. My objection to this amendment is that everybody is in a position to guess as to what the increased value of the land may be. They must be left to negotiate it between themselves."

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, I will not detain this Council at any length, but I feel it is fruitless. But still arguments should not go unchallenged. My friend, the Hon'ble Member in charge, says that he has no business experience, and that he cannot in the same way forecast, as business people do, the value of jute in December. The fact that the value of jute in December is forecasted shows that men in business know how to form an estimate of the prospective value of a commodity. I should be very sorry if any property rested on the same foundations upon which the quicksilver trade in jute rests. This is only a matter of illustration that serves to prove my case, that people who want to come to terms upon the future value of a commodity can easily do so by looking at the various data which are available to them at the present moment. My friend raises another point as to how are you to decide what was the value at the date of declaration, if the party, after the improvement is carried out, does not seek to retain the land. Such a contingency is not probable, but if it arose, nothing would be easier to determine, for all your neighbouring lands required for the improvement have been paid for on the basis of the price ascertained at the time of the declaration, and that would be the price which the party will get if he does not desire to retain. My friend knows, as he has had to deal with a large number of land acquisition cases, that the value is not of the time of the acquisition, but of the time of the declaration. Consequently, you have got to go back to the declaration. You have got the value at the time of the declaration and you have got the actual value after your improvement. What more do you want? You have got all the materials which will assist you in fixing the value for the retention. Of course, my friend's attitude of resistance I cannot unfortunately overcome."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

Clause 67A (now 78) (2).

357. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that for lines 1 to 6 of clause 67A (now 78) (2) the following be substituted, namely:—

(2) No application for such retention shall be entertained unless it—

(a) is made before the time fixed by the Collector under section 9 of the Land Acquisition Act, 1994, for making claims in reference to the land, or within such further time as may be allowed by the Board, and

358. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move—

(1) that the word "may" be substituted for the words "shall not be bound to," in line 1 of clause 67A (now 78) (2),

(2) that the words "does not reach" be substituted for the word "reaches," in line 1 of clause 67A (now 78) (2) (a), and

(3) that the word "not" be inserted after the word "is," in line 1 of clause 67A (now 78) (2) (b).

Clause 67A (now 78) (1).

At this point it was arranged that the further consideration of Motion No. 350 (entered above) should be resumed on Monday, the 21st August, 1911.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

359. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause 67A (now 78) (2) (a) be omitted.

360. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "or assented to" be inserted after the words "is made by," in line 1 of clause 67A (now 78) (2) (b).

He said :—

"Sir, what the section here makes it imperative is that the application must be made by all the persons who have interests in the land. I quite agree with the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill that unless the whole of the outstanding interest in the property is before the Trust it would not be possible to deal with the matter satisfactorily. But it may be that in the case of a large undivided family, for example, all the members may not be in a position to accede to the requisition of the Trust—the limitless requisition as it now appears and try to retain the property. But some shareholders may be sentimental enough or foolish enough to try to do this and may secure the consent of others. For that reason I want to provide against the application being altogether incapable of entertainment."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"It is merely a question of filing of objections and not of negotiations."

The HON'BLE BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"Even the application would be difficult, as people who do not care for purchase or retention will not interest themselves or move in the matter, but it is conceivable that the one person who is anxious may be able to get the consent of the others, who, under other circumstances, would be necessarily outstanding. All that I press for is that if he can secure the consent of those who do not wish to come forward, the application may be entertained, and I think that no harm can be done. Of course, in the larger case where the application is by all parties it would no doubt be preferable to have the application for compensation consented to by all."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I do not think it is at all necessary. I really think it is a very simple matter. If there is an application put in by certain persons and before the expiry of the period of limitation other persons join the first applicant, it seems to me that all their applications are to be complied with. But if only one or two shareholders apply it is waste of time to negotiate with them, on the mere chance that others may join them subsequently. I resist this amendment.

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

361. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the words "is made by all or a majority of the persons" be substituted for the words "is made by all persons", in line 1 of clause 67A (now 78) (2) (b).

Clause 67A (now 78) (3).

362. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that for the words "If the Board decide to admit any such application, they", in lines 1 and 2 of clause 67A (now 78) (3), the following be substituted, namely:—

Upon such application being made, the Board

363. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that the words "decide to", in line 1 of clause 67A (now 78) (3), be omitted.

In the absence of the mover, the following motion was not put:—

363A. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the word "receive" be substituted for the words "decide to admit", in line 1 of clause 67A (now 78) (3).

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

364. If Motion No. 352 be carried, the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that the words "the Board", in lines 4 and 5 of clause 67A (now 78) (3), be omitted.

365. If Motion No. 351 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the word "Tribunal" be substituted for the word "Board", in line 5 of clause 67A (now 78) (3).

366. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that after the word "sum", in line 5 of clause 67A (now 78) (3), the following be inserted, namely:—

(which shall not exceed one-half of the increase in the value of the property).

In the absence of the mover, the following motion was not put:—

367. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that after the word "sum", in line 5 of clause 67A (now 78) (3), the following be inserted, namely:—

(not exceeding one-half of the probable increase in the value of the property).

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

368. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that after the word "sum", in line 5 of clause 67A (now 78) (3), the following be inserted, namely:—

(being not more than half the estimated excess value of the land due to the improvement).

The discussion on the following motion was postponed:—

369. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "the land may be retained" be substituted for the words "the acquisition of the land may be abandoned", in the last line of clause 67A (now 78) (3).

Clause 67A (now 78), new sub-clause (3a).

370. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that after clause 67A (3) the following be inserted, namely:—

(3a) In case of any difference between the owner or other person as aforesaid as to the sum to be paid, the same shall be fixed by the Tribunal on a reference being made to it by him.

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"My grounds for objecting to this amendment are the same which I put foward previously against the amendment suggesting an application to the Tribunal."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

371. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that after sub-clause (3) of clause 67A (now 78) the following be inserted, namely:—

(3a) If any question or dispute arises as to the sufficiency of any sum fixed under sub-section (3), it may be referred to the Tribunal, within a period of one month from the fixing of such sum.

Clause 67A (now 78) (4).

372. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "for forty years" be substituted for the words "in perpetuity", in line 3 of clause 67A (now 78) (4) (b).

He said:—

"Sir, what is provided in this clause is that the sum outstanding as a charge on an interest in the land subject to the payment in perpetuity of interest at such rate not less than 4 per cent. per annum as may be fixed by the Board shall be left. At that rate the value of land would be what no actuarial calculation would be able to arrive at. We desire to have fixed definitely a certain number of years' purchase for the purpose of determining the value. You are laying it down that the rate of interest shall not be less than 4 per cent., and taking it at that I suggest that if you take that interest for 40 years, more than the value of the land will be covered, making allowance even for the intermediate interest. Payment of that interest in perpetuity would make the land immensely and disproportionately valuable, although, having regard to the sentiments and reasons that have been lengthily dilated upon, people may be obliged to assent to any terms. There ought to be a limit to the demands that will be made upon those who are anxious to retain their property. I, therefore, suggest that the limit of a period of years should be accepted."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I resist this amendment. We now come to the payment part of the negotiations. The owner of a piece of land has agreed on a sum with the Board on the payment of which the Board will abandon the acquisition of the land. As a further concession to him the Board may allow that sum to remain outstanding as a charge on the land subject to his paying interest and in perpetuity.

This is simply a concession to the landowner: he may pay cash down: if he can borrow the money in the open market or from a friend on better terms than are offered by the Board, he is at liberty to do so: and he can pay off the Board's charge at any moment. There is nothing compulsory about this: he can accept the Board's terms if, as they probably would be, they were the most favourable that he could obtain.

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, I believe my friend who has moved this amendment has not sufficiently considered sub-clause (8) of clause 67A (now 78) which provides that at any time after an agreement has been executed any person may pay off the charge created thereby with interest at the rate specified in the agreement. There is no hardship on the owner as he has the liberty to pay off at any time he likes."

The motion was then put and lost.

373. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "not more than" be substituted for the words "not less than", in lines 3 and 4 of clause 67A (now 78) (4) (b).

He said:—

"Sir, I hope I shall be able to finish within the space of time allotted and that our mufassil Members will not complain that they have been detained longer, though I can assure them that if we are pushed to a pinch I can stay here the whole night and would like them to do the same.

I now ask the attention of the Council to my amendment particularly. There are two alternatives which this retention clause provides, one is that it allows the owners to pay off what is demanded by the Board, the other is that when a poor house-holder cannot pay off the Board is to fix it as a charge."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Will the Hon'ble Member be satisfied if the words 'at the rate of four per cent.' be substituted for the words 'not less than four per cent.' This will also necessitate a consequential amendment in sub-clause (a).

His motion would, therefore, run—

(1) that the words 'the rate of' be substituted for the words 'such rate, not less than', in lines 3 and 4 of clause 67A (now 78) (4) (b), and

(2) that the words 'as may be fixed by the Board', in lines 4 and 5 of the same clause, be omitted."

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Yes, Sir, I accept that and move the amendment in its altered form.

The motion was put in the altered form and agreed to.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

374. If Motion No. 352 be carried, the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that the words "by the Collector" be inserted after the words "so fixed", in line 5 of clause 67A (now 78) (4).

Clause 67A (now 78) (5).

375. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "be deemed to be" be inserted after the word "shall", in the last line of clause 67A (now 78) (5).

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I would accept it."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

Clause 67A (now 78) (6).

376. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause 67A (now 78) (6) be omitted.

Clause 67A (now 78) (7).

377. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "the balance of" be inserted before the words "the sum fixed" in line 3 of clause 67A (now 78) (7).

378. If Motion No. 351 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the word "Tribunal" be substituted for the word "Board" in line 4 of clause 67A (now 78) (7).

379. If Motion No. 377 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "after deducting the amount already received" be substituted for the words "in addition to the said instalment" at the end of clause 67A (now 78) (7).

Clause 67A (now 78) (8).

380. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "the balance of" be inserted before the words "the charge" in line 3 of clause 67A (now 78) (8).

Clause 67A (now 78) (9).

381. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that clause 67A (now 78) (9) be omitted.

He said:—

"Sir, I must honestly confess that as such a long time has elapsed, I really forget why I sent notice of this amendment. I would, therefore, withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

382. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that clause 67A (now 78) 9) be omitted.

383. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that clause 67A (now 78) (9) be omitted.

He said:—

"Sir, I am not exactly in the position of the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu. He has forgotten what the meaning of the clause is which he seeks to amend, and I have never understood the object of that sub-clause (9). If the Hon'ble Member in charge is good enough to explain the object of this clause, I may be able to see my way to withdraw my amendment."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, the object of the sub-clause is to safeguard the interests of the Board. The Board after satisfying itself enters into agreement with one person. And then another person turns up and says, 'what right have you to enter into this agreement with him? I want the land acquired' To guard against such possibilities we inserted this clause in the Select Committee. It is not desirable that the Board should always be litigating over such things."

The HON'BLE BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir, I am glad to hear of my friend's explanation, but it does not convince me because, having regard to what has preceded, such a contingency as has been referred to by the Hon'ble Member cannot arise unless all the parties affected have been before the Board. This thing can never happen, and therefore it seems to me objectless for the motion I have moved. I accordingly move my amendment."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I resist it not only for the benefit of the Trust, but also of the people with whom it deals. The Hon'ble Member and his friends are anxious that the fullest advantage should be taken of the provisions of this clause: but to insure this the Board must be put in as strong a position as possible. If the Board is liable to be constantly sued by some aggrieved co-sharer to have these agreements set aside then it will be very shy of entering into such agreements. The sub-clause as it stands will enable fuller use to be made of this procedure for exempting lands from acquisition.

The motion was then put and lost.

The Council was then adjourned to Monday, the 21st August, 1911, at 11 A.M.

THE CALCUTTA IMPROVEMENT BILL, 1911.

Clause 37.

217. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that the words "if satisfied as to the truth thereof and as to the sufficiency of their resources" be inserted after the word "and", in line 2 of clause 37 [now 38) (1).

218. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "if satisfied as to the truth thereof and as to the sufficiency of their resources" be inserted after the word "and", in line 2 of clause 37 (now 38) (1).]

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, may I suggest that we go back to the two clauses that have been left over? The first is clause 37 now 38), amendments 217 and 218 (as above). I think the latter was actually moved. And I am prepared to accept it."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"I suppose it was actually moved."

The HON'BLE MR. WHEELER said:—

"Yes, and that covers No. 217."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

Clause 67A (now 78) (1).

350. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "may retain the land" be substituted for the words "may make an application to the Board, requesting that the acquisition of the land should be abandoned", in lines 5 to 7 of clause 67A (now 78) (1).

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"This amendment also stood over from Saturday. When the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu was going to move it, I said that motion No. 358 was more desirable in form than motion No. 350. But as I understand that the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar has withdrawn it, I am prepared, with your permission, to move that amendment which is more desirable than the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu's. This would mean not that the applicant shall have a right to retain his land, but that he shall have a right to have his application considered by the Board. As the clause stands it might be said that the Board was not bound in any way. If that is not the idea of the Hon'ble Member, then I will move this amendment."

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, so far as our side is concerned I will only say that we do not consider it as enough, but we will accept what we get."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"It will be necessary in the first instance for the original amendment to be put and lost."

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, I think it will be better if it is put and lost."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 67A (now 78) (2).

The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, with the permission of the President, moved that the words "The Board shall admit every such application if it" be substituted for the words "The Board shall not be bound to admit any such application unless it" at the beginning of clause 67A (now 78) (2).

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clasc 67 (now 78) (3).

The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, with the permission of the President, moved that the words "of four per cent. per annum" be substituted for the words "specified in the agreement" in line 4 of clause 67 (now 78) (3)."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Is that necessary, because 4 per cent. will be specified in the agreement?"

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"That may be, but there is now no option as to the rate, and it will be less ambiguous to mention the rate."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

Clause 67A (now 78), new sub-clauses (9a), (9b).

384. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that at the end of clause 67A (now 78) the following be added, namely:—

"(9a) When an agreement has been executed in pursuance of sub-section (4) in respect of any land in an area comprised in an improvement scheme, the owner or lessee of the land may, at any time within the period of three years from the date of the agreement, send to the Collector written notice stating that substantial and permanent decrease in the value of the land, to an amount specified in the notice, has been caused by the improvement scheme, and that he claims that such alleged decrease shall be considered by the Collector.

(9b) If the Collector is satisfied that such a decrease has taken place and has been caused by the improvement scheme, such owner or lessee shall be entitled to have the amount of such decrease, as determined by the Collector, deducted from the sum payable by him under the said agreement."

He said :—

"I move, Sir, that if within a period of three years from the date of agreement, the party with whom the agreement has been made sends to the Collector a written notice stating that substantial and permanent decrease in the value of the land to an amount specified in the notice has been caused by the improvement scheme, and he can satisfy the Collector that a decrease has taken place owing to the improvement scheme, then he shall be entitled to deduct such amount as the Collector may determine, from the sum payable under the agreement made with the Board. Sir, in the very qualified and restricted character of this proposal I think that I should have some sympathy from the Hon'ble Member in charge. I do not know whether he is going to accept this. Well, Sir, the three years is fixed for this reason. It has been objected that, in the operations of the Calcutta Municipality, an improvement charge is exacted and payment is made before the party concerned has received any benefit from an improvement, and therefore a margin of three years is given under this clause to the person who is interested, and I suggest that, before payment is made, if there has been a change in the conditions of locality, he should not be made to pay the sum that was agreed upon in the belief that a real improvement would be effected. Sir, we cannot expect that every scheme or plan that has been agreed to will be carried out rigidly in its entirety. It may be that for greater convenience, or on account of the cost being less, the curve of a main thoroughfare or the junction of some side street is altered, or even the frontage may be changed. This may make a great difference in the position of the land which is affected by the agreement, and it may result in a material reduction in the value. And if this land has changed hands, there will then be a difference created, because the party who has purchased having purchased in the belief that the land will be benefited as shown in the original scheme; if he suffers damage, he will be able to sue the Board for the difference that has been made. I am not giving this illustration merely as a hypothetical instance: the case has actually occurred, and where there has been a change of frontage the party who has purchased has been able to recover from the public body concerned heavy damages owing to the difference that was made in the value of the property. Sir, when there is a difference made in the values, or when there is a change made in the conditions under which the agreement has been entered into before the payment is made, surely there is some consideration due, or is the Board really going to exact, when the conditions have become wholly different, the sum that they fixed to be the improvement charge? The Hon'ble Member says that he will not have anything to do with betterment. On two occasions in the House of Lords, the Duke of Argyle said that betterment was an absurd, foreign, and vulgar word. Is it because the Hon'ble Member is a purist in the language that he objects to the word 'betterment' and he says he will not have anything to do with it? Call it, Sir, 'improvement charge' or 'betterment'; it is the same thing, and here under this clause distinctly it is an improvement charge that is intended to be exacted from the person who retains his land, although there is no authority for it in the Bill, and the intention is even disclaimed by the Hon'ble Member in charge. If the value is shown, as I have indicated, not casually asserted, but with specific notice given to have decreased in value owing to the improvement scheme, and when there is a substantial and real difference, is the Board really going to exact this sum from him? It seems to me that the exactions of the landlord, of which we hear so much, will pale before exactions of the Board. When you are able to show that there has been this change, that the man with whom the Board has entered into an agreement under conditions which have changed, and that he has suffered this difference price and value of his land, is he not to be allowed any difference at all? When there has been a change in value in perpetuity made, it is unfair to the owner to decrease the capital value of his land, and still not to give him any recompense."

"Sir, I said on Saturday that I preferred to oppose the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar's amendments on the ground that the Bill is already so framed as to attain the object he has in view. But I cannot give him that answer to this amendment. In this amendment he wants me to play with him a game of heads-I-win-tails-you-lose. But I cannot play it. His idea is that after terms have been settled with an owner and a sum fixed as the sum on which the Board shall abstain from acquiring his land—three years afterwards, the owner shall have a right to appear and claim compensation for any decrease in value of his land. But nothing is said about the Board also having that right to claim any sum for any unforeseen increase in the value of the land after three years. If the Board alters the scheme in view of which an agreement has been made, I have no doubt that the agreement would be voidable. But apart from going into the merits of the case, I would point out to him that his amendment does not attain the object which he seeks; therefore on that ground alone I cannot recommend that it should be added to this Bill. The amendment as it stands only covers the case where the owner and the Board have come to an agreement in view of an increase in the value of the land which both sides anticipate, but in the event the land declines in value instead of rising, such a case must be so rare as to be scarcely worth legislating for. It is scarcely conceivable that is should occur.

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"The Hon'ble Member apparently desires to have a monopoly of the game which he says he will not play with me, namely, heads-I-win-and-tails-you-lose. Whenever this game is an improvement charge it is all for the benefit of the Board. But it is different, as I have said, when there is a principle of recoupment, that is, where the Board takes a commercial risk. Here it is all and entirely in favour of the Board, and as for the Hon'ble Member's tenderness on my behalf, if the amendment will not achieve the object I have in view, I will take that risk. Then the Hon'ble Member seems to think that whenever there is an improvement scheme undertaken, it is inevitable that there will be benefit to the locality. If you refer to street schemes in London, certainly up to comparatively a later date, with the exception of one single street scheme, that is the Northumberland Avenue, there was a loss, and even when there was a question of recoupment the London County Council have said:—'It must not be supposed that when there has been an improvement scheme necessarily there will be a benefit.' After all, what is it with regard to which the Hon'ble Member declines to play the game of heads-I-win-and-tails-you-lose? If the Hon'ble Member desires it, it is open to him to offer as a compromise that the Board should also have the advantage of any loss of this character. If the Hon'ble Member desires, it is open to him, and he will be, I understand, in order to move for the insertion of a provision to that effect. With regard to this particular loss which might ensue we should be clear what it is. I do not here refer to the value of the land, because we are only dealing with improvement charge. The improvement charge will be properly assessed, say, at Rs. 20,000. You may find that it is decreased to nothing at all, or it may fall to Rs. 5,000. Here what is put forward is that it must be a substantial change, which must be specified, and the difference is only with reference to the amount of improvement or benefit, and not in the value of the property about which I now suggest an amendment. I submit that my proposal has not really been met, and I ask that it be put to the vote."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 67B (now 79).

385. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that clause 67B (now 79) be omitted.

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"I am aware that the clause is based on section 357 of the Municipal Act, and most of its words have been borrowed from the Act. In the first instance the procedure suggested by the clause is that the amount remaining outstanding should be recovered in the manner provided in the Municipal Act for the recovery of consolidated rates. That is ordinarily by distraint. But there are circumstances and cases under which it is necessary to go to the Small Cause Court for the purpose of recovering the amount. Therefore the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts in the matter of the larger or more intricate claims is not ousted. This clause would be without trouble or difficulty applicable, I take it, only with regard to the smaller cases—cases where distraint would possibly be the more effective method. Considering, however, the very large number of cases and the considerably large amounts that will be generally involved, it seems to be open to grave doubt as to whether the machinery of judicial tribunal for the purpose of realizing dues, such as every subject is obliged to go through, should be departed from or not. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar, in moving the previous amendment, referred to the powers of the Trust being of a kind compared with which the powers of the landlord are very insignificant. No landlord would have the power of judging what the tenant would have to pay him and of taking steps for the recovery of these amounts; he would be debarred from being the Judge and the Executing officer in his own case, certainly in these days, whatever may have been the case in the olden days when the lime-godown and the other familiar machinery were known. Here we have a Trust constituting itself as the Court or as an Arbitrator, as some would prefer to put it, for the purpose of assessing a variety of things and taking power to realize, on the analogy of the Municipal Act, which is no doubt a weak point in my position. What the Municipal Act, however, confers on the Municipality in the case of a number of proceedings involved is comparatively small, and so is the amount. That would not be the case with regard to the Trust, and where such large amounts are at stake and so many proceedings are sure to arise, it is desirable therefore that the ordinary machinery of the law should subsist. This is practically introducing what may be called the certificate procedure without its known safeguards with regard to property in Calcutta. We have the alternative in second paragraph of clause 67B (now 79) where the amount concerned is not recovered under the distress proceedings. The President may, after giving public notice of his intention to do so, sell the interest of the person concerned by public auction, and may deduct the money and the expenses from the proceeds of the sale and shall pay the balance to the defaulter. I confess, Sir, that I do not quite follow what is intended to be done there. So far as the Municipal Act is concerned, whatever the consequences may be, the meaning is fairly clear. As things stand under the Municipal Act, if the amount due is not recovered under section 357, sub-clause (3), the Chairman may enter upon the land and sell the same with erections standing thereon by public auction, and so forth The land concerned is the clear objective of the sale there. I take it, Sir, that that is also the objective of the framers of this part of the clause. But we, who are accustomed to read words strictly and to construe them still more strictly, feel it our duty to bring it to the notice of the Council that no such objective is specifically indicated in that sub-clause. What is the President to sell—sell the interest of the said person or successor—in what? If it is intended, as I suppose it is intended, that his interest in the land concerned should be sold, it should be made clear. If, however, we were to let things stand as they are, the Trust itself would not have a very easy work of it and would not know what to sell. What are they going to bring to sale—the interest a man may have generally in all earthly properties that he may be possessed of? No Court of law would allow such an indefinite objection. I take it, therefore, that they mean to sell a man's interest in the land concerned. I know, Sir, that the greater the indefiniteness and the cloud attaching to any law that may be passed, the better for a certain class of people amongst whom I rank, and we for one ought not to quarrel with ambiguities and incertitude of law. That, however, does not stand in my way to do what I conceive to be my duty as a Member of the Legislature and in trying to have cleared all possible doubts. That was one reason why in spite of the prospective gain to my profession I felt bound to draw the attention of the Legislature to this glaring defect which has been allowed to stand. But even if the matter was cleared up, as I have no doubt it will be cleared, even then I would have very strong objection to adopting what was adopted in the Municipal Act in view of the small number of cases that would come before the General Committee under that section and the comparatively small amounts concerned I do not know, Sir, for I have not the facts and figures before me as to how far this section of the Municipal Act has been given effect to. I must confess I have not heard that it has acted prejudicially to the ratepayer's interest possibly because there have been few or no cases under that section in which the Municipality has taken upon itself the onerous and risky responsibility of selling land without the intervention of the Courts; but we cannot flatter ourselves that equally easy will be the case in connection with clause 67B (now 79) of the present Bill. The number of cases will be here large; the amounts involved will be larger. We shall not at the same time have the safeguards of the certificate procedure which is practically attempted to be incorporated in this clause without its manifest or known safeguard. Under these circumstances I submit, Sir, that the ordinary machinery of the law by which every creditor realizes his due, whether through the Small Cause Court or through the High Court, as the case may be, ought to be the remedy left to the Trust. It ought not to be the judge in its own case and also the agency for execution of decrees in its own case. We know what tremendous difficulties arise sometimes in execution proceedings which cannot be lightly brushed aside. Important questions often arise, and these can never be dealt with by the Trust. Litigation cannot be stopped if anything wrong is done, and the aid of the Court will be invoked. Therefore it is best that the ordinary and orthodox machinery of the land should be allowed to do its duty."

"Sir, I do not think that, apart from the technical difficulty into which I do not wish to enter, the provisions that we have now got entail any real hardship upon the people. In the first place I must say that we are thankful to Government for having given us this privilege of being able to retain the land; that is a provision which does not occur in the Bombay Act. Day before yesterday I was trying to provide certain safeguards, but I have failed in my efforts; that, however, is another matter. The conditions under which a man is allowed to retain his land are these:—'He may either pay the money in three years, or he may never pay the money and consent to a rent charge, but in that case if he consents to a rent charge of 4 per cent., he has got the privilege under sub-clause 8 of clause 67A (now 78) at any time to pay off, so that if he finds that he will not be able to pay off in three years he can easily enter into an arrangement with the Board that he will pay interest at 4 per cent. upon the amount fixed by the Board, and then at any time thereafter he is at liberty to pay off with all the arrears; therefore the party who enters into the arrangements, if he knows what he is about, does not suffer any real hardship.' Then comes the question of clause 67B (now 79) which, I apprehend, applies to those cases in which the party enters into an agreement to pay within three years. I quite sympathise with my friend when he says that the ordinary procedure of the Law Court should not be lightly set aside, and we may be faced by difficulties which we do not anticipate on the present occasion. What will be naturally recovered will be heavy amounts, and probably the procedure of distraint will not be enough, because in the case of a man of moderate means where the charge upon the house is Rs. 5,000, it is hardly to be believed that the man will have sufficient movable property in the house to enable the Board to realize the money. At the same time, Sir, I feel that it is hardly fair to the Trust to put it in the position of going to a Court of Law bringing a suit and going through all the various stages in order to bring the property to sale. The clause, as it is framed, seems to me, however, open to some objection. I had not considered that in the Select Committee. It says: 'The same shall be recoverable by the Board in the manner provided by the Calcutta Municipal Act,' so that when a man fails to pay he makes it compulsory upon the Board to proceed by distraint. In many cases the Board may be satisfied that such procedure will be useless, and the Board will have to proceed under the second clause, but it cannot proceed under the second clause until it has applied the first clause, namely, until it has sold his movable property, so I think it would be more desirable if we make the first clause an optional clause with the Board. In the case of a rich man from whom the money may be realized, the Board may proceed against him and sell his movable property. I think it would be an advantage that instead of proceeding to sell the land or the house the Board should in the first place proceed by distraint. It would probably be better if it was left entirely to the discretion of the Board as to whether it should proceed by distraint of movables or sale of the immovable property. In that case it would leave it open to the Board to satisfy itself as to whether—under all the circumstances which would be the better course—to proceed to sell the immovable property or to sell movables found in the property. If it thinks it will not do to proceed by distraint and will unnecessarily be a harassing procedure, it will proceed to sell the immovable property, but the section, as now framed, I believe, precludes the Board from selling the land until in the first place it has sold the movables. But as regards my friend's fear that the people will suffer unnecessarily if this power is allowed to the Board, I do not share in them, and when the Board executes the agreement it would take good care to see that the man has the first and paramount title to the property. When that title is sold, I do not think that much difficulty will accrue. The only thing that is a matter of moment and which the Trust must take into consideration is that the Board has no power to put the purchaser into possession, and that will to some extent detract from the value of the property. These are real difficulties that may be considered."

"Sir, I have some confidence in opposing this amendment when I have the support of the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu. It is obvious from his remarks that the whole of clause 67B (now 79) is a difficult clause, and we took a great deal of trouble in the Select Committee over it, and I think we cannot now deal with anything except the amendments that are before us. The main justification of the clause is that it is desirable that the Board should enter into agreement as freely as possible with people who wish to retain their lands, and clearly it will assist the Board to do so if it has summary powers of recovering sums due under the agreements. I do not agree that distraint should not be tried in the first place. It is not the lump sum recoverable under sub-clause 4 (a) that will usually be dealt with; it is the small annually recurring payments for interest that have to be recovered; and for these the Board should have first to proceed against movables. As regards the departure in regard to the Calcutta Municipal Act, the power of selling the lands, etc., it was expressly put in to facilitate the working of this clause. Section 357 in the Calcutta Municipal Act was not very carefully drawn when it was drafted, because there was no experience of this kind of work then, and we have on examining it had to provide for some contingencies. We thought it undesirable to give a right in perpetuity to sell the land and not merely the interest in the land of the person who made the agreement or of his successors. It would make it impossible for him to deal with the land. It will be in the interest of the people to let clause 67B

(now 79) stand as it is. The only thing that has suggested itself in consequence of the remarks of the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari is that the words 'in such land' be added after the words 'successor in interest' and that the words 'in such land' be added after the word 'successor'."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"These may stand over until after the Hon'ble Member replies."

The motion was then put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, with the permission of the President, moved that the words "in such land" be inserted after the words "successor in interest" in line 7 of clause 67B (now 79).

The motion was put and agreed to.

The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, with the permission of the President, moved that the words "in such land" be inserted after the word "successor", in line 11 of clause 67B (now 79).

The motion was put and agreed to.

386. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "(together with interest, up to the date of realization, at the rate of 4 per cent. per annum)", in lines 5 and 6 of clause (67B now 79), be omitted.

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I do not think this amendment is necessary now."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

387. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "and not less than three months after the publication of such notice" be inserted after the words "to do so", in line 10 of clause 67B (now 79).

388. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "and not less than one month after the publication of such notice" be inserted after the words "to do so", in line 10 of clause 67B (now 79).

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 71 (now 82) (1).

389. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that the words "and usufructuary mortgage", in line 2 of clause 71 (now 82) (1), be omitted.

He said:—

"The clause as it stands would entail great hardship to the would-be mortgager. But in the present state of the Council when I find most of the non-official benches empty and the Members have left for their respective homes, I do not like to press my amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

389A. If Motion No. 389 be carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the word "and" be inserted after the word "sale", in line 2 of clause 71 (1) (now 82).

390. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "usufructuary mortgage and lease" be substituted for the words "and usufructuary mortgage," in line 2 of clause 71 (now 82) (1).

He said:—

"Sir,—This clause is entirely new and is one of ways and means. I am afraid the word 'usufructuary mortgage' in the amendment is redundant, for it stands already. I do not know what mistake led to my putting the amendment in that form."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I do not think so, because the word 'and' before 'usufructuary mortgage' has got to be removed by some method."

The Hon'ble Babu DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Any way, the chief object of this amendment is to bring leases under the category of deeds of transfers, which will be liable to larger duties than they are at the present moment. That the lease is one of the most important deeds of transfer is well known, and if the object of this clause be, as I have no doubt it is, to supplement the resources of the Trust, I do not quite see why the most important and numerous class of documents should be excluded. So far as I am concerned, I should certainly have been pleased if no extra imposition of the kind, that this clause seeks to make, were at all necessary. But that is a question of policy—one of those fundamental questions into which we cannot go at this stage of our proceedings. In moving this amendment, I do not, for one moment, concede that conveyances or 'usufructuary mortgages' or gifts, for the matter of that, should be handicapped in the way as this clause seeks to do; but we have to take things as they are, and have to accept the policy of taxing these instruments. If so, at the risk of repeating myself, I ask, why should leases be excluded. I have been looking at the Statement of Objects and Reasons, where no clear reasons for this omission are to be found. Taxing 'usufructuary mortgages' is really a matter of no practical moment, because in the experience that I have in the profession, which is now fairly long, and in the longer experience of my friend to the left and others, have daily to deal with Calcutta instruments of transfer, 'usufructuary mortgages,' is absolutely, or to be cautiously accurate, is almost an unknown practical quantity. I have never known of any in Calcutta. There are manifest risks and disadvantages attaching to to an 'usufructuary mortgage,' liability to collect, liability to account, liability for neglect by the mortgagee; and a variety of considerations arise which make an usufructuary mortgage an absolutely unpopular mode of draftsmanship with regard to Calcutta property. I do not know exactly why it has come in unless to make the clause fairly respectable to look at. But the much more important affair of the lease has been omitted. There could not be very much of an object in putting a discount upon conveyances or gifts, I take it, and the whole of the object in view is to get in money and not to handicap transfer artificially by extra taxation. Why then is the lease which would bring in a very large sum to be omitted? I may, without betrayal of professional secrets, say so, omission of lease from the category of taxable deeds would be liable to thwart the very object of this clause, for here I repeat, conveyance by way of leases and releases used to be a very favourite method of dealing with property not not so very long ago in England and in this country. Should this clause be passed as it stands. I think there is ingenuity enough left in the profession to devise a means by which the elaborated procedure may be reversed and the object of this clause thwarted. I am afraid, when I go back to the High Court after the debates here are over, I shall not have a very comfortable time of it for thus giving the profession away. In fact, I am already beginning to have in my immediate neighbourhood unpleasantness enough of this particular kind; but that will not stand in the way of my saying what I feel with regard to this matter, and submit my objections for the consideration of the responsible advisors of Government. If you bring in leases, a larger number of persons interested in Calcutta land will contribute. All who know anything about Calcutta land in the recent years, know that sales are getting more and more unpopular for reasons that I have not been able to fathom, and leases for long periods are favoured specially by speculators, who do not wish to invest large sums of money straightaway, but who would take their chance as they go on and pay comparatively high rent for building leases instead of paying down in a lump the price. There are epidemics in Calcutta of plague, small-pox, etc., which are well known, but lately there has been a building epidemic also. There has been an abnormal activity of builders in recent times. If you examine the case of this building activity, you will find that in most cases—not in all—it is leaseholds that are being built on, leaseholds, such as, in the words that I quoted in this Council in a previous case, which have added to the difficulties of dealing with the sanitary problem in England. Why is this body of lease-holders coming in? Is there any reason why should they be exempted? A man taking a lease for 99 years and enjoying all the practical advantages and convenience of a conveyance without paying for it, will be able to circumvent this clause. I do not for one moment accept, as has been suggested by others concerned, that Calcutta is a city of tenants. It is not. It is largely a city of people living in their own houses. No figures have been adduced to the contrary, and until that is done, I am not prepared to accept the contrary proposition. We shall deal with it later on and in another concern, and therefore I shall not anticipate that situation. There is no doubt that there is a steadily increasing tendency of substituting leases for conveyances, and a still more marked tendency will be manifest the moment you pass this clause and omit leases from the purview of extra taxation that, for reasons of policy, I cannot discuss now. I emphatically say that leases ought to be included in this category if any deed is to be included for the purpose of supplementing the finances of the Trust."

The Hon'ble RAI SITANATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"I am surprised that this amendment should be moved by an Indian Member. When all the Indian Members, including the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prosad Sarbadhikari himself, have been straining their nerve, have been doing all in their power to lighten the burden of taxation, and thereby to lighten the burden of the people, I am surprised that a proposal should emanate from the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari that leases should be included in the category of instruments which would be liable to pay a duty of 3 per cent., such as deeds of sale-gifts and usufructuary mortgage. There are leases and leases—leases for 99 years as well as leases for a year. I ask where would you draw the line? Would you like to impose a duty of 3 per cent. on a lease executed by an ordinary tenant for a year or two? If so, what would be the effect? My reply is that it would go to thwart and hamper the execution of the several hundreds of leases that daily take place in Calcutta; it would seriously interfere with the ordinary transactions.

"What is your object, pray—to add to the burden of taxation or to lighten it? If the latter, I would, in all seriousness, request the Hon'ble Member to withdraw his amendment."

The Hon'ble Mr. WHEELER said:—

"After what has been said by the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Badadur, it is not probably necessary that I should add much in opposing this amendment. It is true that the object of clause 71 (now 82) was that property in Calcutta, which has benefited largely by the development of the town, should bear a fair share of the burden of the operations of the Trust, and various suggestions were made from time to time as to how that should be done. At one time a succession or death duty was thought of, but it was given up as impracticable. Then the idea of a special owner's rate was discussed, but was discarded, and eventually a simple transfer duty was imposed by clause 71 (now 82), amounting to 2 per cent on the value of the property transferred by sale, gift and usufructuary mortgage. The papers show that, from the outset, only sales, gifts and usufructuary mortgages were contemplated, and while leases are undoubtedly a form of transfer of property, it was never sought to include them. The proposal was never inserted in any of the schemes regarding which criticism has been invited, and the public have never discussed the desirability of taxing leases. It is possible to see various objections to so doing, and public opinion would probably have discovered others. In those circumstances I think the Council will be ill-advised to accept the amendment. As the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur has pointed out, leases are for varying periods, and the transaction in many cases may be of a very transitory description. It is not established that the additional revenue from the taxation of leases will be required, and as this might cause considerable hardship, it is preferable not to include leases in the clause."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir,—The Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler has said that the insertion of the lease within this category would lead to deep resentment of the public. Would this be the only matter with regard to which there has been or will be public resentment? Does public resentment come at all into our consideration, not only in the Press or the platform, but in the memorials which have been criticised in the way that I shall not refer to now in this Council? Therefore, the question of deep public resentment is altogether beside the issue in the consideration of this question. The Hon'ble Member has been good enough to contribute a novelty to this proposal—novelty especially when contrasted with other proposals tending to take away from the strength of the Board, financial and otherwise. Sir, these amendments had to be moved, because the framers of these amendments thought they ought to be. In the same way, I think this ought to be, if we are going to tax property in Calcutta—I do not say it ought to be, so far as the transfer is concerned. Because it has not been suggested in the previous stages is, I think, no reason of its exclusion if it otherwise commends itself to the Council, because it involves no fundamental question of policy that might reasonably be put forward against it. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur has begun openly and publicly the crusade and tirade for which I had quite prepared myself when I put forward this proposition. But in dealing with these questions we must remember that we are legislators first and Indians afterwards. That has been the moving spirit of all the amendments as of this one, and if this one does not happen to commend itself to the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur to those of us I should be very sorry to think that my friend would think poor of me because I am an Indian and have had the misfortune of feeling it my duty to put this forward. I have said on previous occasions, and I say it again, that I am not here as the landlord's representative or as the custodian of their interests, though, Sir, by your courteous and considerate kindness some of us have stepped into the seats of the mighty; in this Council chamber I do not represent land-owning interests. I certainly do think that if deeds of transfer have to be included, the most important body of them ought not to be excluded, although it may affect the Calcutta landlords. The Hon'ble Rai Bahadur says there are leases and leases. It is a misfortune that we cannot distinguish them. There has been a change with regard to them, and it has not been attempted to be made for the official or the non-official Indian gentlemen who desire to stand out in the right of the Indian landlord. Can we gainsay that there is a distinct tendency towards the leasehold system which will take all conveyances out of the purview of this clause? If so, this clause would be absolutely valueless. Let us agree upon the usufructuary mortgage. It is a chimera. We have none of that in Calcutta. As regards gifts, Sir, that is almost as good or as bad a chimera, whatever may have been the tendency in the olden times; we adhered to the right of proprietorship absolutely to the last moment. Gifts inter vivos are a rare institution in Calcutta. There may be trusts in Calcutta which are not covered by this clause. With these increasing facilities for testamentary dispositions—dispositions that will not be affected by this clause as it was intended to do at one stage of the proceedings—testamentary dispositions, which have been gaining in popularity, will be still more popular, and the few gifts that used to be in practice in former times will again give way. Therefore gifts go, usufructuary mortgage there is none, and I take it, Sir, it is no use moving any amendment that does not commend itself to the officials: this also will go. Without being a very bad prophet, I may say that the number of conveyances will be smaller than ever, and leases and releases will be the order of the day. With that warning the Council is welcome to accept or reject this motion as it thinks fit."

A division was then taken, with the following result:—

The result of the division was, ayes 3, noes 35, and the motion was therefore lost.

391. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "of the value of Rs. 40,000 or upwards" be inserted after the word "property", in line 3 of clause 71 [now 82 (1)].

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Here, Sir, I hope to have the sympathy and support of my Hon'ble friend, Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur. I desire to fix a limit with regard to the amount of deeds concerned. Smaller purchasers have difficulties enough, which will now be increased. Those who will have to move out in the process of the improvements will have their difficulties considerably added to when the buildings available will be smaller than ever—a class of difficulties must be familiar to all. Of course I cannot anticipate what will happen to the compensation clauses that follow. But one cannot take it that they will fail. Therefore, the difficulties will be still greater. If in the case of the smaller purchaser we could see our way of granting some remission of the kind that I suggest, it would be a real boon. I therefore beg to propose that conveyances and cognate deeds, in which the consideration is less than Rs. 40,000, should not be taxed in the way proposed to be done."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir,—I feel that the limit is too high."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"In dealing with this and the subsequent amendments of a like character, it might be convenient if I draw the attention of the Council, at the outset, to certain general consideration connected with these taxation clauses of the Bill, which should be borne in mind when they are discussed. The point that I desire to press is that the taxation clauses of the Bill must be regarded as a whole—a whole that has been arrived at after very long and detailed discussion of many suggestions and many alternatives, and which was eventually held to constitute a fair and reasonable distribution of the burden over the different classes of the community, upon the basis of which the Secretary of State has agreed to assist the Trust. Any material change in any respect may upset the whole balance of the scheme of taxation, and other considerations than the particular merits of each proposal are, therefore, involved.

"The question of the improvement of Calcutta, as Hon'ble Members are aware, has practically been under discussion since 1898, and for the first four or five years, till 1904, although the discussions were not made public, they were mainly directed towards the method of financing the Trust. That obviously was one of the root difficulties, and many suggestions were dealt with. The Calcutta Building Commission proposed, as suitable objects of taxation, jute, opium, petroleum, while they thought that money might also be raised by the imposition of local canal dues, the allocation of a share of the local excise revenue, a terminal tax, an octroi, or a local addition to the income-tax. It is curious how at that time they struck upon so many of the possible sources of revenue which have since been examined. In the course of the discussion of the matter the idea was introduced of a special subvention from Imperial Revenues, and this was first set before the Secretary of State in 1900. Matters were not at that time sufficiently advanced to permit of a detailed scheme being framed, but it is noticeable, and may be emphasised, that, in agreeing to pursue the suggestion at all, Lord George Hamilton insisted upon the condition (among others) that adequate arrangements were made to raise additional taxation from the population of Calcutta. The matter next came before the Secretary of State in 1902, and His Lordship again reverted to the necessity of the Corporation being required to make payments of a reasonable amount from the outset. For the first time, in 1903, public opinion was invited by means of a letter to the Calcutta Corporation, and it was then made known that the Government of India would be prepared, under certain conditions, to make a grant of Rs 50 lakhs to the scheme. Apart from the question of the municipal contribution it was mentioned that the idea of an octroi and terminal tax had been discarded, also that of a tax on jute. The only special tax, which was then proposed, was on petroleum. As also doubtless will be remembered by the Council, the discussion was not continued on that basis, because the whole proposal for the improvement of Calcutta took a new shape in consequence of the recommendations of the Committee which sat in 1904, upon which there were representatives both of the Bengal and Imperial Governments, and two leading Indian gentlemen—Dr. Ashutosh Mukharji and the late Babu Nalin Behari Sircar.

"That Committee threw the proposal for improvement into a new mould, in which it has continued ever since, and from which the present Bill has eventually resulted. Irrespective of contributions from the Corporation, they contemplated a levy on jute, an additional income-tax, succession and transfer duties and a terminal tax. They discarded the idea of a petroleum tax largely in the interests of the poorer classes. When this scheme came before the Secretary of State, he referred to it as being calculated to distribute, in a fairly equitable way, the burden of the sanitary improvement of the city over all classes of the community and likely to meet with readier acceptance and to prove less onerous than any possible alternative. When public opinion was next consulted in 1905, all the above suggestions were mentioned as possibilities, and in addition there was the suggestion of a special owner's rate and taxes on timber and animals slaughtered. The present Bill emerged from the different views then expressed, and it provides for an addition of 2 per cent. to the stamp duty on the transfer of property in Calcutta, a tax on jute, a tax on persons arriving and leaving Calcutta, and a contribution from the municipality. When the matter was next discussed in 1905-06, it was evident that there was a strong feeling that the assistance which was being given by the Government of India was insufficient. That view was laid before the Secretary of State, and in communicating his orders in 1908, in accordance with which this Bill has been framed, Lord Morley made a very important pronouncement which it is essential that this Council should bear in mind in considering these clauses. He said:—

"I do not agree with the view that the promised grant-in-aid of one-third of a million sterling from general revenues is inadequare, whether regard be had to the total cost of the scheme or the extent to which the general tax-payer is interested in the improvement of Calcutta, but I defer to your opinion that the case presents special grounds for exceptional liberality of treatment, and I am willing to assent to a further grant-in-aid of Rs. 1½ lakhs (£10,000) per year for 60 years being conditionally promised, the condition being that the scheme of taxation set out in your letter becomes law in its entirety and is made effective for the full term of 60 years. The annual grant-in-aid will thus be in addition to, not a partial substitute for, the proposed income of the Trust."

"To sum up, Sir, the proposals for taxation which are embodied in the Bill are the outcome of much discussion and examination of possible alternatives to which I have briefly referred. The present scheme has been sifted out from a mass of criticisms and under the impulse of many different opinions, and we are not entirely free agents in discussing these clauses. It is not the case that the town of Calcutta is producing the whole of the funds required from its own pocket, when it might perhaps have claimed a weightier say as to the method by which the money should be raised; but the Board is going to be helped to a great extent by the general tax-payer and the assistance of the Government of India is only given under the conditions laid down by Lord Morley. These preclude our accepting amendments to these taxation clauses, which would lighten or vary the incidence of the scheme of taxation as a whole. If you begin tinkering with this part or that, you may disturb the whole balance of the proposals which have been framed after comparing the interests and liabilities of the different classes of the community. If any attempt were made by this Council to do so, it would be a breach of the conditions under which the Imperial assistance has been given, and the amount of that grant may be reconsidered. In other words, we should go far to wreck the Bill, and in any case, might curtail the operations of the Board to a most undesirable degree.

"I would apologize for these lengthy general remarks, Sir, but it is needless to repeat them in connection with each amendment, and in the view of Government, they must be considered in dealing with all these points. The particular amendments now before us are four or five in number, and are all of a somewhat similar character. In one way and another, they are all designed to reduce the incidence of the transfer duty. The one immediately before us is to tax the transfer of property only if of the value of Rs. 40,000 or upwards. If this is not possible, the Hon'ble Member would be content with a limit Rs. 25,000, and again in the alternative, he would be satisfied with Rs. 10,000. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu would go down to Rs. 5,000 for the 1 per cent. duty and levy 2 per cent. on property of the value of more than Rs. 10,000; while the Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Fakhr-ud-din is prepared to go down to Rs. 5,000. We are bound to oppose these proposals. We have no doubt no idea what they would mean in actual figures and what effect they would have on the revenue which is expected to be derived from this source. The point is one in which the Corporation is particularly interested, since the stamp duty and the contribution of the Corporation combined have been estimated to yield Rs. 7½ lakhs, and any shortage will have to be made good by the Corporation. The general merits of this form of taxation on property are justified by the fact that the property owners of Calcutta have benefited largely by the expansion of the city and will be benefited still further by the improvements to be carried out. The rate proposed in the Bill is not heavy, and we are bound to resist any attempt to reduce it."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir—The key to the situation appears to be the concluding remarks of the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler, 'we are bound to oppose this amendment.' If they are bound to oppose the amendment, because of the very interesting facts that have been detailed by my Hon'ble friend, it appears to me that we, as a legislature, have no further say in the matter, on account of what has preceded in the way of executive consideration of the measure. If that is the position with regard to it, I think that it is not only no good in moving this amendment, but all these amendments are more or less out of order and may have been ruled out accordingly. If, because of what my friend has stated and of the executive action that has already been taken, the legislature is precluded from considering any proposal that may be brought before it, whatever its merits may be, I do not know that we can usefully take up the time of the Council, either in moving these amendments or in detailing their merits as they appear to us. What has been decided has to be carried out. That is, in short, the proposition laid down by my friend, and if that is the real position of the matter, which makes him say that he is bound to oppose this, questions of merit cannot be gone into. If, however, they could be gone into, what the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu has said with regard to the Rs. 10,000 limit being too high, would possibly arise, and in that view we have given notice of successive amendments, the last ditch of which is—in my friend's phraseology—the Rs. 5,000 ditch. I do not know what good could possibly be achieved by pressing these amendments or even placing them before the Council, though in the shortest possible manner. I would ask Your Honour's ruling, therefore, as to whether, under the circumstances that have been detailed by my Hon'ble friend, these amendments are at all in order."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"I think the Hon'ble Member has not comprehended the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler's argument. He said that he was bound to oppose all amendments which materially interfered with the scheme of taxation and which would go far to wreck the Bill, that is to say, that if the financial arrangements of the Bill are disturbed, the Bill as carried in Council may not receive the assent of the Governor-General. That course was explained by the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler, and that was the consideration which he asked the Members of Council to keep in view in dealing with financial questions. At the same time, the Members are at liberty to move their amendments, if it is no concern with them whether the Bill is passed in a form which will receive the assent of the Governor-General or not."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir,—We must deny with all the emphasis we can command that we are indifferent to the cause of sanitation and to the fate of the Bill and are interested in seeing that the Bill is wrecked or passed in such a way as it may be impossible for the Government of India to give its assent to. No intention can be further from our minds, and what we are persistently trying to do, with a degree of insistence no doubt, is to have the Bill improved from all possible points of view. I am much obliged to Your Honour for ruling that my present amendments, to which by implication a wrecking propensity is gratuitously attributed, are not out of order, and I should like to press them. We do not believe that these slight concessions to public demands will tend to wreck or even weaken the Bill, although it may make some slight diminution with regard to its finances for the time being. We have now quite enough stand-by, and it would be possible, with proper economy and proper efficiency, to work the whole matter so that the Improvement Scheme may not be wrecked, yet the burden on the public may be the least possible. I do not exactly know at what point of time this particular scheme of taxation regarding Calcutta house properties came in. As far as I have been able to follow the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler, it was after the stage when the non-official Members had an opportunity of being consulted or advising the Government in the matter and not earlier. If I am wrong, I may be pardoned."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"The transfer duty was one of the proposals of the Committee of 1904."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said.—

"That I thought was the income-tax. At all events, the considerations that impel me to make this proposal I have tried to explain. If Rs. 40,000 is too high a limit, let us agree upon a smaller limit, so that really the smaller householder may be relieved of the unquestionable difficulties of the situation, however small the burden may appear from the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler's point of view. In this view of things, I desire to withdraw this amendment regarding the Rs. 40,000 limit."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

392. If Motion No. 391 be not carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "of the value of Rs. 25,000 or upwards" be inserted after the word "property," in line 3 of clause 71 (now 82) (1).

393. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "of the value of Rs. 10,000 or upwards" be inserted after the word "property," in line 3 of clause 71 (now 82)(1).

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"I should oppose this, Sir, for the same reasons generally that I have already indicated There is no reason why properties of small value should not be taxed. The rate of taxation is not high, and we have not the slightest idea what the practical effect of this amendment might be."

The motion was then put and lost.

394. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "exceeding Rs. 5,000, but not exceeding Rs. 10,000 in value," be inserted after the word "property," in line 4 of clause 71 (now 82) (1).

He said:—

"Well, Sir, I must confess that one does not feel very much inspired when he goes to battle with a certain sense of defeat. But I feel that, in these questions, if I do not have the support, I shall have the sympathy of official friends, and I am quite certain that I shall have the sympathy as well as the support of my non-official colleagues, because I have put down my limit at Rs. 5,000, by which a person who sells his house for Rs. 5,000 is to be exempted from the operation of this tax. I am quite sure the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler will not raise any objection as regards its intrinsic merits. It is a well-known and well-established principle of taxation—a principle which we have followed in this country, according to which small incomes are exempted in the case of the income-tax, where we have got a limit of absolute exemption up to Rs. 1,000 and a partial exemption up to Rs. 2,000. In England, in the case of death duties, the same principle has been adopted. I am quite sure that the Government, if left to itself, unfettered by the directions of the Secretary of State's letter, would feel no hesitation in accepting a principle which they have thus laid down for their own guidance in other departments of the State. It is not fair that the poor should contribute equally with the rich. That greater responsibility attaches to wealthier men is now generally recognised, though nearly 19 centuries have elapsed since the time it was said, 'to whom much is given, of him much is expected.' I, therefore, base my amendment on a principle which has the high sanction of antiquity, and the present sanction of general adoption throughout the civilised world. The only difficulty that appears to my mind to stand in my way is that it may so disturb the scheme of taxation as to throw the whole Bill out of gear. Is that so? Is that the position which is at all established? I had raised the question in the Select Committee; but, unfortunately, since those days I was absent, and I have not been able to gather facts about the sales of property of Calcutta of the value of Rs. 5,000 and below. But I believe it was open to my friends to have that inquiry made in the meantime. Even if they have not done so, let us see the scheme of taxation that has been proposed, and let us see whether this exemption that I now claim will, in any way, interfere with that scheme. My friends will pardon me if, in dealing with this question, I tell them that the estimate was that between Corporation and the property-owners, that is, vendors and purchasers of property in Calcutta, there should be an annual contribution of Rs. 7,50,000. That was the principle. I may quote from the opinion that was given by the Corporation of Calcutta at a time when my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Payne, was its acting Chairman. They borrowed these figures from the Secretary of State's letter, and this sum of Rs. 7,50,000 was divided in this way. At that time it was anticipated that the 2 per cent. contribution from the Corporation would yield Rs. 5,50,000, and the balance Rs. 2,00,000 should be made up by this duty of 2 per cent. upon sales, etc. I will accept that principle that you require Rs. 7,50,000—of that Rs. 7,50,000, Rs. 5,50,000 is to be paid by the Corporation, and the Rs. 2,00,000 to be levied in this way. Since then, when the Secretary of State wrote this letter, an important change has taken place, and I am quite sure that the Secretary of State is not deaf to reason that, if you put to him a case properly for the protection of the poor, he will not listen to you. The change that has now taken place is this: that the 2 per cent. contribution from the Corporation, instead of yielding Rs. 5,50,000 at the present day—I am speaking from their notes—would yield Rs. 6,56,000, so that there we have a clear difference of one lakh. I have consulted many Corporation officials, who say that, probably in the next year, the 2 per cent. contribution will yield Rs. 7,00,000, if not Rs. 7,50,000, so that you need not fear that if this exemption were granted the requisition of the Secretary of State would not be complied with. The Secretary of State wanted that there should be a contribution of Rs. 7,50,000 by the Corporation of Calcutta and the vendors and purchasers of landed property in Calcutta, and on that basis he agreed to make the proposed Government grants. That is a position which I perfectly understand. If that position still remained, I would be the first person to support my Hon'ble friend Mr. Wheeler, when he says that the Improvement Scheme is of such vital importance to the interests of Calcutta that these little things should not be allowed to stand in its way; but now our financial position is such that we can safely grant some remission in another direction—a remission about the justification of which I think I need not say much. Should we be precluded from asking for that remission? I am quite sure that, if the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler, with the ability that has always distinguished his notes, were to write a letter to the Secretary of State, pointing out that under the circumstances some remission in this direction would not affect the balance of the different elements which go to form the total contribution towards the Improvement Trust, the Secretary of State will surely grant the concession. I have no doubt about it

"There is another aspect of the question which may be cleared up. It may be said that if you exempt 5,000 sales, rich men, who may sometimes sell property worth Rs. 5,000, may be exempted. Then why should they have the benefit? Well, rich men, at least among our community—for whom in this case I may be entitled to speak with some authority,—do not sell property unless there is a strong necessity. We somehow or other, often more foolishly than otherwise, stick to our properties as a matter of personal and family honour. We do not sell them, and when rich men do sell them, they do so under necessity. Therefore that question does not arise. As regards the poor man who sells his property for Rs. 5,000, he sells his all. It is the seller who, in every instance, will have to bear the entire charge, in any event, the greater portion of the charge. That is a proposition well known to political economists, and I would not take the time of the Council to place my authority before it, though I have got them with me. So take it in whatever way you will, take it in whatever light you think proper, the burden is upon the poor—a class of deserving poor. When a poor man in my community sells his property which may be his all for Rs. 5,000, he sells it under very strong pressure—he sells it for a necessity which he cannot avoid, e.g, marriages of daughters, deaths of parents and things of that kind. And if he can be somewhat relieved without endangering the scheme of taxation, without infringing the conditions upon which the Secretary of State has so largely laid stress, I do not think that we ought to take up the attitude—that we shall not grant him any relief. I do not ask my official friends to vote in my favour. May I ask them to leave us to our fate on this question? May I ask them to abstain from voting against us? I am quite sure that if this aspect of the question be put before the Secretary of State—from what I know of him personally and what we would expect from a high official who is always dealing with large questions in a kindly spirit—I have not the remotest doubt that the question would be reconsidered, and that we do not stand the least risk of the scheme being wrecked merely because we have ventured to make an exception in favour of the poor householder who is not well able to pay, of a person who, by selling his all in Calcutta, will in the end derive no benefit from the improvements that will be carried out by your scheme These are considerations which I most respectfully place before my friends. So far as my friends on the other side, officials, are concerned, they may feel some amount of restraint by the language of the Secretary of State's letter, but so far as we are concerned, there need not be any such feeling. My friends, who represent the great interests entrusted into the hands of the Chamber of Commerce and the Trades Association and who have daily dealings with most of us, rich and poor, know how hard is the condition of the middle class poor in Calcutta; they know it just as much as I do, as they have to deal with a large number of subordinates who depend upon them; and I feel sure that in this case they will come round to my support."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"Sir,—On the general question of the exemption of small properties I have very little to add There does not appear to be sufficient reason for exempting small properties, as they have benefited, and will benefit, equally with large properties, and the amount payable up on their transfer will be very small.

The Hon'ble Member has, however, introduced a new argument, namely, that we estimated that the transfer duty and contributions from the Corporation combined would yield a sum of Rs. 7½ lakhs annually, of which the Calcutta Corporation should be responsible for Rs. 5,40,000. Since the contribution from the Corporation at the rate of 2 per cent. on the annual rateable valuation of property is now likely to amount to considerably more than Rs. 5,40,000, by reason of the rise in the value of property in the town, it is said that we can afford to take less under the head of the transfer duty. But this assumes that a total of Rs. 7½ lakhs was an absolutely final figure which need in no circumstances be exceeded. This, however, is not the case. I shall have more to say on the subject of the figures embodied in the Secretary of State's despatch when we come to the discussion of the contribution to be made by the Calcutta Corporation, and I would only now observe that these figures do not constitute a final statement of the income which it may be desirable to place at the disposal of the Trust and which can be usefully devoted to the improvement of the city. The figures are estimates only. It was determined to give the Board an income derived from various sources, and in order to decide what sourcss should be selected it was obviously necessary to estimate the sum which it was thought probable that each would yield, but it was never intended that if the yield was greater, the scale of taxation should necessarily be reduced. It may hereafter be found desirable to do so, and, if so, this can be done in accordance with clause 194 (now 176). But for the present, until we know how the working of the Trust will develop, it is desirable to give them all the income we can, and if the income exceeds the estimate, so much the better. It will only mean that so much the more work can be undertaken, and from this point of view the argument of the Hon'ble Member appears to be invalid.

"I cannot, therefore, recommend the acceptance of the amendment."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"Sir—I wish to make only one observation with regard to the last statement of the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler. If he had adopted an income-tax as one of the financial aids to the Trust, there would have been an automatic statutory limit as the Income Tax Act stands, namely, Rs. 1,000; if we had adopted a succession tax, there again would have been a similar statutory limit, Rs. 2,000, smaller no doubt than we are asking for in this amendment. It is on these lines and none other that we are asking to place a limit to taxation with regard to property also. This question of taxing certain instruments came up incidentally in 1870 when compensation was allowed in the case of compulsory acquisition. There the Legislature thought and said and provided that where such a compulsory acquisition took place, the people concerned ought not to be called upon to pay a tax on the instrument by which they got the compensation. Of course, that would not exactly be the case here, but I am referring to that to show, when a proper case is made out for it, the question of taxing of instruments would be viewed in the light of considerations like those that presented themselves to the Imperial Legislature many years ago in connection with the Land Acquisition Act. No doubt, it has been laid down and accepted that property has to be taxed for financing the Trust and it will be taxed; but by accepting a limit of Rs. 5,000, as this amendment seeks to do, the burden of the Corporation will not necessarily be raised. I do not want to trouble the Council with figures—my friend Babu Bhupendranath has done so with great effect. We may take our stand upon that so long as we can, and it will be a question merely of a slight readjustment between the general tax-payer and the poor sellers. Therefore, there ought not to be that hesitation in accepting this amendment as there ought to be in the case of the larger limits."

The Hon'ble MR. GOLAM HOSSEIN CASSIM ARIFF said :—

"Your Honour,—I beg to support the amendment on behalf of the Muhammadan community. The principle of taxation, namely, that a better able a person is to bear the burden, a greater burden shall be imposed upon him than poorer people coming under the same description. The progressive death duties and income tax are cases in point. It is not just that when a poor man sells his property worth, say, a thousand rupees for necessity, he should pay 2 per cent. for the operation of the Improvement Trust in the same way and to the same extent as a wealthy man who sells a landed property for a lakh of rupees for speculation. I think my hon'ble friend will admit, that for this Trust the wealthy should pay proportionately more than the poor. My community will be specially affected as the transactions done by them are often of a very small amount.

"My Hon'ble friend in charge of the Bill is probably aware that huts have been held to be immoveable property and many poor people who build huts on lands or lease for purpose of residence, have to sell them either through poverty or other causes. Seafaring men in my community, who go out on long voyages as lascars, crews, etc., have oftentime to sell their huts which they have built, leaving their family in the care of a relation. In our own country, in the case of income tax there is a limit of exemption up to one thousand rupees, and the reduced assessment up to two thousand rupees. I think some such principle ought to be adopted for the release of the poorer classes in Calcutta."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"It is certainly, Sir, with a heavy heart that I rise to reply to my Hon'ble friend, Mr. Wheeler. I am afraid that the argument that the amount is small and the incidence of the taxation is small is not a sound argument to meet me with, for to the small the small is great. It is the proportion. What a comparatively well-to-do man may pay, will be very heavy for a poor man with practically a very small margin for the bare necessaries of life to pay, and therefore very justly, in the case of income-tax, the limit in my country was Rs. 500 (and now Rs. 1,000), that the poor wage-earners were exempted. That some principle ought to be allowed in the case of the poor is laid down by Mr. John Stuart Mill.

"It is quite true I appreciate to the full the observation of the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler when he says that in this taxation it is not necessary to exempt the poorer classes. I shall assume that the Government will be moved to take the step at some future time, but what of the men in the meantime. A poor man sells his holding and goes out of Calcutta. It is with his bones that you make the bricks, it is with his blood that you cement the mortar that paves your roads, and he goes out. At some future time, when we exempt a large class of men, the poor men will have suffered, and then the man who will be exempted will not be in the same position as the poor man of the present day because, they will derive all the benefits from the improvement which will have been carried out in the meantime; so that from them you may probably, with greater propriety and with greater justice, claim what you are seeking from the poor of to-day, because he pays at the outset without receiving any benefit from the improvements. Twenty years hence he will derive the benefits that the Improvement Scheme will bring. As regards the enhancement, principally the question will arise as to whether he ought not to contribute in a very humble degree to the improvement. But now things are different. A man pays who does not share in the benefits. Therefore that contention of my friend, I believe, is not well-founded. The real contention, I think, upon which my friend rests his case is the dictum of the Secretary of State. It is quite true that the more money we get, the greater will be the improvements that we shall be able to carry out. That nobody disputes. What I wanted to combat was this. We have provided for this scheme upon the minimum requirement, and the minimum requirement is 22 lakhs a year. Of this 22 lakhs, Rs. 7,50,000 have to be met by the Corporation and the house-owners of Calcutta who have got to sell their property. This is my minimum. My maximum may be anything above that. When we come to consider the financial aspects of the Bill, we shall show that the minimum will by far be ahead of the 22 lakhs that we seek to provide under our present scheme. The question is: Can we satisfy the Secretary of State with our minimum? If we say that between the Corporation and the rich people of Calcutta we are able to pay this Rs. 7,50,000, would it be reasonable to suppose that the Secretary of State will refuse this concession? Suppose there was a windfall—a man like Carnegie were to rise in our midst and told, 'Well, I shall pay Rs. 7,50,000 conditional upon your granting relief to the poor.' Can we say, then, that having regard to that windfall, some relief might be given in other directions, or would that condition be rejected as being such that cannot be given effect to because every man must pay his quota? I do not dispute the proposition that every man who derives benefits from the improvements ought to contribute towards this Trust, but there must be a limit at which a man who can merely get beyond the necessaries of life will be able to contribute. These poor men, who are mostly clerks in mercantile and Government offices, teachers in schools, and who have to undergo all sorts of epidemics in Calcutta, should contribute to a scheme which will largely benefit other interests along with them. The poor in a country derive as much benefit from the great institution which his country provides for their protection as the rich do. But it is recognised, Sir, that having regard to the fact that these people have not got enough to meet the barest necessaries of life, should be exempted from contribution in some way or other. This question has been so well argued on many platforms and on many occasions that it will be a mere waste of breath on my part to argue it, as it is known to most of us here."

A division was then taken, with the following result:—

The Hon'ble Mr. Norman McLeod.
The Hon'ble Mr. Stewart.
The Hon'ble Mr. Bradshaw.

The result of the division was, ayes 12, noes 25, and the motion was therefore lost.

In the absence of the movor, the following motion was not put:—

395. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that at the end of section 71 (now 82) (1) the following be added, namely:—

Provided that the value of the property or the amount secured, as the case may be, is not less than 5,000 rupees.

396. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "area to which this Act applies" be substituted for the words "Calcutta Municipality," in lines 4 and 5 of clause 71 (now 82) (1).

He said:—

"Sir,—The object of this amendment is to make the clause applicable to all the contracts that come under the operation of this law from time to time. If we were to leave it a it stands, we could not apply it to any areas that will be subsequently added to Calcutta. I do not take it that the cry, delenda est carthago, shall apply to Calcutta alone and not to those inscrutably favoured tracts that would come in later and which would, in the meantime, go on enjoying benefits and advantages like being entitled to 15 per cent. extra compensation on compulsory acquisition, even when they do come in. If legitimate effect is to be given to the operations of this clause, I think words, somewhat on the lines that I suggest, ought to come in. I do not know how property-owners outside Calcutta would regard this. I am afraid my friend, Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur, would not like it very much, but I feel bound to draw the attention to this seeming omission. When we have a Greater Calcutta, as we are sure to have soon, if the Trust does its work well, this clause ought to have operation in old Calcutta and new Calcutta as well."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"The object of this clause was to tax property in Calcutta, and there was no intention of taxing property, as such, outside it. Neither can there be any justification for so doing. It is in Calcutta that the evils have originated which we are seeking to remedy, and if it is the defects of Calcutta which require to be removed, it would certainly not be popular to extend the consequent charge upon the transfer of property outside the city. It is not very obvious, moreover, that the Act, as a whole, will be extended anywhere outside Calcatta. Certain sections may be extended, but that will be for special reasons in each case."

The motion was then put and lost.

397. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "and in the case of agreements in respect thereof, entered into after the commencement of this Act" be inserted after the words "commencement of this Act," in line 5 of clause 71 (now 82) (1).

He said:—

"By this amendment, Sir, I desire to restrict the operation of this clause only for a short time and in a partial degree. Where there are pending contracts for transfers, I seek to exclude them from the operation of the clause. Let us be content with taxing transfers that come into existence after the Act comes into operation. Subsisting enforceable contracts alone are sought to be exempted and they cannot be difficult of proof in the same way as such jute contracts would be. In fact, as there would be a regular written instrument of agreement in each case, it would be capable of more satisfactory proofs than in the case of the existing jute contracts. I desire to enlarge the exemption only very slightly."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said :—

"Sir,—We are only seeking to take into account documents executed after the Act comes into force. It is difficult to see how any fact can be satisfactorily established except the date of execution. It would be impossible to establish when the document was entered into without detailed, and probably controversial, enquiries, and I do not think the clause is likely to occasion hardship. The amendment would leave the incidence of the taxation undesirably vague, and it should be opposed."

The motion was then put and lost.

398. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that the words "one per centum" be substituted for the words "two per centum," in line 6 of clause 71 (now 82) (1).

He said :—

"After the expression of opinion by the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler on the previous amendment, I do not like to press my amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

In the absence of the mover, the following motion was not put:—

399. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that the words "one per centum" be substituted for the words "two per centum," in line 6 of clause 71 (now 82) (1).

400. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "by one per centum, or, if the value exceeds Rs. 10,000, then by two per centum" be substituted for the words "by two per centum," in line 6 of clause 71(now 82) (1).

He said :—

"After the fate of my previous amendment I will be unwilling to put it. I believe that at some future moment the attitude that we have taken to-day may be justified, and in that view I move this amendment, that in cases in which the value is less than Rs. 10,000, the taxation should be 1 per cent., following the precedent of the collection duties and income-tax."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said :—

"I would oppose the amendment for the reasons already given. The property owners in Calcutta do not belong to that class of paupers to whom exemption is occasionally granted, say, from a chaukidari assessment or municipal taxation. The mere fact that they own property at all shows that they are not destitute. As I have already said, in the case of small properties, the amount taken will be very small, and it should not occasion hardship to any one to pay it.

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

401. If Motion No. 389 be carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the words "or (in the case of an usufructuary mortgage) on the amount secured by the instrument," in lines 7 and 8 of clause 71(1) [now 82(1)], be omitted.

402. If Motion No. 390 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "or (in the case of a lease) on the rent secured by the instrument" be inserted after the word "instrument," in line 8 of clause 71(1) [now 82(1)].

Clause 71 (now 82) (1a).

403. If Motion No. 396 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "area to which this Act applies" be substituted for the words "Calcutta Municipality" in sub-clauses (a) and (b) of clause 71 (now 82) (1a).

Clause 72 (now 83) (1).

404. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that after the words "the Calcutta Municipality," in line 2 of clause 72 (now 83) (1), the following be inserted, namely :—

the Cossipur-Chitpur Municipality, the Dum-Dum Municipality, the Manicktola Municipality.

405. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that after the words "the Howrah Municipality," in lines 2 and 3 of clause 72 (now 83) (1), the following be inserted, namely :—

or any station in the neighbourhood of Calcutta within five miles from Government House.

The two motions above were discussed together.

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said :—

"What I wish to say is that recently some stations have been opened under the above Municipalities, and it would be proper to add those words to the clause; otherwise persons alighting at those stations shall be exempted from paying the tax."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"But no particular stations have been mentioned under these Municipalities."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said : —

"There is the Pattipukur station and the Dum-Dum station."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"But there is no station in the Manicktola Municipality nor in Cossipur-Chitpur: and there is no Dum-Dum Municipality. There are the two Municipalities of North and South Dum-Dum. However, I oppose this amendment. In the Select Committee we thought we ought to alter the clause so that it might include stations like Baliaghatta and Ballygunge within the Calcutta Municipality, and there are also stations on the Howrah side at which passengers to Calcutta alight. But it is obviously dangerous to extend it to the stations mentioned by the mover. Most of the passengers alighting at Dum-Dum do not intend to proceed to Calcutta and there is no reason why they should be taxed for the benefit of Calcutta."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"Sir, my amendment covers the same round. If the amendment has erred in principle, it has done so in the distinguished company of the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur. It has the merit of unpopularity as his amendment, but it has also the merit of novelty, in seeking to supplement the resources of the Trust. There are stations in the neighbourhood which are not within the Calcutta Municipality from which people walk to Calcutta, and although enterprising people like that who are prepared to undergo so much fatigue and loss of time to save a paltry half-an-anna, ought under other circumstances to be exempted, I do not see that when such vast interests are at stake, we ought to be so considerate with regard to them, and therefore I think that we ought to extend the area beyond what has been done."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"Sir, this amendment is worse than the previous one. We have only to consider the Howrah side of the river; there are stations on that side within five miles of Government House which have no connection with Calcutta. On this proposal, a person travelling from Boureah to Santragachi on the Bengal-Nagpur Railway, would be taxed. That would be quite unreasonable."

The motions were then separately put and lost.

406. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that after line 8 of clause 72 (now 83) (1) the following be inserted, namely :—

Goods (other than jute) brought to or taken from any of the said stations or landing-places shall similarly pay a tax of half an anna per each hundred maunds which are charged at goods rates and are transmitted by the same consignor.

He said :—

"This is still more novel and unpopular, because I am seeking to tax goods other than jute that come into Calcutta and adds to the filth, dirt and discomforts of Calcutta. If people from outside have to pay, the goods on which profits are made chiefly by people outside Calcutta, and which certainly adds to the insanitary conditions of Calcutta, should also contribute. This is a supplemental provision of which the Trust ought to be glad, and I hope the question of the poor man's food and necessaries will not come in when I ask for on a hundred maunds. It will yield a considerable sum without anybody knowing anything about it and cannot be as objectionable or inconvenient as the old-world choongi that has been rightly banished."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"Sir, this amendment scarcely needs serious consideration, and I need not discuss it at length. And I am not sure whether I should not ask you to rule it out of order. Although this Legislature has power of taxation, it is after all a Subordinate Legislature and the taxes imposed here must form part of the imperial scheme. The position of the taxpayer would be a sorry one if he were liable to be taxed by independent authorities acting without reference to each other. Briefly we have not the power to impose any such tax without reference to the Government of India and the Hon'ble Member has given us no idea of what such a tax would yield or what interests it would affect."

The Hon'ble RAI SITANATH RAY BAHADUR said :—

"I beg to oppose it on the ground that the mercantile community is going to pay heavy taxes on jute, and it would not be fair to allow their other goods to be taxed again. Among those goods, there may be many of perishable nature, and it would not be judicious to detain them for taxation."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 72 (1) [now 83 (1)] provisos.

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"With your permission, Sir, I will move amendment No. 408 first, and if it is carried, then it will be unnecessary to move 407."

408. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas moved that the words "thirty miles" be substituted for the words "ten miles," in provisos (a) and (b) (i) of clause 72.

He said :—

"Sir, in moving this amendment, I beg to point out that in the Bill as it was introduced in Council, persons coming from within a radius of thirty miles from Government House were exempted from taxation. In the Select Committee that exemption was reduced from thirty miles to ten miles. And I will briefly explain to the Council the cause which has led me to occupy the position of moving an amendment against the recommendations of the Select Committee. The Select Committee consisted of five non-official members who were all residents of Calcutta and five officials. On one occasion, one of the official members was absent from illness, and therefore the five Calcutta members were in a majority in the Select Committee. From the beginning of the discussion of this Bill, one of the principal points at issue has been what proportion of the cost of improvement shall be borne by the Calcutta people.

"The representatives of Calcutta, headed by the Chamber of Commerce, have throughout represented that they had overwhelming claims on the purse of the general taxpayer, firstly, because Calcutta is the seat of Government, and secondly, because it is a centre of trade for the whole of Northern India. The Government of Bengal has throughout been sympathetic towards these claims of Calcutta, but the Government of India has maintained that the citizens of Calcutta should bear a fair share of the cost of the improvement of the town in which they reside, and the Secretary of State has been even more emphatic.

"When this clause (72 (now 83) came up for discussion, the non-officials were in a majority on the Select Committee and they at once seized on the chance of applying the sound business principle of making other people pay for you as much as you can and they reduced the raduis of exemption from 30 miles to 10 miles.

"In favour of this, there is the plausible argument that the nearer a man lives to Calcutta, the more likely he is to visit the capital and benefit by its improvements. But this will not bear examination. The object of the Bill was to exclude suburban traffic from the tax. A man who lives at a distance from Calcutta may visit it once a year, and the tax of one anna will be unfelt by him; but the case is different directly you touch suburban traffic and people who pay constant and even daily visits to Calcutta. The framers of the Bill originally proposed a limit of 40 miles, but as this was found not to yield a sufficient income, it was reduced to 30 miles.

"To reduce the limit further to 10 miles means that you impose a tax of two lakhs a year on the inhabitants of the zone between 10 miles and 30 miles round Calcutta, and this tax is purely for the benefit of Calcutta. I hope that the representatives of the District Boards and Municipalities of the Presidency and Burdwan Divisions will tell us what their constituents think of this proposal.

"The tax, even if justifiable otherwise, would be a bad one, because it would be so unequal in its incidence. Take the case of the small clerk with a season ticket from Khardah. The least he can pay is As. 6 a month or Rs. 4-8 a year; if two members of the family work in Calcutta, they will pay a tax of Rs. 9 a year and this is more than a family of the same position residing in Calcutta would pay in extra taxation towards the Improvement Scheme. Such a tax would also fall heavily on the cultivators who bring in milk and vegetables in small quantities for sale and who do not stay in Calcutta at all.

"The effect which taxing suburban traffic may have on the railways has not been considered; it may lead to people alighting short of Calcutta or induce them to travel by river. I do not say that it may never be advisable to tax this suburban traffic; there is power in the Bill to reduce the limit below 30 miles, but at present such a tax appears, for the reasons which I have indicated to be unnecessary and inequitable. I have therefore no hesitation in moving that the 10-mile limit be raised to 30 miles."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 72 (now 83) (1), provisos.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

407. If motion No. 406 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "or goods" be inserted after the word "passengers," in line 1 of proviso (a) to clause 72 (1) (now 83 (1).)

He said:—

"Sir, I am not much in sympathy with the observations that fell from the Hon'ble Member in charge with regard to the last amendment which, however, has my warm support on merits. Because a non-official majority once only upon a time managed to score a point ought hardly to be a matter of greivance. The non-official majority was, however, clearly wrong on the only occasion it prevailed. My idea was to make the exemption larger, but in view of the fact that when those in charge of the Bill considered the question of the 40 miles limit they found that the results were quite as satisfactory, that they desired and the higher limit that I propose is neither necessary nor expedient. In view of that, I do not desire to press my amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

410. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the word "twenty" be substituted for the word "ten," in line 3 of proviso (a) to clause 72 (1) [now 83 (1)]

411. If Motion No. 410 be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the word "fifteen" be substituted for the word "ten," in line 3 of proviso (a) to clause 72 (1) [now 83 (1).]

412. If Motion No. 409 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the word "fifty" be substituted for the word "ten," in line 3 of proviso (b) (i to clause 72 (1) [now 83 (1).]

413. If Motion No. 410 be carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the word "twenty" be substituted for the word "ten," in line 3 of proviso (b) (i) to clause 72 (1) [now 83 (1).]

414. If Motion No. 411 be carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the word "fifteen" be substituted for the word "ten," in line 3 of proviso (b) (i) to clause 72 (1) [now 83 (1).]

415. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that after the words "ten miles," in line 3 of proviso (b) (i) to clause 72 (1) [now 83 (1)], the following be inserted, namely:—

or increase it to any distance not exceeding thirty miles.

416. If Motion No. 406 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "or goods" be inserted after the word "passengers" in both places in which it occurs, in line 4 of proviso (b) (i) to clause 72 (1) [now 83 (1).]

417. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "increase the said radius to any distance not exceeding thirty miles" be inserted after the word "India," in line 2 of proviso (b) (ii) to clause 72 (1) [now 83 (1)].

418. If Motion No. 406 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "or goods" be inserted after the word "passengers," in line 2 of proviso (b) (iii) to clause 72 (1) [now 83 (1)].

Clause 72 (2) [now 83 (2)].

419. If Motion No. 406 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "or freights" be inserted after the word "fares," in line 2 of clause 72 (2) [now 83 (2)].

420. If Motion No. 406 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "or goods" be inserted after the word "passengers," in line 3 of clause 72 (2) [now 83 (2)].

Clause 72 (3) [now 83 (3)].

421. If Motion No. 406 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "and goods" be inserted after the word "passengers," in line 5 of clause 72 (3) [now 83 (3)].

422. If Motion No. 406 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "or by which" be inserted after the words "by whom," in line 5 of clause 72 (3) [now 83 (3)].

Clause 73 (1) [now 84 (1)].

423. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "by sea," in line 2 of clause 73 (1) [now 84 (1)] be omitted.

He said :—

"Sir, I have had an opportunity of consulting the Hon'ble Members representing the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, and I am glad, Sir, to know that the matter has been very carefully considered. The whole of the goods that I seek to have omitted does not represent I understand more than 3 per cent. of the total quantity. In view of that explanation, I do not desire to press this amendment."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

423A. The Hon'ble Mr. Stewart moved that at the end of clause 73(1) [now 84 (1)] the following be added, namely :—

Provided that the said duty shall not be levied or collected in respect of jute, whether raw or manufactured, exported under any contract which was made before the 15th day of August, 1911, and the existence of which was established to the satisfaction of the Customs Collector before the 15th day of September, 1911.

He said :—

"Sir, with regard to this amendment, I should perhaps explain for the information of those Hon'ble Members who are unacquainted with commercial procedure, that in the Calcutta export trades of jute and jute fabrics, particularly, perhaps, the latter, business is largely transacted under forward contracts which run some months ahead. If, therefore, this Bill becomes law with practically immediate effect, it will follow that a loss must be incurred by one of the parties to these forward contracts, commensurate with the amount of the tax leviable, and that party will undoubtedly be the Calcutta merchant shipper. The loss will certainly not be recoverable from the producer or seller, and though it is arguable that under the Tariff Act it might be possible to enforce it legally upon the consumers or buyers, any attempt to recover this tax from that direction will undoubtedly result in our Calcutta merchants losing their custom. I am quite sure that this is not the wish of Government; and I hope to have the support of all my non-official colleagues in my motion, though some of them have levelled occasional allegations of apparent apathy against us in regard to this Bill. It may be said that those concerned should have brought this point to the notice of Government at an earlier stage of the proceedings; but looking to the haze of uncertainty which has overhung the whole Bill for so long, they will perhaps hardly be blamed for having allowed their attention to be temporarily diverted from it to the requirements and routine of their daily business; and had they spoken earlier, they would undoubtedly have wanted much more. It was the original intention to ask that these provisions of the Bill should not become operative until the Bill itself had been law for at least six months, whereas my present amendment has purposely been framed in the most moderate spirit with regard to business already definitely concluded, and it has been so framed as to entail the minimum of financial concessions on the part of Government. I therefore trust that it will prove acceptable to the Hon'ble Member in charge."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir, I shall readily respond to the appeal made by my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Stewart. Non-official members do not charge the members for the Chamber of Commerce with apathy, but they do feel that they are not getting all the assistance that they could reasonably expect from them. This amendment is somewhat on the same lines with that I tried to have introduced with regard to house property where we have existing obligations that we cannot get rid of, whether this Act is passed or not. Here, at all events, the exemption ought to apply. Of course, I failed with regard to house property, but I am sure, having regard to the influential support that it has, that the present amendment will not fail with regard to contracts that are already existing with regard to jute."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU, said:—

"Sir, I may say at once that my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Stewart is wrong when he says that we are not acquainted with the procedure adopted in regard to these contracts. These contracts come to our purview almost every day, and we know that a large number of forward contracts are always entered into in regard to jute; and as I think the financial aspect of the whole scheme will be so little affected by this concession, I do not think there is any difficulty in the way of Government accepting it."

The Hon'ble MR WHEELER said—

"The amendment, Sir, is one which Government is willing to accept. The theory of the jute tax, from the beginning, was that it will be paid by the consumer. The interests of the sellers are theoretically protected by the provisions of section 10 of the Tariff Act of 1894, which enables them to add the duty now imposed to the price, in cases of forward contracts for the supply of jute subsequent to the date of the Bill, but it is represented that it would be difficult for firms to realize this additional charge in view of the fact that their business extends to many and distant parts of the world. Under all these circumstances, it seems equitable to exempt from the operation of the clause contracts entered into before the Bill was discussed, and I would advise the Council to accept the amendment."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

424. If Motion No. 423 be carried, the Honb'le Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "authority collecting the duty" be substituted for the words "Customs Collector," in the last line of clause 73 (2), [now 84 (2).]

Clause 92 (1), [now 88 (1).]

425. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that the words "The Chairman of," in line 1 of clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1)], be omitted.

He said:—

"Your Honour, the reason for this amendment is that my hon'ble friend, the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation, could not pay more than Rs. 1,000 on his own authority, and, as the Corporation will have to pay the money, I think it is only proper that it should be here stated that it is the Corporation who will pay The Chairman will have to go to the Corporation to get authority, and, therefore, any call on the Chairman would have no effect at all. The amendment is intended to place this matter on a proper footing."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"I think it is preferable that the Bill should remain as it is. I must confess that when we received the amendment we considered it to be largely of a verbal nature. If payment has to be made in accordance with this clause, I fail to see how it will not be legally incumbent upon the Chairman to pay. The Hon'ble Mr. Payne, from his experience of the working of the Municipality, has advised that the wording of the clause will present no difficulty."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"The reason of my amendment is that the Chairman is precluded from signing a cheque. It is the Corporation that will have to pay and the Secretary and Vice-Chairman will sign the cheque."

The Hon'ble MR. PAYNE said:—

"I do not understand why the Chairman cannot sign a cheque. I cannot understand Mr. Apcar's attitude that the Chairman cannot sign a cheque. The Chairman can sign a cheque for lakhs of rupees, so long as the budget is not exceeded."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"If he is directed to pay, he must do so. You will have the authority of the Act."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"This Act will not amend the Municipal Act, and it does not purport to do so."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 67A (3) [now 78 (3).]

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"May I draw your attention, Sir, to amendment No. 369 which was left over. It really failed with No. 350. And if the Hon'ble Member is to move it, I will oppose it."

The following motion (postponed from the meeting of the 19th August, 1911) was brought up for consideration:—

369. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu then moved that the words "the land may be retained" be substituted for the words "the acquisition of land may be abandoned," in the last line of clause 67A (3), [now 78 (3).]

The motion was put and lost.

Clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1).]

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, my motion No. 426 is the same as Mr. Apcar's No. 430. I had the privilege of reading his notes, and I think that it is due and proper that he should move and not I."

430. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar then moved that the words "commencing on the first day of April, 1917" be inserted after the word "quarter," in line 2 of clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1).]

He said:—

"Sir, I hope that it will not be regarded that I wish in any way to disregard the very important announcement that was made by the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler, Financial Secretary to Government, but I believe, at the same time, that I can submit certain representations which possibly were not present in the mind of those who framed the scheme of taxation in the first instance. I think that what I have to say will come as a revelation to nearly every Member of this Council. It will be seen that the proposal that I make, if granted, will not in any degree curtail the operations of the Board, which was one of the fears that was expressed by the Hon'ble Member.

"The Corporation will be called upon to pay their contribution to the Trust from the passing of the Bill, that is to say, 2 per cent. to be levied in addition to the consolidated rate of 19½ per cent. now being collected by the Municipality for their ordinary administration, in the same way as the contributions from the other sources which provide the income of the Trust. I ask, on behalf of the Corporation, that they may be exempted from that contribution until 1st of April, 1917, that is to say, for a period of about six years. The request is not of a unique character. It will be sufficient if I give one instance: the London County Council were exempted under section 65 of the London County Council (Improvements) Act of 1899 from commencing their contribution to the Sinking Funds 'until after the expiration of seven years from the end of the financial year current on the passing of this Act.'

"The matter is of extreme importance to the Corporation and therefore to the public of Calcutta generally, because if the concession is granted, it will tide over a period when the income of the Corporation will be reduced, owing to demolitions of buildings by the Trust, and it will save the rate-payers of the present day from payments for the execution of works, the benefits of which will not be enjoyed for some time to come.

"Even if the payment of the contribution is postponed for the time I have mentioned, there will be no deficit in the revenue of the funds of the Trust (and in this I include all loan charges, that is, the interests and contributions to the Sinking Fund required for the repayment of loans). There are certain technical details involved, but I shall endeavour to place before the Council the grounds on which the Corporation rely as briefly as I can. I have pleasure in acknowledging that it is entirely based on calculations, which I believe have been circulated among Hon'ble Members, made by Babu Nilambar Mookerjee, Vice-Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation, to whose zeal and labour for many years past the public are indebted to a degree that they little realise. His figures may be tested, and I put them confidently forward as unassailable. I submitted them early in this year to the Hon'ble Member, the Secretary in the Financial and Municipal Departments of the Local Government. I wish it to be understood that my computations are based on factors most unfavourable to the Corporation.

"Two per cent. of our rates already amounts to Rs. 7 lakhs, and we expect the growth of our income to be sufficient, by the time which I have fixed for the commencement of our contribution, to enable us to pay to the Trust Rs. 5¼ lakhs without increasing our present percentage of 19½. This is an additional reason why we ask for the concession, but I take 2 per cent. of the rates to amount to Rs. 5¼ lakhs only, which is the lowest sum reserved under the Act as payable to the Trust. The stamp duties are estimated to yield Rs. 2 lakhs, but the Corporation must make good any deficit in the stamp duties under that amount; and if that estimate is exceeded, the Corporation, it should be observed, will not derive any advantage, the whole amount being predestined to go to the Trust.

"I, however, for my present purpose, place the charge on the Corporation, in the first instance, to be Rs. 7¼ lakhs, as if the whole tax had failed, and the Corporation were burdened with their own contribution of Rs. 5¼ lakhs, and had to make good the stamp duties, amounting to Rs. 2 lakhs. I compute the profits from lands, under clause 68 (now 81) of the Bill at the estimate of 3 lakhs put on it by the Government. I take the loan to be at 60 years and no more, and finally I exclude altogether the annual subvention by the Government of Rs. 1¾ lakhs.

"Now the Government have estimated that Rs. 436 lakhs will be the total amount of the loans that will be required by the Trust. It, of course, is out of the question for this huge sum to be borrowed immediately on the passing of the Act, and I am assuming that these loans will be spread over ten years, that is to say, Rs. 43,60,000 will be borrowed annually which is a very fair, if not liberal, allowance, and therefore the first loan will be paid off in the 61st year, and the last in the 70th year. And I assume also that all contributions will continue to be paid for 60 years, as has been stipulated by the Secretary of State, and will cease after that year; and further, that the payment of interest as well as principal will be made out of the accumulations of the Sinking and Reserve Funds only, without any help from any other quarter. Then, taking the Sinking and Reserve Funds to be growing at the rate of 3 per cent. only, and not at 3½ per cent. as calculated by the Government, the accumulation at the end of 60 years will amount to Rs. 5,80,89,877, which is the minimum accumulation of the Reserve and Sinking Funds at the end of the 60th year from the passing of the Act and, on the expiry of the 70th year, that is, after the payments of the interest have been made in full and after all the loans have from time to time been discharged on maturity, and on the supposition that the Trust will not have received the Corporation contribution of Rs. 7½ lakhs for six years, that is to say, for the period for which I ask the concession, there will remain in the 70th year an ultimate net surplus of Rs. 1,71,02,256.

"But if the stamp duties do not fail, and the Corporation are called upon to pay Rs. 5½ lakhs only, the stamp duties contributing, as is anticipated according to the estimate of Government, Rs. 2 lakhs annually from the passing of the Act, the accumulations at the end of 60 years will be Rs. 644 lakhs; and after all the liabilities have been discharged, that is to say, all the loans contracted and the interest in full, the net ultimate surplus available will be Rs. 2,56,80,638.

"It should be understood that these calculations are based on the basis that the suspension of the contribution by the Corporation, as has been proposed, whether of Rs. 7½ lakhs or of Rs. 5½ lakhs, will not in the least impair the discharge by the Trust of all the liabilities which, by the estimate of the Government, is likely to be incurred by the Trust in their current expenditure.

"I have covered the ground on which the application by the Corporation is based, and I am not concerned to go further; but I perhaps may add that it is calculated that the loans which it is proposed to borrow for periods of 60 years will be repaid on due date, from the 61st to the 70th year; but it, of course, will require the full period of the terms of the loans mentioned for the accumulations to mature to the amount I have stated. I already have indicated that in the calculations I am submitting no allowance has been made for any income that may be derived by the Board from reproductive works: no profit whatever even to cover loan charge has been taken into account. But from our experience in the Corporation, we have found that after six years, loan works bring into our funds sufficient to cover the cost of the maintenance of the work and a surplus of 5 per cent. which covers our loan charges, that is, charges made towards repayment of the loan. Adverse circumstance may arise which may prevent the loan works of the Board producing results equal to that of the Corporation; but surely profits may be depended upon after, say, 30 years. I will assume that they will be unable to produce 5 per cent., but only 2 per cent. after payment of maintenance. If they produce so much as only 2 per cent. after 30 years, then the suspension of our contribution may be extended to 17 years, with the results I have shown.

"The Hon'ble Member, the Financial Secretary, has stated that the scheme of taxation has been arrived at as a whole and must be considered as a whole. It has been urged that the subvention of Rs. 1½ lakhs annually has been given by the Secretary of State on the condition that all the contributions shall be maintained without diminution according to the scheme. But may I suggest that the true financial position of this Board, which I have been able to disclose on the calculations of our Vice-Chairman, were not appreciated. Has not the result of those calculations come as a surprise and a revelation? But putting this question aside for the moment, the calculation of the income of the Board was based on a contribution by the Corporation of Rs. 5½ lakhs as being the equivalent of 2 per cent. of their rates; but the equivalent of 2 per cent. will be Rs. 7 lakhs from the commencement on the Bill coming into force, if it is enacted. I venture to say it never occurred to the Secretary of State, or to any of the authorities who have been dealing with this subject, that from their initial payment the contribution by the Corporation would exceed by Rs. 1½ lakhs, the amount mentioned in the scheme, nor that we may reasonably expect that, in 20 years, their contribution will amount to be, not Rs. 5½ lakhs, but 12 lakhs. Is there any industry or any other source of income that can hold out any prospect such as the contribution by the Corporation? I submit these circumstances create a claim for consideration. And, after all, whatever happens, if there is any loss, the whole of it will fall upon the Corporation who are made responsible for the liabilities of the Board. I submit I have shown abundant—and I may say overwhelming—reasons for the concession which is sought, and I trust that in the interests of the rate-payers it will be granted."

"Sir, this is one of the various amendments which have for their object the postponement or the lightening of the burden which it is sought to cast upon the Calcutta Corporation. There is one amendment (No. 426) which would postpone the municipal contribution for five years; there is another (No. 427) which in the alternative would reduce it to 1 per cent. for the first five years and thereafter 2 per cent.; there is still another (No. 429) which would reduce the contribution to 1 per cent. for the first ten years and thereafter 2 per cent.; and, lastly, there is another (No. 442) which would postpone it for five years unless, in the opinion of the Local Government, the finances of the Board render its payment imperative. The object of all these amendments is the same, and the argument upon which they are sought to be justified is that in the early years the working of the Trust will not require the full income which the Bill provides. It is the case that the revenue of the Trust from taxation, as also from the Imperial grant and the contribution from the Corporation, will accrue, as the Bill stands, from the outset, and it is of course obvious that the Trust will not be able to initiate improvements to the full extent at once. Its early operations must necessarily be on a small scale, and it must be some years before it gets in full working order. That, I understand, is the experience of Bombay. But this has been recognised in the Bill, and it is contemplated that whatever surplus may accumulate in these early years, shall be invested and applied to the service of whatever loans may be outstanding at the expiry of the 60 years for which it is at present intended that the scheme of taxation shall be in force. In this connection I should invite the attention of the Council to clause 128 (2) [now 125 (2)] which contains provisions to that effect. It is obvious that there must be loans which will run beyond this period of 60 years, while it is not desired, if possible, to continue the scheme of taxation for longer than 60 years. The only other alternative would be an extension of the period of taxation, and I cannot believe that would be a popular alternative.

"Then it is said that, even if we have this object in view, we are providing too much, and it is possible to show by calculations, based on certain assumed rates of progress, that this is the case. I am not concerned to dispute the accuracy of these calculations, but the figures are entirely hypothetical and, I submit, proceed upon a false impression of the basis of the Bill. The figures that are in the Secretary of State's despatch are not absolutely final figures. The Bill is based upon the fact that there is scope for the improvement of Calcutta, that this work should be undertaken by a Trust specially created for the purpose, and that various sources of revenue shoul be placed at the disposal of the Trust throughout a term of years from which they can, to the best of their ability, undertake works of improvement of various specified kinds. If the revenues actually realised justify more extended operations, I cannot see why the Trust should not undertake them. If the income of the Trust proves to be less in amount than is anticipated, work will have to be curtailed accordingly. I am not prepared to admit that the sum of Rs. 822 lakhs constitutes the utmost which can advantageously be spent upon the improvement of the town. We can usefully spend all that we can get, and if so, the value of any hypothetical calculations disappears.

It is, moreover, certain that if circumstances justify the relinquishment or suspension of any of the sources of revenue allotted to the Trust the first beneficiary will not be the Calcutta Corporation. I have already alluded to the point incidentally in connection with the remarks which I have made on the subject of the scheme of taxation generally, and I would only make a few other quotations as supplementary thereto. In a despatch of 1900 the Secretary of State observed, 'The cost of the improvements should fall on the City of Calcutta and adequate taxation should be imposed to meet it, primarily upon Calcutta and in the last resort upon the Province of Bengal.' The idea of Provincial taxation was subsequently dropped. When proposals were sent home in 1902, the Government of India only recommended the scheme which was then contemplated to cost 478 lakhs only) 'in view of the undertaking that the Corporation shall discharge its full share of liabilities.' The Secretary of State then replied, as I have already quoted, that the Corporation should be required to make payments of a reasonable amount from the outset, but he added that the scheme before him 'seemed to be expresely based on the principle of exempting the Calcutta Municipality from any risk of having to increase its rate of taxation' He held the opinion that 'if the Municipality for any reason is unwilling to bear a substantial portion of the new burden, it has all the less reason to expect to be relieved at the cost of the general tax-payer.' He also made the significant remark that 'the limitation of liabilities should not commence with the principal beneficiary.' In the analysis of the proposals which was published in 1905, the Hon'ble Members will find that the first general principle on which it was proposed to distribute the burden of the project was that 'an appreciable share of the immediate financial burden and complete financial reponsibility in the event of default on the part of the Trust must devolve upon the Corporation.' The present proposals regarding the contribution by the Corporation were put forward by the Government of Bengal after consideration of many other alternatives, and they recommended them as a fair solution of a difficult question. The Government of India endorsed the proposals as 'securing to the Trust a certain income of at least $7\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs per annum.' Obviously the intention was to secure this income from the outset. I have already read the orders of Lord Morley.

Now, do the present proposals go beyond the intention that the primary beneficiary under the Trust should bear a substantial portion of the burden? The Secretary of State's estimate was that the municipal contribution should be Rs. 5,40,000, and that it should share in the guarantee of a total estimated income of $7\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs from this source and the increased stamp duty on the transfer of property. The total estimated income is Rs. 22·4 lakhs; and even if the anticipated return from land (Rs. 3 lakhs) be excluded, we have Rs. 19·4 left; and I submit, Sir, that the share of the Corporation of this amount is by no means excessive.

My reasons for opposing these amendments are that we can utilise this money to advantage, and that it is unsafe at this stage to abandon it; and even if we are prepared to abandon any of the resources which we have taken in this Bill, the first source of revenue to be discarded will not be the municipal contribution. The town of Calcutta must be prepared to bear a fair share of the burden. If advantage is taken of the clause which permits of the reduction or remission of taxation (including the Municipal contribution) before some experience has been gained, and if it is held now that all the resources given to it will not be required by the Board, and if the proposal is submitted to the Secretary of State in this form, his answer will almost certainly be, 'I gave Rs. $1\frac{1}{2}$ lakhs for 60 years conditionally and reluctantly; and if you do not require it—very well, I will take it away.'"

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"Sir, my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Norman McLeod, has expressed a pious hope that I should be laid up with laryngitis. If I am not laid up, I am very near being laid up. One of our supporters, the Maharaj-adhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, has been obliged to leave to our great regret owing to ill-health, and, having regard to the unequal combat in which we have been engaged, the failing ranks of our supporters scarcely contribute towards any encouragement in the fight we have been carrying on. But, apart from that, I will assume all the arguments which my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler, has advanced as correct. I will assume that the Corporation of Calcutta, which in the end must largely benefit, ought to be primarily responsible for the financial stability of this enterprise. That we shall assume and I readily concede that the Calcutta Corporation should not evade or avoid any responsibility that should attach to it;—by the Corporation of Calcutta I mean the rate-paying public of Calcutta. My friend says that he does not dispute the correctness of the figures which have been furnished to us by the Corporation in their report which embodies the Vice-Chairman's note on the subject. I think I am correct in making that statement. Well, if it is so, let us consider our position. Take from me your pound of flesh, but do not take from me more. Take from me as much as you want either for your needs or for your stability. Take from me as much as will make the improvement a success, but do not take from me what you do not want. It is like the tenantry of a big landlord paying to him what is his due for his needs, but refusing to pay him what he only seeks for his extravagance; for I need not remind my friends that public bodies may be as extravagant if they have more than what they know to do with, as private individuals, and sometimes we have found that public bodies have been more extravagant. If this position is correct, what is it you propose to do? You propose to spend, as you show from your statement, the nett sum of 486 lakhs with your recoupment. Your gross total expenditure is 822 lakhs. You want money from the Corporation for two things: to provide your sinking fund, your reserve funds and your current expenditure. More than that you do not want. If I satisfy you that the various sources of revenue that you have provided are enough, including the contribution from the Corporation for this purpose, you certainly would not want more than that. The question which naturally arises is that between two contributing bodies—the jute trade and the Corporation, for instance. why should preference be given to the Corporation? Would it not be said as well, why should the jute trade go on paying from the beginning and the Corporation's contribution be deferred? That is a very reasonable argument to advance against me; and if I were not prepared to meet that argument, I should not be on my legs to argue the case before you. My hon'ble friend Mr. Payne, who was the Acting Chairman of the Corporation when this note was written, has shown that the immediate effect of the opening of Harrison Road was a drop of nearly a lakh of rupees. The Acting Chairman said that he had raised the question of the fall in rates from the construction of Harrison Road, and from the Assessor's report he would see (I am reading from his report) that if one road in Calcutta like the Harrison Road entails a drop of a lakh of rupees, all these schemes will entail a bigger drop, so that for the first few years of the Trust's operations it is inevitable that the present Corporation will suffer and suffer heavily. Their rates will probably go down. Only a few minutes ago I was talking this matter over with a gentleman in the Council who has had a very long experience in the Corporation—the Hon'ble Mr. Greer. He also anticipates that there will be a very serious loss in revenue to the Corporation. Mr. Payne, who has had a very long experience in the Corporation. also anticipates the fall. That is one argument. It is an elementary principle in taxation that all taxations from which the future generations receive the benefits should be so distributed as to make the burden fall upon the present generation less heavily than upon the future.

"These are the two arguments that I advance against my friend. First of all, the present body of rate-payers will suffer; secondly, the present body of rate-payers will not benefit by the improvement schemes that you are bringing into operation. These are important titles to preferential treatment, and there is another, and that is not the jute trade, not the terminal charges, not the Government of India, but the Corporation ultimately which will have to face the entire financial responsibility of the Trust. Are these not titles enough for a favourable consideration, if circumstances justify a favourable consideration ?

"Now we come to the second head of my argument. Do circumstances justify this? Well, you will not require money at once to pay your loans. You will not in the first place require money. We have seen sometimes that the Government of Bengal and the Government of India make provision for budget expenditure which cannot be utilized or appropriated for your loans for the first ten years, and you will not be in a position to spend at once or within a short time any large sum of money.

"In the past during the year, in the arrangements between the Imperial Government and the Provincial Government, there used to be an allotment for provincial expenditure which could not be spent until towards the end when there was an extravagance in expenditure. You will not require the amount that you want to spend all at once. If you cannot, why do you want from us not only for your current expenditure—for your current expenditure is amply provided otherwise—why do you want the reserve funds and the sinking funds and the interest upon loans which are non-existent ? You want from us to provide for your reserve funds and for your interests upon loans which have been contracted. Then why should you want? My friend says you may spend more. You may do so; but is it likely? I would not grudge it if more is needed. You must bear in mind that in future times, when the rate-payers of Calcutta derive the benefit of the improvements that you have brought about, they will not pay. Why do you make him pay who lives in slums and in congested parts, which I shall presently show in connection with another amendment, is not the result of the apathy, the indifference of the landlords, but as a result of indifference, apathy and ignorance of Government. Why do you make him pay this 2 per cent. for a purpose which is not urgent and for which the full benefit will be derived by future generations? What is the object of spreading the loans over a large number of years? Because you want to distribute the burden fairly and equitably. I am quite convinced that my friends would not be the persons to so distribute the burden of taxation as to make it fall inequitably or unjustly upon the present generation for the advantage of the future. The present generation of course must contribute, but they ought not to contribute more than that is due from them. I will not go into the figures which have been furnished by the Vice-Chairman of the Corporation, and which, so far as I can say, have not been controverted. My friend has given figures, and I desire to go into them for a few seconds in order to put before the Council the views of a member of the lay public. I do not profess to be a financier or accountant, nor a municipal corporator, nor its Vice-Chairman, but I place before you the views of the outside lay public, with whom I may identify myself. Take it that you raise the whole of your loan in the first ten years. Then you do not levy any contribution for the first six years from the Corporation, and begin to levy your contribution after the end of the sixth year. Even then, without the subvention from Government, you find that after paying your loans off in the seventieth year there is a surplus of Rs. 2,56,80,000. Well, we will take it that 43 lakhs are borrowed every year; we want to borrow in ten years one crore and 30 lakhs. As my friend will at once admit, we shall not be able to pay off the amount in less than 60 years and will borrow in ten years, commencing from the first year, and we shall begin to pay from the sixty-first year the loans that we borrow within the first ten years, and without the subvention we shall pay the whole of our loan on the seventieth year and will have in our hands a surplus of Rs. 2,56,00,000, assuming that our reserve and sinking funds are multiplied at 3 per cent. My friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler, the Financial Secretary has taken it at 3½ per cent., which will leave us a larger balance. Therefore there is no fear, if there was any question of the slightest apprehension that this remission to the Corporation would mean in the remotest degree some amount of instability of the financial position of the Trust, I should have been the last person to stand and urge this on behalf of the rate-paying public of Calcutta. I represent here not the Corporation. Though I am a Government nominee, I can certainly claim to be one of the rate-paying public of Calcutta and speak as a ratepayer of Calcutta. You have got this surplus at the end of the sixtieth year; added to this there is another element. The contribution of the Corporation has now been fixed at Rs. 5,50,000 a year at 2 per cent. My friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar, has shown that at the present moment the contribution would be 7 lakhs, if you take 2 per cent., which is also shown in the note the Corporation has submitted to the Government of Bengal. Well, if upon a contribution of Rs. 5,50,000 your surplus after payment of your duty and your interests is Rs. 2,56,00,000, though it will be much more than that on a contribution of 7 lakhs which you are likely to get, or you are sure to get at the present moment, how much more would it be my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler would be able to give us. My friend opposite is much better qualified than I am to tel us, and I am quite sure he will give us those figures. I say that for the first few years the contribution may go back to Rs. 5,56,000, for there will be, as I said, a diminution in the revenue of the Corporation when the Trust begins its operations; but then after the Trust has had its operations completed, which I hope will be completed in the space of 15 years, there will be a very large rise in the assessable value of Calcutta. My friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Payne, will be able to enlighten us as to how much in every six years does the assessable value of Calcutta go up. I believe it goes up about 10 per cent. I do not know; it may be more, so that after 15 years you get a large revenue from the improvement, and you get a progressive rise in your rates—a rise in the amount, so that what will be felt as hardship and burden to-day will not be felt at all by the future generations who are comimg behind us, and we of the present day have to pay for the benefit of the future without the future contributing by a single penny towards the cost at which those benefits will be secured. Is that a fair adjustment of taxation? I have no authority to speak on a question of financial administration; but I am quite sure the Chancellor of the Exchequer, who would have to rely upon popular support for his position in the Cabinet and who would have to consider as to how the impost that is seeking to introduce would affect the masses of the people with whom he is concerned, would certainly so distribute and adjust its burden that it will not be felt as a burden by any class of individual for any particular period. The claims of the rate-payers of the present day are very substantial and well founded. Why should they be made to pay for the benefit of the future, and why should not that be secured by an equitable distribution of the burden. My friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar, has placed all the figures in a very minute and detailed examination of the financial operations of the Trust. I have ventured to place the same figures from the point of view of the outside lay public, but I believe in the result we coincide. If we do coincide, does my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler, the Financial Member of the Government of Bengal, think that the Government at home will be so unreasonable as to insist upon a contribution for a freedom from a great part of which the people have got a very good cause? I do not think that would be a proper assumption to make. I am quite confident that if we have made out a proper case, whoever may be the Secretary of State for India, either Lord Morley or Lord Crewe, would be willing to concede. I accept the principle that my friend lays down, namely, that the people of Calcutta principally should bear the burden—a principle which I do not attempt or seek to shirk or evade. I am quite prepared to take that burden placed on my neck—but its weight must be according to my capacity, according to my interests in the Trust, according to the benefits that I am likely to receive thereunder, and those who will come after ought to bear the burden to the extent of the benefits they will receive, so that the burden may be equitably distributed."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir, my amendment will practically cover the same ground, although with regard to minutiæ there may be some little difference. I would not like to press it, however, having regard to the late stage of our proceedings as an independent amendment, and would not like to cover the same ground that has been elaborately covered by the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar and the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu. The gruesome commodity to which my friend has somewhat wantonly and unwarrantably alluded in the course of these debates is said to being capable of being easily differentiated the notorious 'pound of flesh.' We have been referred to clause 128 (now 125), sub-section (2), under which it would be possible to turn the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu's pound of flesh into something more convenient and more lasting, that is, in the shape of investments. If we read clause 128 (now 125) with clause 129 (now 127), under which it is permissible for the capital account to borrow from the revenue account, we shall see that with satisfaction is more illusory than it appears. In all matters of account the distinction between the revenue and capital account is maintained as rigidly as possible, and that must have been felt; otherwise there has been no necessity for distinctly providing in clause 129 (now 127) that it shall be competent for one fund to borrow from another, although rightly enough there is no provision for one fund being indebted to the other. We find in clause 128 (now 125), sub-clause (2), a variety of things which have to be complied with before that profitable investment that has been referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler will be possible. There must be in the first instance a closing balance of 1 lakh of rupees which, considering the gigantic nature of the operations, is not an unreasonable amount to insist on; but we have an exception created in clause 129 (now 127), and the second exception created is that it would be a matter of complete discretion of the Local Government. The investment cannot take place if the Local Government directs otherwise. We do not know what may be the contingencies that will arise, but those that do not participate in the present gain ought not to be called upon to pay what is not yet their share of the burden till the proper time has arrived. That is the whole essence of the contention embodied in these discussions. It has been argued that the present generation will have to pay their share of the contribution, although they will not derive the benefits from it, unless it be said that when the present generation passes away without discharging its obligations we shall not have anybody to fall back upon. I am very sorry that the Hon'ble Mr. Das is not here to-day to tell us stories about Magistrates directing the heirs of criminals to pay the fine that would have been imposed upon their fathers. Those that have been shown to incur the obligation are to be called upon to discharge that obligation, because it has been decided that Calcutta has to bear its share of burden. Of course it will do it if it has to, but no facts have been stated and no arguments have been adduced to show that, so long as the work of the Board is not in anything like a full swing, this obligation ought not to be insisted on because it has not arisen."

The Hon'ble RAI SITANATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"Sir, I know very well that I cannot add much to the argument so forcibly adduced by the previous speaker." My only object in speaking is to add to the intensity and volume of the opposition raised against the attempt to realise the full contribution of 2 per cent. from the Corporation during the first few years of the Trust. There is no doubt that during the earlier part of the operation of the Board the revenue of the Corporation will diminish to a very large extent on account of the acquisition and demolition of buildings as illustrated in the case of Harrison Road, where there was reduction in the assessment amounting to Rs. 92,000 followed by subsequent increase of Rs. 2,48,000. Under all these circumstances unless the municipal contribution is suspended for the first five years or reduced to 1 per cent. for the first ten years, a heavy burden will fall upon the present generation of rate-payers who will derive little or no benefit from the operation of the Trust. Moreover, it may be mentioned here that during the first few years of the Trust, as the full amount of the loan of 4 crores and 36 lakhs would not be necessary, there would be no occasion for the payment of the full amount of 17 lakhs for interest and 2 lakhs for sinking fund, it will therefore be evident that the expenditure during the first few years would be considerably less than 20 lakhs of rupees. The receipts from the other sources of revenue as provided in the Bill, with a contribution of [illegible] per cent. from the Corporation, would be more than enough to keep the Trust afloat. With the enormous falling off in the revenue of the Corporation on account of the wholesale demolition of buildings throughout the several quarters of the town the result would be the payment of more than [illegible] per cent."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I should not have intervened in this discussion had it not been that the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar has raised a new point. He voices the views of the Corporation, and therefore every point raised by him and his supporters seems to me to need more attention than the views advanced by any private member.

"The point which was not dealt with by the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler was the argument that the income of the Corporation would be diminished by the earlier operations of the Trust and that there its contribution should be on a smaller scale during those years. But this argument loses its force when we examine the way in which the contribution of the Corporation has been fixed.

"When the proposals first went home in 1903, it was intended that the Corporation should finance the Trust with the help of a tax on petroleum, and it was stipulated that the contribution should not exceed 6 lakhs in any year up to 1911, nor 12 lakhs after 1911. To this the Secretary of State objected that the Corporation should be required to make payments of a reasonable amount from the outset and should provide itself, before the initiation of the scheme, with such resources as will enable it to do so.

"The Corporation is now asked to make a contribution which was estimated at 7½ lakhs; in 1903 it was contemplated that its contribution might amount to 12 lakhs. The present sum was fixed in 1907 and was fixed after taking all the circumstances into consideration."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"If my hon'ble friend will pardon my interrupting him, this Rs. 7,50,000 has to be made up by the transfer duty and 2 per cent."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:

"Certainly, but the two per cent. contribution is a great deal less than 12 lakhs, and in 1907 was less than 6 lakhs. As compared with the proposals of 1903, the present Bill is very favourable to the Corporation. The two per cent. grant with a minimum of 7½ lakhs was arrived at as follows:—The Government of Bengal wrote in February 1907:—'under the scheme advanced by the Government of India the contributions from the Calcutta Corporation constitute an important item (Rs. 8,24,000) of the revenue which will be at the disposal of the Trust, and the suitability of this sum is therefore the primary point of importance for determination. . . . It must be borne in mind on the one hand that an immediate effect of the operations of the Trust may be a diminution of the resources of the Corporation, since property will be destroyed and will cease to pay rates: while their ultimate effect will be a considerable addition to the charges devolving upon the Corporation, which will presumably be responsible for the maintenance of the new roads, &c., once they are made over to it. The final net result upon the financial position of the Corporation it is difficult to forecast, and the process of recoupment from the enhanced rates assessed upon property of increased value must necessarily be gradual. It would also be unwise for the purpose of financing this scheme to take any action which would tend to cripple the efficiency of the Corporation.'

"Thus it appears that the fact that the rates of the Corporation may go down during the early years of the Trust was foreseen and allowed for in making the present arrangements which are so favourable to the Corporation.

"It is unnecessary for me to go over the ground so fully covered by the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler. It seems to me quite beside the mark to picture the Trust ending up with a balance of two crores of rupees. It has been impossible to foresee the exact nature of the works to be undertaken by the Trust or to estimate their cost Certain revenues are to be placed at the disposal of the Trust, and it is to spend them to the best advantage. If at any time it has not need for so much money, its income would be at once reduced."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"Sir,—The previous speakers have covered the ground very satisfactorily, and they have left me very little to add. But I desire to emphasise this point more than any other, that when the income of the Corporation will be diminished the present rate-payers will be paying for the benefit of future generations, because on the lowest computation the surplus that will be remaining will be Rs. 1,71,00,000, after putting aside every possible chance. Then, from what the Board will be doing, our own municipal admini tration will be affected by the payment that we are called upon to make.

"The Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has pointed to certain reductions from the original scheme of the payment by the Corporation; but why were those reductions made? Presumably because the payments originally determined upon were found to be unnecessary; and even now, if it is found not to be necessary for us to pay so much as now will be demanded, why should there be that call made upon us? Sir, it must be clearly understood what the position is. With the computation that Rs. 43,60,000 will be borrowed annully, and that amount cannot possibly be increased, if there is no failure of any duty, there will then be an accumulation of 5 crores and 80 lakhs, leaving a net surplus of Rs. 1,71,00,000, and if the stamp duty does not fail the Board gets 5½ lakhs from the Corporation and no more, and if the stamp duty realises 2 lakhs from now, there will then be an accumulation of Rs. 6,44,00,000, and then there will be an ultimate surplus of Rs. 2,50,00,000. This does not count as it is the excess from the 5½ lakhs which will be paid by the Corporation. But computed as that contribution we shall be paying more than 5½ lakhs, so that the accumulations and the net surplus will be something enormous, and we in the present generation would be called upon to contribute nevertheless to increase and swell the ultimate surplus for the benefit of those who will be coming after. I do not know how many years the Trust is going to exist. Are they going to spend all this money in 20 years? It is evident that all needs have been quite sufficiently provided for, and that it is only fair that the allowance asked for should be made to the Corporation.

"I will not occupy the time of this Council any longer, and I submit that on principle, in fairness and justice, this claim which the Corporation make through me to the Council, should be allowed."

The result of the division was Ayes 13, Noes 28, and the motion was therefore lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

426. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "after the expiration of five years from the commencement of this Act" be inserted before the words "The Chairman," in line 1 of clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1)].

427. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "one quarter (or, after the expiration of five years from the commencement of this Act) one-half" be substituted for the words "one-half", in lines 3 and 4 of clause 92(1) [now 88 (1)].

He said :—

"Sir, I simply move it without making any speech. I have suggested an alternative proposal that if amendments Nos. 426 and 430 be not carried, the words "one-quarter (or, after the expiration of five years from the commencement of this Act) one-half" be substituted for the words "one-half" in clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1)] At present we pay 2 per cent. The effect of this amendment will be that during the first five years we will have to pay 5 per cent. and again after 5 years we will have to pay 10 per cent."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"I should oppose the amendment for the reasons which I have already urged."

The motion was then put and lost.

428. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved—

(1) that the words "up to the year 1917" be substituted for the words "so long as the Board continue to exist", in line 3 of clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1)],

(2) that the word "half", in line 4 of clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1)] be omitted, and

(3) that the words "and thereafter at the rate of one-half per cent. per quarter so long as the Board continue to exist" be inserted after the word "quarter", in line 7 of clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1)].

He said:—

"Sir, I do not think it is necessary to say anything further in support of it than what I have said in connection with the other amendment. This will appear to be much less objectionable than the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar's. We propose to pay at a lesser rate up to 1917 and full rate after that period. That would meet the objection of the Hon'ble Member. The effect would be that up to the year 1917 the payment will be at the rate of 1 per cent. instead of 2 per cent. After that the rate will be 1 per cent. and half so long as the Board will continue in existence. That will distribute the burden more equitably and will make the working of the Trust easy and possible. When the first outlay will have been provided for and the subsequent burden will be easier."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, I do not clearly follow my friend's amendment. The Chairman of the Corporation shall pay from the municipal funds to the Board on the first day of each quarter, so long as the Board continue to exist, a sum equivalent to 1½ per cent. per quarter. This means 4 per cent."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"Whatever may be the intention of the Hon'ble Member, the practical effect of his amendment is that the Municipal contribution would be made at the rate of 4 per cent. for the first five years and thereafter at 2 per cent. I scarcely think it is necessary to oppose it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

429. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that for the words "one-half per cent.", in lines 3 and 4 of clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1)], the following be substituted, namely:—

one-fourth per cent. for the first ten years, and thereafter one-half per cent.

431. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that proviso (a) to clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1)] be omitted.

432. If Motion No. 430 be carried, the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that proviso (b) to clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1)] be omitted.

433. If Motions 430 and 432 be not carried, the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that for proviso (b) to clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1)] the following be substituted, namely:—

(b) this sub-section shall not come into operation until the first day of April 1917.

434. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that proviso (b) to clause 92 (1) [now 88 (1)] be omitted.

Clause 92 (2) [now 88 (2)].

435. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that clause 92 (2) [now 88 (2)] be omitted.

436. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "after the year 1917" be inserted after the words "financial year", in line 1 of clause 92 (2) [now 88 (2)].

437. If Motion No. 430 be carried, the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that the words "after the year 1916-17" be inserted after the words "financial year", in line 1 of clause 92 (2) [now 88 (2)].

438. If Motion No. 429 be carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the words "after the first ten years" be inserted after the words "financial year", in line 1 of clause 92 (2) [now 88 (2)].

439. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that the words "the Chairman of," in line 3 of clause 92 (2) [now 88 (2)], be omitted.

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"I should like to say this. I did not hear it, but I have been informed that the Hon'ble Mr. Payne said that the Chairman did sign cheques, but under section 112 of the Calcutta Municipal Act it is distinctly reserved only for the Secretary and the Vice-Chairman to sign cheques."

The Hon'ble MR. PAYNE said:—

"They are not the only authorities to sign cheques. I am afraid the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar has not read the whole of the section."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"Sir, nowhere in the Municipal Act is the Chairman authorized to sign a cheque. However, I will not press this as I shall not gain anything by doing so."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

440. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that to sub-clause (2) the following be added, namely:—

> Provided that this sub-section shall not apply until after the expiration of five years from the commencement of this Act.

He said:—

"Sir, I had been contending that the contribution for the first five years would have been necessary. There is a provision 92 (2) [now 88 (2)] which says that if the contribution from the Corporation plus the receipt of the stamp duty does not amount to 7½ lakhs, the Chairman shall make good the deficit. I have tried to establish that this large sum would not be necessary for the first few years of the Trust, so that the present amendment that I seek to move has this object in view, namely, that for the first five years you should be content with your 2 per cent. plus the receipt of the stamp duty without throwing the additional burden upon the Corporation. It will only be a relief to the well-deserving rate-paying public of Calcutta."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"This is a small variation of the amendment which has already been rejected by the Council. It would have the effect of postponing the guarantee for a period of five years. I do not think any such concession is called for, especially if it is the case that there is very little likelihood that the guarantee will ever require to be enforced."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

441. If Motions 435 and 440 be not carried, the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "six lakhs" be substituted for the words "seven and-a-half lakhs", in lines 3, 5 and 6 of clause 92 (2 [now 88 (2)].

Clause 92 (4) [now 88 (4)].

441A. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that the words "but not exceeding 15 per cent." be added at the end of clause 92 (4) [now 88 (4)].

He said:—

"Sir, there is no limit in this clause. I want to put in 'not exceeding 15 per cent.' The general rate is 13 per cent., and I think that there ought to be a maximum limit placed, and there is ample margin allowed. I would, therefore, ask the Council to accept 15 per cent. as the stated maximum."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said :—

"I cannot see any reason for accepting the amendment. At present the maximum of the general rate is 13 per cent. The amendment seeks to ensure that not more than 15 per cent. should ever be levied. It is not desirable to impose any absolute limit in this Bill. We may readily hope that it will not be necessary to raise the general rate beyond 15 per cent., but if the liabilities of the Corporation cannot be met without doing so, the rates must be raised. My answer is that the merits of the demand for a contribution from the Calcutta Corporation rest on grounds which do not give any basis for an arbitrary maximum of this description."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 92 (now 88), new sub-clause (5).

442. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that after clause 92 (4), the following be inserted, namely :—

(5) Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, the contribution from the Corporation shall not be payable until the first day of April, 1917, unless, in the opinion of the Local Government, the finances of the Board render its payment imperative.

He said :—

"Sir, here it will be observed that the matter is placed in the hands of Government, and I think that if this contribution is to be exacted, at all events let it be in the form that is here proposed."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said :—

"This is in one sense the reverse of what we have introduced in the Bill. We have it in the Bill that the contribution shall be levied unless, under clause 194, the Local Government chooses to suspend it. I think that the wording of the Bill is eminently preferable."

The motion was then put and lost.

443. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that after clause 92 (4) [now 88 (4)], the following be inserted, namely :—

(5) Notwithstanding anything hereinbefore contained, the contribution from the Corporation shall, until the first day of April, 1917, be one quarter per cent., in lieu of one-half per cent. per quarter on the annual rateable valuation referred to in sub-section (1).

He said :—

"Sir, this is reducing the payment by 1 per cent. instead of 2 per cent. until the first day of April, 1917."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"That has practically been decided."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"If Your Honour thinks it has, I have nothing more to say."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

Clause 96 (now 89).

444. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "(not being less than sixty years)" be inserted after the word "period," in line 2 of clause 96 (now 89).

He said:—

"This is somewhat a difficult financial question regarding which there may be difference of opinion. Unless it is accepted as a reasonable safeguard for the matter of taking loans, I do not wish to press it."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"I submit, Sir, that it is not desirable to insert a rigid minimum period of 60 years in the Bill. In the course of the discussion of the Bill, it has been assumed that the loans raised will ordinarily be for 60 years, but circumstances might render a variation desirable, and each case should be judged on its own merits. As the Bill stands, these things would be decided by the Local Government and the Government of India, and the elasticity thus allowed is preferable to the specification of a definite minimum."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir, I do not wish to press it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

445. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the word "previously," in clause 96 (b) [now 89 (b)], be omitted.

Clause 99 (now 91).

446. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "not exceeding the rate approved under section 96" be added at the end of clause 99 (now 91).

He said:—

"Here, Sir, in clause 99 (now 91), I desire to have the rate of interest limited to what has been, or may have been, sanctioned under clause 96, even with regard to short loans such as are contemplated by clause 99 (now 91). It ought not to be open to the Trust to raise money from the Bank, or whatever is sanctioned under clause 99 (now 91) in a definite rate, and therefore I seek to bring in the words the effect of which will be that the rate will be governed by what may have been sanctioned by Government under clause 96."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"The object of clause 99 (now 91), Sir, is to provide for a case that may arise in which, although the Board has received permission to float a loan, it is not immediately desirable to put it upon the market. In that event, temporary accommodation may be sought from a Bank. If the amendment were accepted, it would have the effect of requiring that the interest on a temporary overdraft shall in no circumstances be greater than on a loan for 60 years. But the two things are in no way comparable, and they are not governed by similar considerations. The amendment seems to be based on a misapprehension and I would oppose it."

The motion was then put and lost.

New clause 99A.

447. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas moved that after clause 99 (now 91), the following be inserted, namely :—

Division of borrowed money to purposes other than those first approved.

99A. When any sum of money has been borrowed under section 96 or section 99 for the purpose of meeting particular expenditure or repaying a particular loan, no portion thereof shall be applied to any other purpose without the previous sanction of the Local Government.

He said :—

"I have the honour to move this amendment which provides that funds raised for a particular purpose should not be devoted to any other purpose without the previous sanction of the Local Government. As the sanction of the Local Government is required for the raising of a loan for a certain purpose, it is desirable that the approval of the Local Government should be obtained if the money raised for that particular loan be diverted to some other purpose."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 100 (now 93).

448. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "two other Trustees" be substituted for the words "one other Trustee," in clause 100 (1a) [now 93 (2)].

He said :—

"If my friend does not wish to accept this amendment, I would not move it. I thought it would be a protection if two Trustees would sign the debentures, as in the case of Municipal debentures."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said :—

"It is the case that the Municipal debentures are signed by the Chairman and two Commissioners. The Bill says that the debentures of the Board shall be signed by the President and one Trustee. I do not think there is any reason to require more than this, and my impression is, that we were told in Select Committee that in ordinary commercial practice the signature of two responsible officers of a company was considered to be sufficient."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"As my friend does not wish to accept this amendment, I would, with Your Honour's permission, withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

449. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "and without any preference over loans of later dates taken from Banks under section 99 (now 91)" be added at the end of clause 100 (4) [now 93 (5)].

He said :—

"This I seek to bring in, Sir, in order that the Bank loans provided under clause 99 (now 91) may be on the same footing as the debentures. I think all the parties concerned ought to be on the same plane, and if that is accepted, the debenture-holders ought not to be preferentially treated from the Bank."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"I submit, Sir, that the amendment is based upon some misapprehension. The clause merely provides that all debentures, for the purpose of suing in respect of them shall rank pari passu, irrespective of their actual date. The amendment refers to the case of a temporary overdraft at a Bank, but I do not think that that is in any sense relevant."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"If there is any misapprehension with regard to the matter, I do not press it"

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

Clause 105 (now 98).

450. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that to clause 105 (now 98) the following be added, namely:—

(f) by the purchase and cancellation of debentures issued under this Act.

He said:—

"Does my friend accept this suggestion of mine? I think it is a business-like suggestion that would be useful in the repayment of our loans."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"The Hon'ble Member has raised a very difficult financial point, and I would strongly recommend the Council not to touch it on the present occasion. Clause 105 (now 98) deals with the permissible methods of the repayment of debt, and the manner in which that will ordinarily be done is by the establishment of a Sinking Fund. It is difficult to discuss rather complicated financial questions briefly, and I apologise if I indicate the general line of argument upon which this amendment is based in somewhat sketchy terms. The theory of a Sinking Fund is that the borrowing body sets apart each year a certain percentage of the outstanding loan, which is invested in securities and held in a Sinking Fund, which, if it is on a sound basis, will have matured, at the expiry of the currency of the loan, to the full amount originally borrowed. That amount will then be taken from the Sinking Fund and the loan will be discharged. Since, however, it is permissible to invest the Sinking Fund in the securities of the Board, it is argued by some people that there is no advantage in locking up such debentures in the Sinking Fund and paying interest to the Sinking Fund upon them, but that it is much simpler to cancel the debentures as they are bought up, and thereby wipe them out of existence. One advantage claimed for this procedure is that it would not then be necessary to resell the securities and incur commission charges when it was sought to realize the Sinking Fund. So far, the theory sounds simple, and it contemplates what is known as the procedure of a Loans Fund as contrasted with that of a Sinking Fund. But in practice various difficulties may arise. The theory of a Loans Fund would view the indebtedness of the Board as a whole. It would require that each year the Board should set apart a percentage of the loan which, multiplied by the number of years for which the loan will be current, will be equivalent to the whole of the loan. Thus, if the loan was for 50 years, 2 per cent. would be set aside annually. This sum would be devoted at the discretion of the Board, to buying up its debentures in the market, as they became available, after which they would be cancelled, and since under this theory the full amount of the loan is eventually paid to the Loans Fund, the total indebtedness of the Board must in the long run be discharged. But there is one difficulty in that it may not be always possible to invest the contribution to the Loans Fund, set aside in respect of a particular loan, in the debentures of that loan. They may be invested in the debentures of other loans, and it may thus happen that when the loan to be repaid falls in, very few of its debentures have been cancelled, and the Board would then have to re-borrow to discharge the greater part of the loan. It may not happen, in the conditions of the Indian money market, that this is always convenient. There is another difficulty as to whether it will always be possible to buy up the debentures of the Board at or below par, and it is also debateable what effect these purchases and cancellations will have upon the market value of the Board's debentures. Then, again, there is a somewhat controversial point as to how far it is permissible to invest the contributions to the Loans Fund in the debentures of new loans, that is to say, to utilise the Loans Fund for the avoidance of debt. I have touched upon these points in a very brief manner, but the amendment is probably the outcome of certain discussions which we have had recently with the Calcutta Corporation as to the amendment of the Calcutta Municipal Act as regards its Sinking Fund. It was then urged that the procedure of a Loans Fund should be introduced. The Local Government considered the question, and was of opinion that, in the circumstances of this country, it was not, for various reasons, desirable to do so; but we have referred the matter to the Government of India for an expression of opinion and in order that the views of other commercial centres, for instance, Bombay, may be ascertained. Should the Government of India decide, as the outcome of that enquiry, that the procedure of a Loans Fund is suitable, the provisions of various Acts will be affected, and among them may be the present Bill. If so, there may be an occasion for an amendment hereafter, but for the present I would urge that it will be much better not to attempt to make this innovation in the Bill."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, I may remind my hon'ble friend that it is only an alternative suggestion. Of course, I leave it to my friend. If hereafter the procedure is sanctioned by the Government of India, the Trust will be in a position to adopt it."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"If the amendment is inserted in its present form, it will be a dead letter, and would not completely attain the object in view. It would be necessary to add consequential provisions as to how the Loans Fund was to be dealt with, and regarding the position of the Trustees to the Sinking Fund. None of these details have yet been elaborated, and even assuming the soundness of the intention of the amendment, it would not be secured, even if it was accepted.

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"In that case I withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, with your permission, I will move an amendment to this clause. I would move that the words 'subject to the provisions of section 128, sub-section (2)' be inserted before the words 'by such,' in line 3 of clause 105.

This clause (105) (now 98) provides the methods by which loans are to be repaid, and it is desirable that in clause 105 (now 98) there should be a mention of clause 128 (now 125), because clause 128 (now 125) indicates a manner in which loans outstanding at the end of sixty years may be liquidated."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 106 (now 101).

451. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "Bank of Bengal shares" be substituted for the words "debentures issued by the Board," in clause 106 (d).

He said:—

"Sir, this is a difficult matter, and I am not sure that I have followed the Honbl'e Mr. Wheeler and the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu in their arguments. If what the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler says is sound with regard to the amendment on clause 105 (now 98), sub-clause (f), moved by the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu, the debentures issued by the Board would be a likely mode of investment of the money by the Board.

"Issue debentures by the Board is allowed under section 106 (now 101) as one of the modes of investment. What the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu wanted under clause 105 (now 98) to do, was to extinguish the loans by purchase and cancellation of debentures issued under this Act. Of course, belief in oneself is very healthful and reassuring. It reminds me of the great German general to whom a bullet-proof coat was brought by a would be patantee. He straightaway ordered the artist to put it on and took his rifle up to test whether the coat was really bullet-proof or not. From that point of view, it would be an extremely reassuring thing for the Board to invest in its own debentures, which businesslike bodies like the Bank of Bengal do not. The Bank of Bengal will not advance money on their shares, as that is forbidden by their rules. Taking, however, that it is desirable to extinguish as much as possible of the existing loan of the Board, by buying in their own debentures and thereby extinguishing them, I do not quite follow how the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu's previous amendment was not acceptable. If, however, the objection to that obtains, objection against my amendment, if there is any, ought to disappear. I, therefore, move my amendment which provides for an alternative mode of investment."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"Clause 106 (now 101) deals with the various forms of securities in which it is permissible to invest the Sinking Fund, among which are the debentures of the Board itself. It is, I believe, true that this is not in accordance with English practice, but the purchase of its own securities is allowed both to the Calcutta Corporation and to the Bombay Trust, and I can see no sufficient reason for refusing it in the case of the Calcutta Trust. The second part of the amendment, which permits investment in shares of the Bank of Bengal, seems to be undesirable, and I cannot support it. The general principle is that a Sinking Fund should only be invested in securities of public bodies, and it would be decidedly unusual to permit the purchase of Bank shares, the value of which may fluctuate considerably from time to time.

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 108 (now 103).

452. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that after clause 108 (now 103) (d) the following be inserted, namely:—

and

(e) the aggregate amount already paid into the sinking fund.

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"We accept this amendment with certain modifications, and I suggest that the motion should run:—

and

(e) the aggregate amount already paid into each sinking fund."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"That is a distinct improvement, Sir, and I accept it."

The motion was then put in the altered form and agreed to.

Clause 110 (now 105).

453. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that the words "the Chairman of," in line 1 of the third paragraph in clause 110 (now 105) (1) and in line 1 of clause 110 (now 105) (2), be omitted.

He said :—

"Sir, with regard to this, there is a strange misapprehension, because the law is perfectly clear, that only the Secretary and the Vice-Chairman sign a cheque. The hon'ble member, the late Deputy Chairman, said to an amendment I previously moved that I had not read the whole of the section, as an answer: the rest of the section reads that, it is only in the event of the sickness or absence of either of them that the Chairman can appoint anyone to sign in place of either of them. It seems strange to me that this matter should be pressed against me. I will submit it for the consideration of the Council."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I oppose this amendment for the same reasons that I opposed a similar amendment. Somebody has got to pay this sum, and the Chairman will have legislative authority to do so when this Bill is passed. And there is another advantage, too, and that is, that if the Chairman fails to pay, you can get an order from the High Court to compel him to pay and ultimately you can put him into prison, but you cannot put the whole Corporation into prison."

The motion was then put and lost.

454. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "and shall debit the same against the amount payable by the Corporation to the Board" be inserted at the end of line 12 of clause 110 (now 105) (1).

He said :—

"Sir, it appears to me necessary to put in these words, so that without any obscurity it may be at once indicated that the amount of money that may be paid in under this clause will be debited against the amount payable to the Board, in order to make the account quite clear and square."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I resist this amendment, Sir. We now come to the guarantee clause. This guarantee is in addition to the income which the Trust will derive under the provisions of this Bill. The proposal of the Hon'ble Member is that there shall be no additional guarantee, but that if the Trust defaults the Corporation may make an advance to the Trust and recover it out of the next yearly contribution. But it is necessary that the guarantee, of the Corporation to Government should be a real and effective guarantee, as only on those terms will Government guarantee the Trust's loans to the public. If the amendment is carried, there will be no addition at all to the resources of the Trust.'

The motion was then put and lost.

455. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that clause 110 (now 105) (2) be omitted.

He said :—

"Sir, I am afraid it is far too large a measure to go down, and, therefore, I shall not take up the time by trying to fight such a hopeless battle at this time of the day."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

456. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that after the words "for that purpose," in line 5 of clause 110 (now 105) (2), the following be inserted, namely :—

after all the taxes leviable under this Act have been imposed to the full.

He said :—

"I do not propose the deletion of the clause. My proposal is quite simple."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I think the Hon'ble Member will be pleased to learn that I will accept it with certain modifications. I would propose that at the end of clause 110 (now 105) (2), the following be added, namely:—

Provided that no such increase shall be made unless the taxes imposed by sections 72 and 73 are levied at the maximum rates, respectively, prescribed by those sections.

I hope the Hon'ble Member will accept it."

The motion was then put in the altered form and agreed to.

Clause 111 (now 106).

457. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that the words "the Chairman of," in line 1 of clause 111, be omitted.

He said:—

"Sir, here we have got the same point. 'If the Chairman of the Corporation fails to make any payment, the Local Government may attach the Municipal funds or any of them.' Why should the Chairman be put in a position like that? Why should they depend on the Chairman failing to pay, when the Government might proceed directly? I cannot conceive why this extraordinary instance is persisted in."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, as the other amendments of the same nature have been lost, I need not oppose it at length. But I do oppose it."

The motion was then put and lost.

The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, with the permission of the President, moved that at the end of clause 111 (now 106), the following be added, namely:—

Provided that no such increase shall be made in consequence of any failure of the Chairman of the Corporation to make any payment as required by section 110, unless the taxes imposed by sections 72 and 73 are levied at the maximum rates, respectively, prescribed by those sections.

He said:—

"This follows the lines of the modified amendment No. 456 which has just been accepted."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 112 (now 107).

458. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that the words "the Chairman of," in line 1 of clause 112 (now 107), be omitted.

The motion was put and lost.

Clause 113 (1) [now 108 (1)].

459. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that for the words "The President," in line 1 of clause 113 (1) [now 108 (1)], the following be substituted, namely:—

A special committee of the Board, consisting of the President and three Trustees.

He said:—

"It is a very small matter. In the Corporation the General Committee, and not the Chairman, prepare the Budget. I would suggest here that instead of the President, a special committee, consisting of two elected and one nominated member, should be appointed to prepare the Budget."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said :—

"The proposal, Sir, would render it obligatory to have a Budget Sub-Committee, and I doubt if this is necessary. Under clause 18 (now 20) the Board can always appoint a Budget Committee if it wishes to. The precedent of the Calcutta Corporation is not to the point, because the Chairman lays the estimate in the first instance before the General Committee and the latter frames the budget. This cases questions of the constitution of the Corporation, and it would be difficult, apart from this, for the Corporation to frame the budget, since the Corporation is a large body comprising 50 members; whereas the Trust is a very small body of 11 only. I think the provisions of clause 18 (now 20) are sufficient for practical purposes, and no special sub-committee is required. There as no such committee in Bombay."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said :—

"There is also a Budget Committee in the Corporation."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

460. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "not later than the tenth day" be inserted after the word "held," in line 1 of clause 113 (1) [now 108 (1)].

Clause 114 (now 109).

461. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "not later than the tenth day of March," be inserted after the word "same," in line 2 of clause 114 (now 109).

Clause 119 (now 114).

462. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that sub-clauses (c), (d) and (e) of clause 119 (3) [now 114 (3)] be omitted.

Clause 122 (now 116).

463. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "Local Government" be substituted for the word "Board," in line 2 of clause 122 (now 116) (a).

He said :—

"I think this is a necessary safeguard. The Board is already getting spoilt enough. It will legislate for itself; it will be a judge with regard to its own cases; it will be its own assessor and its own executive agency. It is not content with all this power; and it will also choose its bankers. I think in the matter of the choice of bankers, the approval of Government should be obtained."

The HON'BLE MR. WHEELER said :—

"We are prepared to accept this amendment."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

Clause 122A (now 117).

464. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "subject to the provisions of section 110," in line 1 of clause 122A (now 117) (1), be omitted.

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I will accept this amendment, Sir."

The motion was put and agreed to.

464A. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas moved that the words "the account referred to in section 120" be substituted for the words "the said account," in clause 122A (now 117) (1).

He said :—

"This is only a verbal amendment, Sir. It sounds better as it is amended now."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 123 (now 120).

465. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the word "includes" be substituted for the word "means," in line 2 of clause 123 (1) [now 120 (1).]

He said :—

"This is a matter which I leave to the department to consider. I am glad that our relations with the Hon'ble Members in charge of the Bill towards the end are slightly improving. They surely do not mean to limit the cost of the management to the item indicated. There may be many that will come in and 'includes' will be a safer word than 'means,' which would be a limiting word; 'includes' will be a permissive word."

The HON'BLE MR. WHEELER said :—

"We are advised that the wording of the Bill is preferable."

The HON'BLE BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"My suggestion certainly makes the matter explicit. Anyhow, I do not wish to press it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

Clause 124 (now 121.)

466. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "each general improvement scheme and each street scheme" be substituted for the words "each improvement scheme," in line 2 of clause 124 (now 121) (2).

He said :—

"Sir, I beg to move that the words 'each general improvement scheme and each street scheme' be substituted for the words 'each improvement scheme,' in clause 2 of section 124 (now 121) (2), because improvement scheme may not include a street scheme."

The HON'BLE MR. WHEELER said :—

"The Hon'ble Member appears to have overlooked the definition of an improvement scheme in clause 2 (d) (1), which I think meets the object of the amendment."

The HON'BLE BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"Then, Sir, I withdraw it."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

Clause 125 (now 122).

467. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "except interest," in clause 125 (now 122) (a), be omitted.

468. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "(if any)", in line 1 of clause 125 (now 122) (h), be omitted.

Clause 127 (now 124).

469. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause 127 (now 124) (a) be omitted.

Clause 134 (now 133).

470. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "and report the same to the Local Government" be added at the end of clause 134 (now 133) (a).

The HON'BLE MR. WHEELER said :—

"We accept the amendment."

The motion was then put and agreed to.

471. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "and send a copy thereof to the Local Government" be added at the end of clause 134 (now 133) (c).

He said :—

"On similar grounds I would ask Your Honour to put this amendment. It proceeds on the same lines."

The HON'BLE MR. WHEELER said :—

"The effect of the amendment is that the auditor would be required to send a copy of the audit report in all cases to the Local Government. We discussed the matter in the Select Committee, and we were of opinion that since the audit report was a document of a long and detailed nature, dealing with many petty items, there was no necessity of troubling the Local Government with it. In Bombay a copy of the audit report is not sent to Government, nor is this the practice in the case of the Calcutta Corporation."

The HON'BLE BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"I think, Sir, I shall insist upon this as a very necessary safeguard, which I thought my friends would not have seen their way to resist. Here is a very peculiar position, and we are relying entirely upon the Local Government for all the safeguards that may be conceived under the circumstances, and that are allowed under the Act. I do not see why such a very reasonable proposal should not be accepted."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 135 (now 136).

472. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "with such rectification as may be possible" be inserted after the word "relates," in line 3 of clause 135 (now 136).

The HON'BLE MR. WHEELER said :—

"This scarcely seems to be necessary, as the Board will have to publish their accounts in as correct a form as possible, and we must assume that the Board would not willingly publish accounts which they knew to be inaccurate."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

Clause 136 (now 137) (1).

473. If Motions Nos. 25 and 55 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "(2a) and (2b)" be substituted for the words "and (2a)", in clause 136 (now 137) (1).

474. If Motion No. 56 or Motion No. 57 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "(2a) and (2b)" be substituted for the words "and (2a)," in clause 136 (now 137) (1.)

Clause 136 (now 137) (2).

475. If Motion No. 130 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that clause 136 (now 137) (2) be omitted.

Clause 136 (now 137) (3).

476. If Motion No. 239 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause 136 (now 137) (3) be omitted.

Clause 137 (now 138).

477. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "associating members with" be substituted for the words "adding members to," in clause 137 (b) [now 138 (a)].

The HON'BLE Mr. BOMPAS said :—

"I will accept it, Sir, and I will also ask the Hon'ble Member to move an amendment consequential to it."

The HON'BLE BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"Yes, it refers to clause 137 (2) (b) [now 138 (2) (a)]. I beg to add that it was an omission that escaped the lynx eye."

The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari, with the permission of the President, also moved that the words "associated with" be substituted for the words "added to" in clause 137 (b1) [now 138 (2) (b)].

Both motions were put and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

478. If Motion No. 260 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the word "buildings" be substituted for the words "dwellings and shops," in clause 137(e) [now 138 (g)].

479. If Motion No. 262 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "for persons of the poorer and working classes" be inserted after the words "dwellings and shops," in clause 137 (e) [now 138 (g).]

Clause 142 (now 143).

480. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that for the words "Boards, with the rules, made under section 136 and section 137 printed thereon, or with printed copies of the said rules affixed thereto," in lines 1 to 3 of clause 142 (now 143), the following be substituted, namely :—

Copies of the rules made under section 136 and section 137.

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I will accept this amendment in a modified form. I should like to have it in the following form:—

that for the words 'Boards, with the rules made under section 136 and section 187 printed thereon, or with printed copies of the said rules affixed thereto, in English and Bengali', in lines 1 to 3 of clause 142 (now 143), the following be substituted, namely: —

Copies, in English and Bengali, of all rules made under section 136 or section 137."

The HON'BLE BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir, this is a verbal amendment, and I put it in the form modified by the Hon'ble Member in charge. Yes, Sir, some such alteration is necessary; and then the whole thing would have a less wooden appearance. We dot not want any boards with rules and the Board's office, to confuse us.

"Whatever commends itself to my friends on the opposite, will be acceptable to us so long as they see the necessity for the change that I request."

The motion was put in the altered form and agreed to

Clause 144 (now 145).

481. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "and every member and officer and servant of the Tribunal" be inserted after the word "Board," in line 2 of clause 144 (now 145).

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I accept this amendment, Sir."

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 147 (now 149).

482. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "and credited to the capital account" be inserted after the word "disposal," in line 2 of clause 147 (now 149) (1) (a).

He said:—

"This is one of those necessary amendments that struck me. It is for my friends to consider whether they will have it or not. It is more or less verbal; something has to be done in the matter, and I suggest that it should be so provided that it may be credited to the capital account However, it is for my friends opposite to consider."

The HON'BLE MR. WHEELER said:—

"The amendment seems to be rather out of place here. The question of what is debited to the capital account is dealt with in clause 126 (a4) [now 123 (c)], under which payments in pursuance of section 147, otherwise than for interest or for expenses of maintenance or working, are debited to capital. Under clause 128 (c2) [now 125 (e)] payments for working and maintenance charges are debited to revenue. The amendment would debit to capital any sums paid for interest on capital expended in connection with the improvement of the means of locomotion. Interest on the Board's loans is debitable to revenue, and these payments seem analogous in nature. I would prefer to leave the clause as it stands."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"I do not wish to press it, Sir."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

Clause 150 (now 151).

483. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that clause 150 (now 151) be omitted.

He said:—

"I wish to draw attention to the fact that in this clause there is no provision whatever as to what would happen if that offence was to take place outside Calcutta. Jurisdiction is limited to the Presidency Magistrate, as also in the following section. If I am in error in regard to that, I shall be glad to be corrected; and if I am not, it would be somewhat risky to provide for offences within Calcutta and to leave out the suburbs which are certainly a part of Municipal Calcutta. I do not know what the answer of my hon'ble friend is with regard to this. If it is intended that it is only with regard to where the jurisdiction of the Presidency Magistrate runs, it is provided for and it is not necessary in the case of outside suburbs. If that is not the intention, the best course would be to leave the two sections and let the ordinary course of law to take its course."

The Hon'ble MR. SLACKE said:—

"Sir,—As I understand the clause, it provides that offences against the provisions of the Bill, no matter where such offences are committed, shall be tried by a Presidency Magistrate, and I see no reason to alter the clause."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir,—If that can be properly done under the law as it stands, and in view of the opinion that has been submitted to this Council, I have nothing further to say. I have my doubts, and I have drawn attention of the department to it; and in view of the explanation just given by the Vice-President of the Council, I do not wish to press it. This will govern the next amendment also."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

Clause 151 (now 152).

484. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the word "Presidency", in line 3 of clause 151 (now 152), be omitted.

Clause 152 (now 153).

485. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause 152 (now 153) be omitted.

486. If Motion No. 485 be not carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the word "Presidency", in line 2 of clause 152 (now 153), be omitted.

Clause 154 (now 155).

487. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that clause 154 (now 155) be omitted.

He said:—

"Sir,—I beg to move this amendment, because I think that with regard to important matters like this the jurisdiction of the civil court ought not to be ousted. When an officer does anything in good faith, what he is required to do under the Act, his safeguards in a Court of Law are ample and sufficient, and he requires no artificial safeguard of the type that this clause contemplates and no clear case for which has, so far as I know, been made out in the Statement of Objects and Reasons or elsewere. We have not yet come to the definition portion of the Bill. When we do that, I shall have to move an amendment with regard to what good faith is. But whatever that definition may ultimately turn out to be, successive rulings have made it quite and abundantly clear that persons acting bonâ fide need have no fear if a reckless litigant happens to drag him in a court of law. The safeguard of a trial in open court when one's conduct is in question is to be welcomed rather than deprecated. It has its attendant costs and disadvantages no doubt. But the person recklessly rushing into court takes many risks if his claim is not well grounded, and if it is so, it is undesirable to preclude his redress by statutory enactment of this kind, simply because this Legislature is strong enough and is supposed to be competent to do so. Sir, this question was considered at length recently in connection with an important piece of legislation that this enlarged Council had to deal with. I refer to the Calcutta Police Bill. I pointed out then, and I feel it my duty to point out again, that whatever may be the differing views of things regarding the jurisdiction of this Council for amending Imperial Legislature Acts that affect this province, there is certainly more than doubt as to whether we, in this Council, in spite of the sanction of the Imperial Government recited in the preamble of the Bill, can in any way interfere with the jurisdiction of the High Court. There can be no question or doubt that this section, so far as Calcutta proper is concerned, would be interfering with the jurisdiction of the High Court which has seizin, unless it is prevented, of all suits that the King-Emperor's subjects think fit to take to that Tribunal. The High Court is our usual shield of liberty, as it has always been, and will always be regarded in this country, and he is no friend of the country or the constitution that makes all possible and impossible on it. What case, I ask, has been made out for taking away or interfering with that jurisdiction? If I say the Board has acted bonâ fide, its officers and servants are perfectly immune without this artificial barrier between the people and their King's Court. Sir, there is, I know, a keen tendency in recent times to put a stop to these suits as much as possible, and unfortunately for us that endeavour has succeeded in the past. It has not yet had the test of efficiency and success in our courts, but if it is ever to be a question, and I hope and trust the occasion will never arise, I feel bound to say that I have serious doubts as to whether, in spite of our enactments, a proper suit will ever be shut out. I shall not say more, because the time at our disposal is very short; but this is a question upon which I feel very strongly, and I should have done less than my duty if I did not bring to the notice of the Council in some slight way the very serious objection to a clause like this."

The Hon'ble MR. SLACKE said:—

"I bring to the notice of the Council, Sir, that this is no new provision which has been inserted in the Bill. It is taken verbally from the Calcutta Municipal Act of 1899, and similar provisions will be found in other Acts anterior to that one. So the Hon'ble Member need not be afraid that it was specially introduced in this Bill. I would ask the Hon'ble Members to adopt this clause as it is worded."

The Hon'ble MR. K. B. DUTT said:—

"I associate myself with every single word which has fallen from my hon'ble friend, Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari. I am aware, as I have no doubt that the Hon'ble Members are aware, that there is that provision in the Calcutta Municipal Act, and as far as my recollection goes I think it is also in the Bengal Municipal Act, but that is, I submit, absolutely no justification why a provision which is now being introduced in the Reformed Council should find place in a statute book. To my mind it seems that this section practically invades the unlimited jurisdiction which the Civil Court exercises, and I have very grave doubts if this Council has really the power to introduce a section like that which will interfere with an Imperial Act. However that may be, there can be no objection in omitting the provision of this Act, and I think it will have a very salutary effect with any one who is connected with the Trust, and I have no doubt, Sir, as you have seen that the other Members have seen that this Act gives very large powers to those who will have to exercise these powers. I do not for one single moment suggest that these powers are likely to be abused, but at the same time it would be desirable that those who are entrusted to exercise these very large powers will also be amenable to the Civil Courts of the country. With these observations, I fully support this amendment, and I consider that if the question is broached purely from convenience and also from necessity, I have not the slightest doubt that the Hon'ble Members will find their way to support the measure which will, on the one hand, enlist the sympathy of the people and, on the other, it will in no way interfere with its smooth working."

"I beg also to submit that the protection which has been sought to be given to the Board and the officers and the servants of the Board is in pursuance of the principle which was first adopted in Act XVIII of 1850, which gives protection to judicial officers. This principle of protection was recognized and made applicable to the case of judicial officers for enabling them to act with independence in the discharge of their duties. If the judicial officers did not enjoy such protection their acts might be questioned, and they might be tried in the Court in the shape of suits against them. That would be largely detrimental to the judicial work. This principle has been adopted in the Calcutta Municipal Act, but I venture to submit that the protection ought not to be extended to the case of such an important body as the Board of Trust of the Calcutta Improvement. There should be a check against the abuse of the powers of the Board. I do not mean to say that abuse will take place, but still the withholding of this protection would be a sufficient safeguard against the vagaries of the members of the Board and its officers and servants. If the protection has been simply given to the members of the Board only, something might have been said in its favour, but the protection goes even to its officers and servants. Who knows of what degree of honesty or ability or capacity these officers and servants might be? I need not repeat the argument put forward by my hon'ble friend, Mr. Dutt, which deals with the jurisdiction of the Court. The right of an individual to sue is sought to be restricted, and the jurisdiction of the Court should not be encroached upon and taken away."

The Hon'ble BABU MAHENDRA NATH RAY said:—

"Sir, I am sorry, extremely sorry, that I do not share the apprehensions entertained by my hon'ble friends. This section, as has been pointed out, is not a new feature in the Provincial Legislature. It does not, and cannot possibly, work any mischief and would not oust the jurisdiction of the Civil Courts. If, however, the officer concerned can prove, and I take it from the wording of this section that the onus of proof will be upon him, that he had acted in good faith and with due care and attention, the jurisdiction of the Civil Court will cease. It will prevent vexatious litigation."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I am much obliged to the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray for coming to our assistance in this matter, for I was becoming rather daunted by the array of legal knowledge against this clause.

"I do not wish to argue this matter on high legal grounds, but I must say that the arguments of the supporters of the amendment seemed to be mutually destructive. They first argued that you were giving some unreasonable and nefarious protection to the officers of the Trust which would be detrimental to the public, and, secondly, that the clause, if not absolutely invalid, would be entirely infructuous and would not in the least affect the proceedings of the Courts. I am inclined to leave the matter there. The clause is taken from the Calcutta Municipal Act, and it seems to me that you are not giving a very dangerous amount of protection to a man if you say that a suit shall not be maintained against him if he has acted not only legally, but also in good faith and also with due care and attention."

The HON'BLE BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas is welcome to appropriate the strength of the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray's authority; but he will find that it is somewhat of a broken reed. I was following the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray with very great interest and attention, and I have not been able yet to make up my mind whether he was speaking on my side of the question or on the other. I wish I could share his roseate view, and could believe that when the matter went up to a court of law, the court of law would without difficulty accept his view. I should be very pleased if it did. So far as the mutually destructive character of the two criticisms referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas goes, all that I should like to say is this: if it has that effect, a Legislature seriously legislating ought to be very careful whether it should legislate anything so ineffective, as it has been enacted here according to the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray. I am afraid the Vice-President of the Council did not quite understand me, for I never suggested that it was a novel and new feature that we were first introducing, and our grievance was quite the other way, for we complain that we had been carving away steadily the rights and jurisdiction of the civil courts. If the municipal officer, the excise officer, the police officer and lastly the Improvement Trust officer, are all to have this immunity provided under the various Acts this Legislature passes, I emphatically say that it is not a healthy state of things and ought to be discountenanced."

The motion was then put and lost.

488. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "or the President of the Board or any Trustee" be inserted after the word "Board," in line 1 of clause 154 (now 155).

488A. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas moved that the words "or any Trustee" be inserted after the word "Board," in line 1 of clause 154 (now 155).

He said:—

"I will accept it if the word 'any Trustee' is inserted. The President is a Trustee, so it is unnecessary to refer to him separately. This comes under amendment 488A, which I was to have moved."

The motion was then, with the consent of the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu, put in the form proposed by the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, and agreed to.

488B. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas moved that the words "or of the President" be inserted after the word "Board," where it first occurs in line 3 of clause 154 (now 55).

He said:—

"The amendment is much the same as has just been accepted by the Council. Any person acting for the Board or the President gets a somewhat vague protection if he is acting in good faith."

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, there is only one thing that I wish to point out in connection with this amendment. In our definition we have defined the 'President' and the 'Trustees,' separately. 'President' means the President of the Board [clause 2(h)] and 'Trustee' means a member of the Board [clause 2(j)]. In clause 4 the definition disappears, where we say that the Board shall consist of 11 trustees. I wanted to bring this to the notice of the Hon'ble Member in charge."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"The President of the Board is a member of the Board and is a trustee."

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Sir, what struck me was this: that the definition in clause 4 might be inconsistent."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I doubt it. The President is a member of the Board under clause 4 and is one of the 11 trustees."

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Then that is all right."
The motion was then put and agreed to.

489. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that at the end of clause 154 (now 155) the following be inserted, namely:—

"but the onus of proving legality, good faith and due care and attention, shall lie on the defendant."

He said:—

"Sir, the amendment which I propose to move is, I believe, superfluous. The general practice in the Civil Court is that when a public servant is accused of acting in bad faith and without care and attention, the burden is on him to prove the contrary. This practice should also be followed in this Bill, and I do not see why these words should not be added at the end of clause 154 (now 155)."

The HON'BLE MR. K. B. DUTT said:—

"Sir, I support this amendment. I have no doubt, Sir, that you are fully aware that sometimes in a Court of Justice we have to depend to a very large extent, if I am permitted to say, on the whims of the judge before whom the case comes up. As this amendment proposes to do away with all these difficulties, I have no doubt that the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill will accept this amendment."

The HON'BLE MR. CHAPMAN said:—

"I think this amendment would be wrong in principle. The clause, as it stands, protects an officer only if he acts lawfully and in good faith and with due care and attention. The clause, as it stands, does not add any protection which the law does not provide already. The addition of this amendment would make this clause undersirable, because it would lay the onus of proof on the officer not only to show that he was acting lawfully, but also to prove that a lawful act was done by him in good faith. It would be going beyond every principle of law. The law requires that the onus of proving malice or negligence should lie upon the plaintiff.

The HON'BLE RAI SITANATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"So that I can reply that it is not the practice for the plaintiff to prove bad faith, but for the defendant to prove that he acted in good faith and lawfully."
The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 155 (now 156).

490. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "or the President of the Board" be inserted after the word "Board," in line 1 of clause 155 (now 156) (1).

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"This amendment is unnecessary, because the words 'any Trustee' include the President."
The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

490A. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas moved that the words "or of the President or of any officer or servant of the Board" be substituted for the words "or any of their officers or servants," in lines 3 and 5 of clause 155 (now 156).

He said :—

"The clause as it stands will not protect a person acting under the direction of the President of the Board. The President of the Board is not a servant of the Board. This amendment would make the clause complete, which I think is absolutely necessary."

The motion was put and agreed to.

New clause 155A.

491. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that after clause 155, the following be inserted, namely :—

Power to compel Local Government to make orders.

"155A. The making of any order by the Local Government under this Act may be enforced under section 45 of the Specific Relief Act

I of 1877. 1877."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I will ask for your ruling, Sir, whether this amendment is in order. This involves an encroachment on the principle of an Act of the Supreme Council—the Specific Relief Act. The High Court of Calcutta, under that Act, cannot issue an order on the Local Government. Unless the Hon'ble Member has got the sanction of the Government of India in his pocket. I will ask you, Sir, to rule it out of order."

The HON'BLE MR. APCAR said :—

"Sir, it is only intended to give authority to the Local Government to apply to have their own order carried into effect. Of course, the matter affects the Government and I leave it to your Honour's hands."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"We have entirely misapprehended the meaning of the clause. Section 45 of the Specific Relief Act confers on the High Court the power of 'mandamus,' but sub-section (f) of that section says that it cannot issue an order on the Local Government."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"If it is not to apply compulsion to the Local Government I do not know what the amendment does attempt. It appears that on the face of it the meaning of the amendment is clear enough."

The HON'BLE MR. APCAR said :—

"Sir, it is to give authority to the Lieutenant-Governor to go to the High Court to compel the Board to do anything which he desires should be done in the public interests."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"Then I submit, Sir, that the amendment does not effect what the Hon'ble Member wants. As it stands, it certainly implies that the order is to issue against the Local Government. If the Hon'ble Member wants to move it, I will oppose it."

The HON'BLE MR. APCAR said :—

"Sir, as I have said, it is to give opportunity to the Local Government to have power to enforce its own orders. The amendment only follows English statutes : that is all."

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"I believe a misapprehension arises from the wording of the amendment, which principally seems to indicate that it is a compulsion upon the Local Government."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"Whatever the meaning might have been in the Hon'ble Member's mind, the words, as they stand, must be taken. I resist any alteration in the amendment at this stage."

The PRESIDENT said :—

"What the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas means is that is a way of compelling the Local Government."

The President ruled the motion to be out of order, on the ground that it was ultra vires, the sanction of His Excellency the Viceroy to its inclusion in the Bill not having been obtained.

Clause 157 (now 158).

492. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that clause 157 now 158) be omitted.

He said :—

"I seek the deletion of this clause, not because I do not wish the Police to have authority of the kind described here, but because I think the clause redundant. It was only the other day that we passed a very comprehensive—I was going to say encyclopædic—Police Act, under which my hon'ble friend, Mr. Halliday, would have power enough to deal with offences committed under any law. I do not happen to have the exact text of that law for the present, but I have excellent reasons to remember that the Police have under that Act long, strong and, I take it, willing enough arms to deal with offences under any of the law that may be in force for the time being. Therefore, this section ought not to be enacted as an unnecessary piece of legislation."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Member's only objection to this clause is that it is rather redundant, but I think that it might just as well stand. The Hon'ble Member says that his impression is that it is covered amply by the provisions of the Calcutta Police Act. He thinks that that is a sufficient answer. But this law will be extended to areas in which the Calcutta Police Act is not in force. He has said nothing to show us that under these circumstances it is redundant."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

493. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause 157 (now 158) (3) be omitted.

Clause 158 (now 159).

494. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "or (b) any officer or servant of the Board," in clause 158 (now 159) be omitted.

He said :—

"Does the Hon'ble Member in charge think this amendment necessary? If not, I do not press it."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"No, there does not seem to be any justification for the amendment. It has also a precedent in the Calcutta Municipal Act."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

495. If Motion No. 494 be carried, the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "in case (a)" and the words "and in case (b) by the said officer or servant," in clause 158 (now 159), be omitted.

Clause 159 (now 160).

496. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "associated with" be substituted for the words "added to," in line 1 of clause 159 (now 160) (c).

The motion was put and agreed to.

New clause 159A.

497. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar moved that before clause 160 (now 161) the following be inserted, namely :—

"159A. Any person whose immoveable property is injuriously affected by the execution of any improvement scheme or re-housing scheme under this Act, shall be entitled to obtain compensation in respect thereof from the Board."

Compensation to be paid for injury caused by execution of schemes.

He said :—

"Does the Hon'ble Member in charge accept this?"

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"No, I don't accept it."

The HON'BLE MR. APCAR said :—

"Sir, the Hon'ble Member's opportunities are fast passing away, and I have thought that the Hon'ble Mr. Dutt's appeal to the sense of reasonableness, on the part of Government, might perhaps persuade the Hon'ble Member to accept this amendment. The present position is this : that if the property of any owner is acquired and there is injury done to any other property, then he can obtain compensation, but if no property of an owner is acquired, then, whatever injury may be done by the Board to his property, he has no claim to compensation, and the reason is that all the operations of the Board carried through under the authority of this Bill, when it becomes law, are lawful, and therefore there is indemnity given to the Board, so that it requires special legislation to enable an unfortunate owner whose property has been injuriously affected by the operation of the Board, to recover any compensation at all.

"By the Improvement Bill, the Land Acquisition Act is to be amended and altered on various points, but always entirely and consistently at the expense of the owners of property. I do not here question that policy. But it is not unreasonable to ask, if the operations of the Board actually injure and cause damage to the property of an individual, that he should be compensated. Under the Land Acquisition Act, section 23 (1) (4), compensation is given to an individual when any property of his is acquired, and any injury is done to any other property belonging to him : that is to say, a right of set-off is given, and I seek by this amendment to obtain a right for compensation in other cases. In England, under section 68 of the Land Clauses Act, the principle of which is expressly incorporated in the Town Planning Act of 1909, but on far wider terms, compensation is given whether or not any property has been taken. It is only in accordance with one's primary sense of justice that he should be conceded this right. If it is not expressly given by this Bill, he will not obtain it. The reason why a provision is necessary is because, as I have said, the Board will be indemnified for whatever they may do within the scope of their powers, for the reason that whatever loss or damage results, it will be from acts that have been made lawful by statutory powers that will be conferred on the Board. If only the Board keep themselves within the powers conferred on them and their acts are done in a proper manner, even though special injury may be caused to a particular individual, he will have no right of action unless the right of compensation is expressly given by law. But even if the right of compensation is allowed, it should be understood, it will not be given in an unrestricted sense. It must be an injury that must have been caused by reason of what has been authorised by this law, and it must be an injury that would have been actionable but for the authority that will be given to the Board by the law. Supposing, for instance, the Board put up a building which interferes with an adjoining owner's light or prospect: he could have no right to compensation, except he had acquired an easement of light by law or under a contract.

"This proposal was rejected in Committee under a misconception of the position. The opinion prevailed that a right for compensation would be created owing to loss of custom or profit to a trader. Now, that is exactly what could not be done. The damage or loss must be an injury to land, and not a personal injury or an injury to trade. And it has been settled law for many years that the damage must be due to construction. Judgments of the House of Lords with reference to the Land Clauses Act and Railway Acts have placed it beyond question that the words 'injuriously affected' must be taken to mean the suffering of a legal injury or infringement of a legal right, which is not personal but incidental to the ownership of land, and that it must be due to construction and not to user. To take, as an instance, a reported case to which I shall apply a local illustration. If the Port Trust are the proprietors of a ferry and the East Indian Railway are authorised by law to build a bridge, with a footpath, the latter to be used by persons going to the station and also to other places, and the traffic of the ferry in consequence between certain ghâts falls off, and the Port Trust even have to abandon that particular trip· it was held in the case on which I have based my illustration that no compensation could be recovered, because the injury was due, not to the construction, but to the user of the bridge. The Port Trust would have no claim for the loss of their trade, because it would not be the construction of the bridge that had caused injury, for if the bridge had been built and not used, it would have done no harm. But if a ferry boat were injured by the piles of the bridge on the river, the Port Trust would have been compensated. I have endeavoured in some measure, helped by this illustration, to explain the principle on which the compensation under the amendment would be based.

"I think it is only fair when we find that this right of compensation is allowed in England, that it should not be shut out from us here, and there should be authority given to claim compensation when property is injuriously affected by the operations of the Board."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I think I can convince the members of the Council, without any very recondite legal argument which I am quite unfit to undertake, that this amendment goes too far and could not possibly be placed upon the Statute Book. The scope of the amendment has been considerably modified by the insertion of the word 'immoveable' before 'property,' but even then it seems to be dangerous and impossible. If Hon'ble Members will look at clause 160 (now 161) of this Bill, they will see that persons will be entitled to get compensation from the Board. That clause entitles persons to claim compensation whenever they suffer any damage. If anyone suffers damage and is entitled under the ordinary law to claim compensation, he can sue the Board which is liable to pay damages like any private individual. But this proposed clause would make the Board liable where an ordinary individual would not be liable. Suppose that the Board makes a 60-foot road in a part of the town where there have been no broad roads before, it is probable that the frontages on the narrow 20-foot roads will decline in value. But the Board should certainly not be made liable to pay compensation to the owners of the lands which have thus decreased in value. So, if the Board lays out a healthy suburb, the value of land in unhealthy suburbs may diminish. It seems to me impossible to justify a clause as wide as this and I oppose it."

The HON'BLE BABU MAHENDRA NATH RAY said:—

"From what the Hon'ble Member has just told us, I take it that he has no objection to a provision in the clause being inserted which will render the Board liable to pay reasonable compensation to any person who sustains damage by reason of exercise of any of the powers under this Act. He only objects to the rather sweeping amendment now before the Council. That being so, with the permission of the President of the Council, he may move that for the word 'may' in the second line of clause 160, be substituted by 'shall.'"

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"That, I submit, is unnecessary."

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"There is only one observation that I wish to make My friend, Mr. Bompas, is under some misapprehension. When the Trust opens out a 60-foot wide road, naturally shops would go to that road, and no compensation will be payable under that amendment.

"When you are laying a sewer pipe, you are making the level in good faith and you are doing it with due care, but take, for instance, the sewer is 20 feet deep and the foundations of my house would ordinarily be 6 feet deep, and my house is damaged."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Then clause 160 (now 161) applies."

The HON'BLE BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas says that clause 160 (now 161) applies, which makes it not obligatory on your part, but gives you the power. That is the difficulty. If the ordinary law would make it obligatory there would be no difficulty, but by the introduction of clause 164 now 165) you limit your liability against an act which, if lawfully done and in good faith, nobody will charge you inch having acted without these safeguards. At the same time, in the very nature of things, you, operations, however carefully conducted, may involve loss or damage to the property of some owner. Then, as my friend says, the section that he quoted would give some relief, but that would be only a charitable relief. The danger that he apprehends is that people would be able to set up extravagant claims, but that is not the intention of Mr. Apcar's amendment."

The HON'BLE MR. APCAR said:—

"Sir, it must always be consolatory to the supporters of the Government to find a spokesman who is so quite sure about matters which he argues. Here we are told that this cannot possibly go on the Statute Book, and that it is dangerous and impossible, but I am not devising anything out of my inner conscience or imagination, for I am humbly following the law as it exists in England. I have taken this amendment from the Statute Law in England, and here I ask that the compensation be permitted for injury done owing to lawful acts which are indemnified, and no compensation would be admissible unless my amendment is allowed. The Hon'ble Member, as I understood him, has referred me to section 160 (now 161), which provides that in any case the Board may pay reasonable compensation to any person who sustains damage. That is an authority given to settle a case. That is all, but there is no authority or right to recover compensation which a person can claim in a Court of Law. I am not seeking anything beyond what is recognised law in England, and the incidents and illustrations which the Hon'ble Member in charge gives as sufficient to answer me, are exactly those which are not permitted, because they are not matters attached to the land. You cannot bring a suit for compensation where there has been injury to trade or profit; that is settled law."

A division was then taken, with the following result:—

Clause 161 (now 162).

498. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that clause 161 (now 162) be omitted.

He said:—

"Is that accepted—because what precedes is a question of compensation about which we have some fairly strong language."

The HON'BLE MR. WHEELER said:—

"No, Sir, we do not accept it."

The HON'BLE BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"This reminds me of a story. Once upon a time there was a vastly learned pandit who used to give babyasthas to people for penances for dire offences. One day a rustic came to him and asked, 'Good, sir, what is the penalty for killing a spider.' The Pandit asked:—'A spider, quotha. Why, it is a very serious matter, and the least of penances would be the gift of 16 kahans of cowres, 2 kine and half a tolla of gold to a goodly Brahman, who should be well fed.' The rustic said, 'Sir, it is very serious. Your son has killed a spider.' The Pandit rejoined:—'Tut, tut, killing of a spider is really an infinitesimally insignificant affair, and indeed there is no penalty attached to it in any of the Sastras if you look at them closely enough.' When the Hon'ble Mr. Apcar pleads for some concession, not to property generally, but to immovable property that may be injuriously affected by the Improvement Scheme, and when he quotes the high authority and English Statutes and precedents in the House of Lords, what is the answer with which we meet? It is dangerous, it is impossible and it is impracticable. When, however, questions of an injury to a lamp post, which is property of the Trust, come up, and we have a strong expression of opinion with regard to paying compensation to the Trust itself for damage to its own property, we are stoutly told that it is dangerous to concede compensation to the affected owners. Therefore it comes to this, under this Bill when it becomes an Act, the Trust will be altogether immune, but if there is the slightest damage to any of its own property, compensation is to be recovered, and in addition to any penalty to which the damager may have been adjudged. That is not all. How is that compensation to be enforced? By a method which I confess I have not been able to follow. The wording of this clause is,—that if on account of any act or omission, any person has been convicted of an offence against this act or any rule made hereunder, and by reason of the same act or omission by the said person, damage has occurred to any property of the Board, compensation shall be paid by the said person for the said damage, notwithstanding any punishment to which he may have been sentenced for the said offence. Then we are told in the next sub-clause, that in the event of a dispute, the amount of compensation payable by the said person shall be determined by the Magistrate before whom he was convicted of the said offence. Sir, this compensation comes under the category of a penalty, and up to now I never heard that it was open to a person convicted to dispute what the penalty imposed upon him should be, because the compensation there is nothing more or less than a penalty which the Magistrate shall adjudge. Of course, in olden times a judge, after the jury had returned their verdict, used to ask the prisoner at the bar to show cause why sentence should not be passed upon him. It is almost as useful to have this question of dispute between the vendor and the Board settled at a later stage by the Magistrate as this question of penalty. But here the Magistrate is to adjudge compensation. We have left the Magistrate no option as to whether there should be any compensation payable or not; the Magistrate ordinarily has a right under certain circumstances, and in conceivable cases, to award compensation if he thinks fit to do so. But the case here is altogether different. Though the Magistrate may not have thought fit to adjudge any compensation, in due course he is to assess it at a later stage of the Board and the offender cannot agree as to what the latter should pay. This section does not give the Magistrate any option. It lays down for all time to come that compensation shall be paid if there has been damage, and although there may have been conviction and although the Magistrate in his own discretion may have awarded no compensation in due course. The Magistrate has to step in next, whether compensation ought to have been awarded or not in his judgment; he has merely to determine the amount of compensation, but it does not appear at what stage. We are here told about disputes between the offender and the Trust as to the amount of the compensation. I suppose negotiations will have to go on, bargains will go on as to what compensation ought to be allowed, and then, at a subsequent stage, when the parties are unable to agree as to what the compensation ought to be, the Magistrate has to intervene again and adjudge on the amount of damages which in the circumstances are to be recovered, as if they were a fine inflicted by the court. Therefore, we have a somewhat incongruous state of things: the Trust will not pay any compensation itself. It will be entitled to compensation, which will be a matter of course; in cases of damage the parties will have the right to negotiate, and if they do not agree, the Magistrate has to intervene again and to realise the compensation as fine in the ultimate stage. If legislation like this is to proceed, things will be, to borrow my friend's language, absolutely impossible, and I think that the best thing we can do is to delete this section and leave it to the good sense of the Magistrate to award any compensation, to press for which it will always be open to the Trust, if the circumstances are such as to justify such pressing."

The HON'BLE MR. SLACKE said :—

"This clause is simply borrowed from section 615 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, which says that, in the event of a dispute, the amount of compensation payable by the person shall be determined by the Magistrate before whom he is convicted and on non-payment the sum shall be recoverable as if it were a fine inflicted upon him. That appears in the Calcutta Municipal Act and, therefore, I would oppose this amendment."

The motion was then put and lost.

Clause 163 (now 164).

499. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "shall be in writing over the signature of the President or the Secretary to the Board and" be inserted before the word "shall," in line 5 of clause 163 (now 164).

He said:—

"Is this accepted?"

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"No, Sir, I do not accept it. It does not appear in the corresponding clause of the Calcutta Municipal Act. This clause merely provides how notices should be published and says that they should be published in newspapers."

The motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

500. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "if practicable," in line 5 of clause 163 (now 164), be omitted.

Clause 168.

501. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that after clause 168 (1)(e) the following be inserted, namely :—

"or

"(f) to do any other thing that it may be necessary to do under and for the purposes of this Act."

He said :—

"Sir, here at all events I hope to have the support of my friend opposite. In this case some little concession is possible through the good offices of my friend."

The HON'BLE MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I am prepared to accept this amendment in a modified form, Sir. I would only have the words 'to do any other thing' inserted after clause 168(1)(e). If the Hon'ble Member will read the clause with his amendment taken in, he will find that it makes a very cumbrous sentence."

The motion was then put in the altered form and agreed to.

The Council was then adjourned to Tuesday, the 22nd August, 1911, at 11 A.M.

THE CALCUTTA IMPROVEMENT BILL, 1911.

Clause 137 [now 138 (1)].

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir,—May I call attention to an omission that occurred yesterday? I would request permission to move that the words 'or the President of the Tribunal' be inserted after the words 'by the Local Government' in line 3 of clause 137 [now 138 (1)]. Under clauses 64 (now 74) and 66 (now 76) the President of the Tribunal has power to make rules, and he should therefore be referred to in clause 137 (now 138)."

The motion was put and agreed to.

THE SCHEDULE.

Clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)], relating to the 15 per cent. additional compensation in consideration of the compulsory nature of acquisition.

The following motion, of which several Members had given notice, was taken into consideration. In the ordinary course the motion would have been moved by the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu, since his name stood first in the List of Business; but at his request the President allowed the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move it, and he moved it accordingly.

507. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

508. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha, to move that clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

509. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

510. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

511. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur to move that clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

512. The Hon'ble Maulvi Saiyid Muhammad Fakhr-ud-din to move that clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

513. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

The Hon'ble BABU HRISHIKESH LAHA said:—

'I beg to support the amendment which has been moved by my hon'ble friend Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu. The amendment also stands in my name. The reasons given why sub-section (2) of section 23 of the Land Acquisition Act should not apply to the acquisition of land in Calcutta are because the Bombay Improvement Act does not contain it and that it would increase the cost of the acquisition. But they do not appear to be at all convincing. Calcutta is not Bombay: the circumstances of the two provinces are quite different. If it had been a good reason that the 15 per cent. statutory allowance would go to swell the cost of the acquisition, the Legislature would never have provided for such allowance in the Land Acquisition Act at all. The principle underlying this provision is a very just one. When persons are forced to part with their properties, specially residential houses of which Calcutta is mostly composed, a solatium is absolutely necessary in view of the fact that all associations of love and traditions which are dear to us, are linked up with them, and even John Stuart Mill, who, as is well known, was not favourably inclined towards property-owners, was constrained by a keen sense of justice to admit, 'When property is of a kind to which peculiar affections attach themselves, the compensation ought to exceed a bare pecuniary equivalent.'

"With regard to the liberal treatment of house-owners I am confirmed by the Report of a Conference held at the Guildhall, London, by experts under the auspices of the Garden City Association. I cannot do better than quote from the speech of Mr. H. Rider Haggard, the Chairman of the meeting at the Guildhall. He says:

'Gentlemen, we should be more innocent than we are if we suppose that land will always be available at a reasonable price at a moment's notice, and, therefore, I presume there would have to be some measure of compulsion in order to enable that land to be acquired. Now, I confess to you that compulsion is not a word which I am personally very fond of, and I had far rather see everything done by voluntary agreement if it can be done, but, at the same time, I do think that there are occasions when the wishes of the individual man must give way to the good of the community: only personally I should make this proviso, that the individual whose land is taken for this purpose ought to be fairly and liberally treated. I am strongly of the opinion, gentlemen, and I expect most of you are of the same opinion, that a great deal more harm is done to schemes of reform by those who advocate very violent measures, by those who, for instance, advocate taking peoples' land, etc., at a beggarly price, than good, because the effect of such advocacy is to raise the strongest opposition in the minds of moderate men who are accustomed to the thought that a man has a right to his own, or a right to sell his own, at a reasonable price. For that reason, therefore, also, I think, and I believe that this meeting will agree with me, that anybody whose land is taken for this purpose ought to be fairly and even liberally treated.'

The principle enunciated in London is of universal application, not even India excepted. To act against such principle cannot be justified on any moral ground, however plausible the contrary argument may be.

"Bitter and most unjust criticisms have been levelled against the rapacity of the big landlords, or the 'grandlords' as they are sneeringly called. It would not therefore be out of place for me to show by facts and figures how utterly baseless these futile bickerings and irresponsible criticisms are. From a statement of facts carefully compiled and furnished by Mr. Cooper, the Assessor and Surveyor of the Calcutta Corporation, it will be seen that there are 39,790 premises in the 25 wards comprised within the Calcutta Corporation, and out of them—

903 premises are valued at one lakh of rupees and upwards, or, say 2·27 per cent.

		Rs.
1,280 premises	...	50,000 and upwards, or, say 3·22 per cent.
2,988 „ ...	...	20,000 ditto 7·51 do.
34,599 „ ...		below 20,000, or, say 87 per cent.

There are also 6,457 bustees, of which 53 or ·82 per cent. are valued at a lakh of rupees and upwards, 151 or 2·34 per cent. Rs. 50,000 and upwards, 584 or 9·04 per cent. Rs. 20,000 and upwards, and the rest below Rs. 20,000. From the same source I have received a statement showing that the owners of premises pay, in the shape of rates, Rs. 45,68,851, the occupiers Rs. 15,88,085, and the bustee owners Rs. 5,78,443.

"It will be obvious to any one from the above figures that the 'grandlords' are a very negligible quantity, and the withdrawal or the statutory allowance of 15 per cent. will only press very hard on the poor house-owners. So the statement that the rich house-owners are playing off their poorer brethren for the advancement of their own ascendancy have no foundation in fact. I should have gladly avoided this part of the question, but as the Indian house-owners have been reviled and accused of interested motives I cannot avoid it, and our critics must not be surprised to find that two can play at the same game with equal facility. The above-mentioned facts and figures will, I hope, completely dispose of all current misconception or misstatements on the subject. I cannot help quoting a reply of Abraham Lincoln in another connection, which may aptly be applied to our critics: 'I am sorry to perceive that friend Judge Douglas is so constituted that he does not feel the lash the least bit when it is laid upon another man's back.' So long as the lash does not fall upon the backs of the cavillers, they are quite indifferent to the whip, but the moment it touches their own bodies they at once perceive the injustice, cruelty and inhumanity of the matter.

"If the poor house-owners are deprived of the usual statutory allowance, they will find it very hard, when they are displaced, to get new houses, considering the progressive rise in the value of lands which is taking place every year. They will not only have to pay higher price for the land, but also for increased cost of labour and materials, and they will be obliged to submit to an injury, being unable to repair to a refuge, the door of which can be opened only by golden keys. It would be a tyrannous use of power to deprive a certain section of the people and to force them to pay, for the benefit of another section of the community which is to enjoy all the improvements. We have not yet advanced enough to appreciate the sledge hammer methods of socialism, and so long as land does not become common property and Government does not undertake to maintain us with food and clothing, sustain us in sickness and old age, and bury and cremate us when dead, it would be most unwise to introduce this revolutionary provision in the Bill. We do not want any concessions. All that we wish is that our vested rights should be kept in tact, and we want nothing more. Any indulgence in this direction will command the respect of all right-thinking Indians and of all who have been watching their affairs most closely and with a breathless interest. It will no doubt prove to them a source of great consolation to know that they have, on this most important occasion, at this acute crisis, the sympathy of Government.

"I may be permitted to point out that the Bill omits all attempts at co-operation with the people, which is the key-note of success of a measure like this, as will be manifest on a reference to section 56 (g) of the Housing and Town Planning Act, 1909. It is idle to argue that, as provisions similar to those now being introduced obtain in England, and probably in other places on the continent, they should also be enacted here. The people of this city and the much-abused landlords cannot be said to be responsible for the present state of affairs. Has there been any enactment on the lines of the English Acts relating to the housing of the working classes and other cognate Acts relating thereto in this country, although such Acts have been in operation in England for a very long time? Such Acts are still being amended in England, and they have not yet passed the experimental stage, if I may say so, nor the mode of procedure thereunder definitely settled. To bring to bear upon the people of this city all the stringent provisions of the English law without its safeguards and limitations of public enquiry and right of appeal is, to say the least, quite premature, and our people are ill-fitted to adapt themselves to the new condition all at once. The habits and customs of the people and their mode of living are wholly different from those of the Western nations, and the far-reaching effects of this Bill on their home-life, regard being had to the poverty and comparative ignorance of the people, should receive as sympathetic and liberal a consideration as practicable. In Calcutta, specially in the Indian quarter, most of the property consists of residential houses; hence the need for the liberal treatment of house-owners by granting them the solatium of 15 per cent. is the greater on account of the peculiar affections attached to an ancestral dwelling-house. In the estimation of the Government such a deprivation may be just, which the people, however, do not see; yet such justice may be executed without forgetting mercy, especially in this auspicious year of their Majesties' Coronation, when the Government may be disposed to confirm the time-honoured principle that a gift, when once made, can never be revoked.

"I regret that the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill expressed his opinion in the Select Committee that the landlords of Calcutta are solely to blame for the bad condition of the city, and therefore deserve punishment—quite forgetful of the fact that the Government are more to blame in this direction than the landlords. Town planning is not their forte, and if they had been guided by Government in the early days by rules and regulations regarding planning of sites and open spaces, the defects which are now visible would never have occurred. Government have, however, made some amends by way of a grant of 50 lakhs of rupees, but this is too small for the purpose, and instead of allowing one section of the community to be sacrificed for the good of another, they should, in common fairness, have made a further grant of 50 to 60 lakhs. This would have avoided the necessity of inserting one of the most objectionable clauses in the Bill. However much the unsavoury contents of the ink-pots be emptied over the devoted heads of the landlords their faces can never be blackened, as their works stand out in a clear light—their yearly payment of over 50 lakhs in the shape of rates and taxes speaks volumes in their favour and has contributed to make Calcutta what it is now. The landlords can therefore fully expect indulgent treatment at the hands of Government."

The Hon'ble the MAHARAJADHIRAJA BAHADUR OF BURDWAN said:—

"Your Honour,—I have come here today at certain risks to my health, which has not been good of late, and I have done so simply for the purpose of protesting against that broad principle of equity that the Government of India have adopted and have asked the Bengal Government to adopt in connection with the Calcutta Improvement Bill. This broad principle of equity, when put into practice after the Improvement Bill has been carried, will mean the vampiring of the Calcutta landlords and landowners. What particular crime the Calcutta landowners and landlords have done so as to be deprived of the privilege of the statutory allowance of the additional compensation of 15 per cent. under the Land Acquisition Act, still remains to be demonstrated. The Bill before us, which will undoubtedly be passed into law today—though some of us will, because certain principles have not been accepted, vote against its passing—will in the future have far-reaching effects. But in connection with this question of the granting of additional compensation of 15 per cent., you will not only be depriving the landowners and landlords of Calcutta of a legitimate right, but you will be depriving many members of the poorer middle classes of a privilege that they could have claimed had they not had the misfortune to live within the Calcutta Municipality. The Government of India have said that since the introduction of this Bill, no proof or demonstration against the adoption of what they have been pleased to term as the broad principle of equity, has been given to change the attitude of Government. I do not know, Sir, what further proof or greater proof we could have given than the tenacity with which several of us, non-official Members, have been opposing certain sections and certain clauses of this Bill. The unsympathetic attitude of the Government is not creditable to itself. You might have had the landowners and the poorer classes with you by a slight concession. You can at present ignore the poorer classes, but do not forget the example of Liverpool. In the past you have had to deal with much discontent and unrest and even anarchism in India, thanks indirectly to the utterings of irresponsible ultra-radicals at home, and you are now going to give by this measure an opportunity to the whole of the landholding classes of Calcutta to turn to a channel of disloyalty and discontent. You are a mighty Government and you can do what you like. But is this wise? As a Councillor, as a man having some interest in Calcutta, and further, representing the landholders of the province like my esteemed friend to the left, the Maharaja of Cossimbazar, I would be failing in my duty if I did not protest emphatically against this taking away of the 15 per cent. compensation which the landowners would have been privileged to get had they not been in Calcutta. This Bill is no doubt going to give Calcutta a great privilege. It is to have 50 lakhs from the Government of India for improvements, upon which Calcutta is undoubtedly to be congratulated, for we could have spent that 50 lakhs elsewhere, perhaps in relieving the needs of the mufassal. It may also be argued by several mufassal Members here that by the tax that will be levied to meet the expenses of this Improvement Trust, the people of Calcutta are really going to escape with very little expenses; for undoubtedly, the tax, which is to be levied on all passengers coming into Calcutta, will not affect so much the people of Calcutta as the mufassalites. But granting all these, I fail to see that when the Improvement Trust will embrace not only insanitary areas but areas through which you will construct streets and roads to beautify the city and also add to its sanitation, why in the latter cases some compensation cannot be given to the people who will be affected? I do not simply refer to the landlords, because the Hon'ble Maharaj-Kumar Hrishikesh Laha has pointed out their case. For, though the landowners are a minority—and an important minority too—and will be affected by this measure, there will be other people also affected. I would, therefore, even at this stage, appeal to the Government to consider this question, and also to my friend, the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu, and the other Members not to move the omission of clause 14 (2 a) [now 9 (1)] in its entirety, for I myself am opposed to giving any extra compensation in the case of lands situated in absolutely insanitary and unhealthy areas, but to move the amendment No. 519 with such modifications as my hon'ble friend may deem fit."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"Your Honour,—I would readily respond to the appeal of my friend, the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, if I found the least inclination on the part of the Government to accede to that very moderate request contained in the amendment. But, so far as I have been able to ascertain, there is no desire on the part of the Government to come to any terms regarding this question, and consequently there is no option left to me but to move the amendment of which I have given notice.

"I do not think it is necessary for me to go into the genesis of this question. For the information of my colleagues in this Council it is enough to say that the change now sought to be introduced by the new measure is that the compensation of 15 per cent., which used to be awarded to owners of properties for the compulsory nature of the purchase, will not any longer be allowed. Well, Sir, in order to justify this action on the part of Government, there must be some cogent reasons in moving it to take this step. We have not got here the practice under which the Member in charge introduces a special clause and explains its motives. The Statement of Objects and Reasons is practically silent over this matter, and we are left to conjecture as to what may be the actual motives which the Government has got in making this drastic change in the law of the country as it now stands. As regards the law that now obtains, I may remind my friends that it is the handiwork of the greatest men who have had anything to do with the administration of British India. Sir John Strachey, Sir James Fitz-James Stephen and Sir Henry Maine are names to conjure with in any country, and they deliberately adopted, when passing the Act of 1870, this principle of giving especial compensation for the compulsory character of the acquisition, because they thought that it was a just and equitable treatment of popular rights, and in doing so they were not following a haphazard method. It was well recognised in England itself that some special compensation should be given to the owner for the compulsory character of the acquisition. In England, moreover, in cases of dispute, the compensation used to be and it is still so fixed by arbitrators in the first instance or by juries. The result was as was to be expected, that there was a very liberal consideration of the claims of the owners of properties from whom the land was taken. Moreover, in England the principle of valuation was different. England was not the only country where for the exigencies of the State it was necessary to acquire land compulsorily, but in every country on the continent of Europe that was the principle followed of giving compensation to the owner for the compulsory character of the acquisition. Sir John Strachey, who was then Mr. Strachey, said that it was a special desire and intention of Government that the law and practice in England should, so far as these principles were concerned, be adopted in the Bill. He then made it clear that the principles of the measure were really identical with those obtaining in England, and that the law of all civilised European countries, for there was really, as far as we have been able to discover, little or no difference in this respect in the different countries in Europe. He says that he did not see any reason why the same principles of equity should not be applied to India in the case of private rights of property, and he quoted in support of his contention a note left by such a high authority as Sir Henry Maine, and Mr. Strachey proceeded to say that he thought that the Council would be satisfied when he said that the principles were those which were in practice in England, but he quoted the remarks contained in the memorandum which was issued under the special authority of Mr. Maine before he left.

"Well, Sir, I have quoted what I respectfully submit is the highest authority available to me in this country for the support of my proposition that in the case of compulsory acquisition of property, there should be some compensation given to the man from whom you acquire the property. I do not wish to go into reasons which have led all civilised countries to adopt that principle. That must be well-known to most of my colleagues here, and that is a principle which is still followed in England and in European countries and is still followed in our own country. Why is it then that it is not to be followed now?

"Well, I now come to the question as to why this principle should be disregarded at the present moment. Before I go into the precedent about the present practice sought to be introduced, I suppose my friend will justify his position on two grounds: (1) that the means of the Trust will not be sufficient to pay this extra allowance to the landholders of Calcutta, and (2) that the landholders of Calcutta themselves have been responsible for this state of things, which has led to this legislation. Before I proceed, I will refer to an authority to which my hon'ble friend some time or other, in the course of the debate, referred. He has referred to that authority with great respect.

I will follow his example, I mean the report of the Calcutta Building Commission presided over by Mr. Justice Trevelyan and supported by a very distinguished body of men, engineers, the Chairman of the Calcutta Corporation, and Mr. Risley. There also they considered the question of compensation, and in paragraph 140 of their Report.

"Let us see how the case was then put by a man whose great abilities were recognised in this country as well as in England, and he says,

'Mr. Hughes also considers that there should be no statutory allowance in respect of property acquired in unhealthy areas.'

"We see that Mr. Hughes confines his case to unhealthy areas. The Commission says—

> We have carefully considered the question of statutory allowance and are not inclined to recommend any altertation of the present law? In some of the English Acts no allowance is made for compulsory sale. In one a discretion is allowed. Mr. Freeman in his book to which we have referred says at page 41 that in England the allowance for compulsory sale in case of house and building land is invariably 10 per cent. while in the case of agricultural land it is usually 25 per cent. and in some of the northern counties rises to 50 per cent. The 15 per cent. fixed by the law in this country is we think, fair.

"Well, Sir, I have placed before my colleagues a very recent authority, an authority constituted by the Government itself for dealing with the very question with which we are now dealing, namely, the removal of the insanitary conditions that prevail in Calcutta, and more than this. This Report was the outcome of an agitation which was started in Calcutta on the outbreak of plague, which, it was feared, would work the same havoc in Calcutta as it had done in Bombay. Luckily for us, the experience of the last 10 or 12 years has not justified those fears and Calcutta itself has fared much better than Bombay has done. Consequently the panic under which the Commission was started and which, it would be expected, would to some extent influence the minds of those who formed the Commission and would in some degree induce them to recommend the adoption of stringent and drastic measures, no longer finds place in the Council to-day. Why is it then that we go beyond, much further than, what was recommended by the Building Commission? As I said, the only reasons which would justify us would be, firstly, the inadequacy of our means, secondly, the remissness of the classes who would be entitled to compensation, if compensation were at all allowed. Well, Sir, as regards our means, I tried to point out yesterday, from figures which the Corporation of Calcutta have supplied, that even without the Government subvention, that even without the contribution from the Corporation for a great many years, the final result of the operations would be a large saving. I respectfully submit that this is a position which my friend opposite the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler was unable to controvert. He merely said that it would not be safe to deal with figures, and that actual experience might involve us in greater expenditure that was anticipated at the present moment. But, Sir, if we take the financial provisions, let us consider how much extra expenditure this 15 per cent. would involve. Our gross expenditure would be about Rs. 8,22,00,000 against which there would be recoupment of about Rs. 3,86,00,000. We shall assume that our net expenditure on the acquisition of the property would be, say 4 crores or even 5 crores. Well, if it is 5 crores, and if we pay a compensation of 15 per cent., which will not be possible for a period of less than 12 years, because we do not expect to carry out our operations in less than that time, it will be at the highest an extra expenditure of 70 or 75 lakhs spread over a period of ten or fifteen years. Is that an expenditure which strikes terror in the hearts of my friends opposite, for the figures show that they need not be frightened by the extra expenditure? My friend says that Government spent very liberally for us, as it has given to us a grant of 50 lakhs to start with. My friend will remember that it made a grant of 57 lakhs to the Government of Bombay in the shape of land when they started their improvement scheme. Only the other day the Government of India made a liberal grant to the improvement of Bombay. Well, Sir, the figures that we have discussed yesterday did not take account of the Government subvention. With the Government subvention our financial position, so as we can anticipate, will be perfectly sound. Therefore, I say that it is not the pressure of financial requirements of the scheme that would compel us in withholding from the people what we think otherwise is fair and just. Then what is it? Is it the remissness of the people concerned as to the present state of Calcutta that has enraged a just and powerful Government so that it denies to them the rights which have been conceded in other civilised countries in the world, either on the continent of Europe or in America? But apart from that, is the first part of the premises right? Is it right to say that the present state of Calcutta is owing to the landlords? Sir, I shall not trouble my friends by references to documents which must be well-known to my friends opposite. My friends are probably aware that, in 1885, there was a Committee in Calcutta known as the Health Committee, under the presidency of Mr. Justice Cunningham, and that at the instance of that Committee a Commission was constitued under section 28 of the Calcutta Municipal Act, as it then was, Bengal Act VI of 1876, to inquire into the whole question, and the Commission, presided over by Mr. Beverley, came to the conclusion that much good work, so far as it was possible to do, had been done by the Corporation of Calcutta with the means, the resources at their disposal, and the circumstances under which they were placed, and they showed that if anybody was to blame for allowing those miserable streets in the heart of Burra Bazar to grow, those narrow winding lanes, those high ill-ventilated houses, it was not the Corporation of Calcutta which had not then existed, but it was the Government of Bengal and the Government of India which had ample powers and which did not interfere. I do not blame the Government, for sanitary ideals had not then advanced to the present extent, but was there anything to prevent you or your predecessors (the Government of India or the Government of Bengal, when they had absolute power over the destinies of Calcutta its civil population from allowing those lanes, those open sewers, of which some of us have at least a faint recollection) to be put an end to by the rate-payers when they became organised into a corporation? Who was it that was responsible? And who, again, was responsible that until 1888 there was no regulation, there was no statute laying down provisions under which houses were to be built or constructed? Well, Sir, it has often been said that the work of British administration has been the work of education. Then whose fault was it that for more than 100 years since the days when Clive's victorious army entered Calcutta until 1888, this city was allowed to grow into its present state? Then, again, Sir, would you for a moment compare the landholding classes, the responsible landowners, the householders of Calcutta with the great landholders of England? Who is it that is responsible for the overcrowding here? Is it the people of Calcutta that are responsible, because good roads have not been provided for access from Calcutta into its environs? Are we responsible for the omission to provide cheap railways for the use of your working men who could easily go from the places of their work to some place where they could live? Are we responsible that there are no sewers, no drains, no water-works outside Calcutta where middle-class people can go and live? Are we responsible that there are no means of communication between Calcutta and its environs? Why is that, in one of the bustees in northern Calcutta we find your working men huddled together? Where are they to go? Have you found any place for their habitation? The other day you built a magnificient dock at Kidderpore. When was it that you made accommodation for the working people? Are we responsible if a small plot of land is taken from a land-owner by these poor people who build their huts and huddle together, because they have got to live there in large numbers? Have you inquired into the cause of this? It is because the wages are low and they cannot afford to pay for good lodgings. Do you expect that under your Trust, whether you carry it out by despoiling your landlords, you will be able to give them such cheap dwellings that they will be able to live in comfort upon the wages that they at present earn? What is the rate of wages in this country, and what is the standard of life? Are these no evils which have resulted from the land-grabbing interests of residential house-owners in Calcutta? Can you say honestly if you ever held any inquiry into that subject, any inquiry in which the landlords might be arraigned before you as criminals in dock to place their evidence to clear themselves? Who is responsible for the present state of wages which compel the working classes to huddle together in huts between Calcutta and its environs in larger numbers than would be healthful. I say it is the absence of good roads, the absence of cheap railways and tramways that are responsible. You, Sir, have given in this country a monopoly to tramways which charge higher fare than even in European countries. You have given blindfully your contracts to electrical firms for your tramways, for your lighting, and they charge enormous sums upon your poor people. Have you compared the rate of wages on the continent with the rates that prevail in this country? I think, therefore, it may be the present low industrial condition of my country, it may be the remissness of those in authority, it may be the ignorance of these things that are responsible. How is it that the landlords are responsible? I have got a plot of land which is in demand. Working people come and offer me terms. I have got to make the best of terms. Am I responsible? If my friend, the representative of the Chamber of Commerce, has a large stock of grain, and if unfortunately a famine year comes and force up the prices of grains, will he sell the grain as an act of philanthropy or will he sell the grain for whatever it may fetch in the open market? I say, Sir, that if the Calcutta landlords have been found to blame, there has been no inquiry upon which they have been represented, or, if not represented, before which they have been allowed to put their case. If all these factors are well-considered, it will be found that more people are responsible than the landlords of Calcutta; and more than that. It is not the landlord of whom I am thinking in this improvement scheme of yours—the landlord whom you will displace—but it is the residential house-owner. Do you have a class who live in large numbers in European cities—men owning small houses where they have been living for generations? Your experience of Europe I appeal to. Would you tell me if there is such a state of things in a European city? Then why is this negation of a right which is enjoyed by the people everywhere, if your financial condition does not prevent the obligations to be imposed upon you if you find that your landlord has not been after all such a bad fellow as he is represented to be—(it has been said that some very important personage is sometimes painted blacker than he really is, and I suppose that the landlord suffers from the same difficulty)? But I go further, and take the models of the English Acts in regard to the improvement of insanitary areas and of town planning. As I said, Sir, this act of yours is a beautiful jumble, like the toy kaleidoscopes which little children make for his own amusement. If you look at this Act and its provisions, it becomes a kaleidoscope of various intentions. There is everything. It has the merit of all the virtues; it has the demerit of not providing, of not anticipating, how these virtuous intentions are to be carried out, without infringing upon popular rights, without creating discontent. Well, Sir, as I have now said, I would refer to the English Acts of town-planning.

"Let us begin with the English Acts of town-planning. In this connection I am only putting it as a personal matter, for the fates, which have been dogging our footsteps over this measure, have unfortunately made me miss the parcel in which I was bringing out all the literature connected with this subject. I had an interview with the valuer of the London County Council, and I believe, my friends, Mr. Bompas and Mr. Payne, interviewed the gentleman. He gave me a statement in writing. He said that it is true that under certain circumstances no compensation for the compulsory character of the acquisition is given as such, but whenever we value land, we put in 10 per cent., to provide against a margin or error. If we value a land at £ 1,000 which we are taking for public purpose from a private individual, it is quite possible that we may be erring against the individual, and we put in 10 per cent. in addition. Well, Sir, it may be said that the same thing will be done in this country. But does the experience of the Land Acquisition Act in this country justify that hope? I see before me many old lawyers who have had a large experience of this Act; will they say that the Land Acquisition Deputy Collector always takes a generous view of the value of the land which is going to be acquired. In my unhappy country where, in the Executive Service, promotions go by the number of convictions, and in the other branch of the service preferment goes by the reduced amount of expenditure, the tendency has always been to keep down the expenditure as much as possible, even though it might be, as it has always been, at the cost of great suffering to the poor. How many people, do you think, are able to bring their case up to a court or even to the Collector? And our invariable experience has been—my experience is more confined to Calcutta than to the mufassal—that the Land Acquisition Deputy Collector proceeds upon the well-known doctrine that prevails on the continent amongst the shopkeepers who ask as much as they think they might be able to get and then you have got to bargain. So my Land Acquisition Deputy Collector gives as little as he can at the outset so that he may gradually go on increasing and see at what time the owner will untimately agree to part with his land. That has been, I say, without fear of contradiction and with all the responsibility of making that statement from my place in this Council Chamber, invariably the practice. There is always a spirit of bargaining for these petty matters. It has never been said 'I make this offer', but that ought not to be the attitude of the land acquisition officers that are employed to acquire land for the Government of this country.

"Well, Sir, my friends, the representatives of the Chambers, also have had a large experience of land acquisition matter, and I am quite sure they will be able to bear me out that in land acquisition proceedings there is always an attempt on the part of these officers to offer at first as little as they can.

"Well, Sir, I was referring to the English Acts, and I said that notwithstanding their present Acts, that is how they proceed. But I do not ask you to proceed upon a statement of mine, which I am unhappily just now not in a position to corroborate by the production of the documents upon which I would rely. We shall assume that this 10 per cent. is not allowed under the English Acts, but let us examine the Acts and see what it is that is not allowed under the Act? The great roads, the great thoroughfares that are opened, and do not come under the Town Planning Act, nor under the clauses of the Land Clauses Consolidation Act. We contemplate under this Act not only to deal with insanitary areas, to open squares and public places, but we contemplate to relay the town of Calcutta, to open up arterial roads to the suburbs, to make some attempt and to atone for our past neglect, in providing our working men with reasonably easily accessible sites with cheap modes of communications. All these are to be opened at the expense of the Calcutta house-owner. Is that reasonable? The Bill provides that so far as lands outside the Calcutta Municipality are concerned, they will not suffer in value as they will receive the compensation of 15 per cent. I do not grudge that compensation; in fact, I welcome that provision. But is it just and is it fair that there should be a differential treatment between Calcutta and its suburbs in reference to this claim to compensation, for who will primarily benefit? The people through whose lands roads cheap trams and railways will be carried? They will benefit more than Calcutta itself, and they are to receive the 15 per cent. compensation, whereas Calcutta is not to receive it. Is that fair?

"Then, Sir, the English Acts (Act of 1890) are confined to insanitary areas, and no compensation is given for compulsory acquisition in respect of insanitary areas. From the operation of that clause neighbouring lands were expressly excluded, and then the net result of the Act is thus stated. In dealing with the principle of assessment, I shall quote with your leave from a well-known edition of the English Acts for housing of the poor and town planning:—

'Under the Land Clauses Acts when land is taken, compensation is awarded in respect of the value of the land in itself, the damage due to severance from other adjoining land of the same owner and any other injuries affecting such other land. These three items really make up what is the value to the owner, and it is the value that was always to be ascertained in determining the compensation under these Acts.'

"Is it the principle that we are going to adopt in this Act even when you are acquiring insanitary areas? The gentleman whom I saw said that that is a condition which is very reasonable. Supposing we have got to deal with a property where some former King of England had planted an oak. The intrinsic value of the oak is but little, and we set at nought the value of the oak itself, but the value the owner attaches to it in the fact of its having been planted by a former King of England. That was the example he gave. But that is only by way of illustration as to what is done under the English Acts. Then there are some other clauses, parts of the English Acts where no compensation is allowed, when you are acquiring land for the purpose of building houses for your working classes. In that case you do not get any additional compensation, so that where you do not get this is when you are acquiring unhealthy areas. But in connection with unhealthy and insanitary areas, if you are acquiring neighbouring areas you have to pay. Where you are building for the working classes you do not pay. Where you are building sanitary conveniences, you do not pay. I will not trouble or fatigue the Council by going into these details. I have made this statement, and if I am wrong my friends opposite will correct me. Here, in your Calcutta Act, you not only deny this compensation in respect of insanitary areas, but in regard to every plot of land that you acquire for whatever purpose it may be, whether for squares, whether for making a road, or whether for recoupment. You are carrying on a large number of operations for which you do not pay Have you confined your non-payment purely and simply to unhealthy areas and insanitary houses? There might be some justification for this; but what is the justification for this sweeping measure, I cannot find It is, I think, unjust, unfair and unnecessary. My friend, the Hon'ble Maharaja Bahadur of Burdwan, has asked me that my subsequent amendment would be better adapted to carry out my purpose than the present one. I have no hope, as I have said, that the subsequent amendment would find favour with the Government at all, and, therefore, I move this amendment. I show that it does not make you suffer, that it does not endanger your scheme. Even in democratic America, they provide numerous safeguards against the municipal operations. Well, if even in such a democratic country as America, it has been found necessary to provide these safeguards, I do not see why they should be dispensed with in my country. I would only recapitulate and say this, that your financial position does not impose upon you the necessity that the Calcutta landholder is not principally, if at all, responsible for the present state of affairs in Calcutta. If he is responsible, the Government is equally, if not more largely, responsible. The state of wages in this country is as much responsible. The ignorance that prevails amongst the lower classes about hygienic laws and conditions of health is also as much responsible. Why should one class suffer and not others? Lastly in all civilized countries this practice obtains. In England, where gradually, in cases of sanitary improvements and town planning, the practice has been growing of not allowing the excess of 10 per cent. over the valuation awarded, there, as I have said, the operation is limited, the hasty operation is safeguarded, because there the valuation is fixed by an arbitrator and not by a tribunal, and if the arbitrator does not give satisfaction, you have the right to go up before a jury. All these safeguards are wanting here. I say, therefore, that I have made out a very strong case for reconsideration of that provision of the law which does away with compensation that is granted for compulsory acquisition."

The Hon'ble MR. NORMAN MCLEOD said:—

"Your Honour,—Some days ago I expressed an impious wish that something might happen to our friend Mr. Basu. But I am glad to find that he is able to be here to-day and that his voice is as strong, as resonant, as ever. I am sorry, however, that I cannot agree with him in the attitude he has taken up with regard to the amendment put forward. Before I give my vote on this question I should like to explain why I support the Government. My former colleague, Mr. Shorrock, who was on the Select Committee of this Bill, recorded a note of dissent with regard to the 15 per cent. compensation. Until recently I was generally in sympathy with that note, for the reason that I considered it would be upsetting an almost universal principle, and expressed myself accordingly. Since the postponement of the Bill in April last I have heard so much exaggerated sentiment applied to the hardship which the Bill would entail on a deserving section of the community, I have seen a memorial addressed to Your Honour on the subject which was so full of valueless generalities and so devoid of practical argument or convincing facts, that I determined to inquire fully into the matter for myself. I, therefore, took the opportunity of visiting many of the slums of Calcutta which might be expected to come into the proposed improvements. I was not only astonished but so astounded at the condition of things as I saw them that I was forced to the conclusion that to pay an increased compensation for the improvement of such places would be almost an act of criminality; they were not fit for human habitation. If there was any law suggested, under which the landlords of these places would suffer drastic punishment, it would be more to the point. On the other hand, if any suggestion had been practically made to differentiate between the good and the bad, I would have been prepared to support the former, but as this has never so far been proposed the inevitable must occur, and the just suffer for the unjust. It is no answer to say that the fault is with the sanitary authorities in the past. Here, in the twentieth century, we are faced with strenuous opposition to what is admitted on all hands as a much-needed measure. What must have been the difficulties in the way of improvements when the light of sanitation was dark and fitful. I am glad to say I have the support of an almost unanimous majority of my constituency in the attitude I am compelled to take. The Hon'ble Member who moved the amendment has referred to the question of wages. I think, if he himself were to inquire into the matter, he would find that the state of matters were not as ba as he puts forward. Is there any country in the world where the workmen can absent themselves when they please, and can afford to be away for several months during a year?

"A lot has been said on the subject of land acquisition. I heard a Judge of the High Court here in Calcutta, who was the President of the Tribunal in Bombay, state that in his experience the compensation in Bombay erred on the side of liberality. There is one argument which was advanced by the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha, and I am surprised that it was last put forward by the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan. We are continually met with the argument that the landlords and others, who object to this Bill, are loyal and law-abiding citizens. I cannot see the virtue in this argument, or the virtue in these people of being loyal and law-abiding. It should be inherent in every good citizen, when the benefits they derive from being so, so largely outweigh the disadvantages a contrary course would involve. The argument is one which almost raises a doubt as to whether such a state of matters exists, when it requires such constant reiteration."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"The previous speakers,will kindly pardon me for saying that it was a waste of energy on their part to have taken so much pains to collect figures and to set forth reasons, when the Council, I mean the official majority, is not prepared to listen to arguments or reasons. But it might be said that this should have prevented me as well from speaking out. But, Sir, we all know that when one feels strongly on a subject, it is a great relief to him to speak out and not to suppress his feelings. Perhaps it will be said that the provision of the statutory allowance has been abolished in London and in Berlin, but pray do not flood us with English precedents or precedents from California or Mexico, when you are not prepared to give us the good things that are embodied in the English law. When there is anything favourable in the English law and we want it, it is then said that the circumstances of the two countries are so different, the peoples here are so unhomogeneous, consisting, as they do, of different sects, creeds and religions, that it would be dangerous to apply the principle of the English law to this country; but when there is anything hard or unfavourable in English law and we resist its application here, then it is said that such being the English law you must have it.

"I cannot certainly regard it as a concession to provide that the statutory allowance of 15 per cent. should be paid in the case of areas which are situated outside the limits of the Calcutta Municipality. It comes to this, that the statutory allowance of 15 per cent. is only to be paid in case of waste and paddy lands which sell at the rate of Rs. 5 to Rs. 15 a cottah, that is, lands which have absolutely no value in the bazar, but nothing at all in the case of lands the value of which ranges from Rs. 2,000 to Rs. 80,000 a cottah. Is this fair? There is no reason why there should be a special law required for the acquisition of land by the Improvement Trust, while the Corporation, the Port Trust and the Government have hitherto been content and will continue to acquire lands under the present Land Acquisition Act, though the lands will be in close proximity to one another. Why is it that a particular advantage should be enjoyed by the Improvement Trust which has hitherto been denied to the Corporation, to the Port Trust and the Government? In every case the Land Acquisition Collector's award in considerably below the market value, and as such the claimant has invariably to incur very large expenses in engaging the services of engineers and other expert land-valuers and of pleaders and counsel, for properly putting forth his case and conducting it through the different courts and, it may be, up to the Privy Council In the case of owners of residential houses, over and above the heavy expenses of conducting the land acquisition cases, they will have to engage brokers for the purchase of new lands and to pay heavy stamp duties and to engage attorneys to prepare conveyances which, with incidental expenses, will go to more than swallow the statutory allowance of 15 per cent. I can certify from my personal experience that, in contested cases, the expenses of litigation far exceed the statutory allowance of 15 per cent., and oftener than not go to make a heavy inroad on the price of the land acquired.

"I do not know what dire offence the owners of property in Calcutta have committed that they should be deprived of the statutory allowance of 15 per cent. which has hitherto been paid to them and would continue to be paid elsewhere, and even to owners of property in Calcutta whose lands are to be acquired by other corporate bodies, as the Corporation, the Port Trust and even the Government. I regret that the analogy of Bombay cannot hold good here, for it was during a terrible crisis when the citizens were panic-struck and hundreds and hundreds of people were daily dropping down dead from plague, and when all classes of people were flying away from the city, and when trade and commerce were nearly paralysed that the citizens of Bombay, or rather their representatives, acquiesced in submitting to a sacrifice which, they thought, would go to help in the improvement of the city, and the consequent dislodgment of plague therefrom. However, I beg to submit that it would not be fair to attempt to throw dust into the eyes of the people by apparently providing the payment of the statutory allowance of 15 per cent., which will be paid only in the case of paddy-fields and waste lands which have virtually no market value, while denying the same indulgence in case of highly valuable lands in the heart of the city, and which are rising up by leaps and bounds every year. I submit it would be an act of great injustice to deprive the citizens of Calcutta of the statutory allowance of 15 per cent.

"I beg to assure the Council that the proposal to do away with the statutory allowance of 15 per cent. has created a sense of alarm, has caused a widespread dissatisfaction. There is no doubt that compulsory acquisition of lands whatever may be its purposes, is certainly a hardship. It is, therefore, necessary that some allowance should be made, some indulgence should be shown, to the owner, for forcibly taking away his property. It is a terrible wrench.

"Give me a fair price for my property, a price which I can have in the open market, I shall not claim compensation. But here, Sir, all sorts of excuses have been brought forth to make provisions which will go to reduce the market value to the vanishing point. My friend, the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu was not far wrong when he, in a jocular vein, proposed in the Select Committee (give us 50 per cent. of the market-value and we shall be satisfied). All shades of public opinion are unanimous in condemning the abolition of the provision for the payment of the statutory allowance.

"I beg to propose the entire deletion of sub-section (3), which has been added at the end of section 23, that is, clause (a), (a 1), (b), (c), (d), or, in the alternative, I propose the deletion of sub-sections 3 (a), 3 (b), 3 (d)."

The Hon'ble RAI BAIKUNTHA NATH SEN BAHADUR said:—

"Sir,—These amendments from 507 to 513 are all identical. Several Hon'ble Members have already spoken on the subject, including the Maharaja-dhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, and exhaustive references have been made to English laws and other matters. I do not intend to take up the valuable time of this Council by treading over the same grounds; but I think it my duty to offer my views as to the ways in which legislative enactments on a subject like this should be made. I intend to deal with principles which are recognised by law. I must say, in the first instance, that there ought to be one law for all the subjects of His Majesty. There ought not to be one law for the residents and inhabitants of Calcutta, and another law for the rest of the province. I beg to draw the attention of the Council to Her Gracious Majesty's proclamation of 1858, in which it is stated that there should be one law for all the subjects throughout British India, irrespective of caste, creed and colour. With regard to the acquisition of land, certain principles had been adopted by the Supreme Legislature in 1870, and then there was a subsequent Act of 1874. Sir, I beg to submit that this 15 per cent. on the market-value is being looked upon and treated as an additional compensation. I consider that to be a misnomer. What do we find in section 23 of Act I of 1894, which is sought to be amended? Section 23 says that, in determining the amount of compensation to be awarded for land acquired under this Act, the market-value should be first taken into consideration. Then there are other things which have also to be taken into consideration, and I need not waste the time of the Council in repeating them; in the second clause of that section, it is laid down that a sum of 15 per cent. should be paid in addition to the market-value in consideration of the compulsory nature of the acquisition. What does that show? It shows that the market-value does not represent the full value of the property which is acquired. The market-value plus something represent the full value, and here the question is whether this can be looked upon as an additional compensation. There ought to be done justice in snatching away property from one's hand who is unwilling to part with it. I therefore submit, Sir, that the full value of the property ought to be given at least when it is acquired by compulsion. It is not a question of favour; some have chosen to call it a solatium, and I refuse to admit it. It is justice what we expect. If you look, Sir, again to the principle which underlies section 55 of the Transfer of Property Act, which deals with the rights and liabilities of sellers and buyers, you will find that justice is the main factor in the ascertainment of value. I, therefore, stand upon these grounds and say that there ought to be one law for all the subjects of His Majesty's. Full value should be given for all lands that should be snatched away from owners, and I hope that when the Hon'ble Members of this Council will consider the question from that standpoint, they will be convinced that the 15 per cent. is not an additional compensation: this taken with the market-value represents the full value and no one can deny it. I have no doubt that this Council will be guided by the principles of equity and justice in framing a legislation which will affect large interests. Let us see what are the grounds on which this departure is sought to be made, in respect of a law which was passed in 1870 and the principle which underlies that law, the Land Acquisition Act, which has been recognised for about forty years. I am not going to discuss what prevails in European countries or any other countries; there is no analogy, I should say, between Bengal and other countries. If you apply wholesale laws of principle which are applicable to one country, to Bengal, well, and good, but the partial application of certain laws and principles in respect of certain matters cannot be accepted as being the correct standard. Then, what are the grounds for which there can be a justification for decreasing the compensation for land to be acquired? So far I have not been able to gather any grounds from the Statement of Objects and Reasons of this Bill, nor does the preamble show any special grounds. We find that the Board is going to be invested with powers to acquire lands in excess of their requirements—simply for the purpose of securing them a profit for the purpose of recoupment. In previous day's debates the question has been discussed that the Board would have powers to acquire lands which they do not actually require for their improvement schemes. Now they would be allowed to do that for the purpose of making a profit, whereas, on the other hand, the landowners of Calcutta won't be given what they are justly entitled to as the full value of their property. Does this show any respect or regard for the principles of equity or justice? I venture to submit that it does not. These two things placed together, this enactment, if passed, will be considered as an unjust one. With these remarks I beg to move the amendment which stands in my name."

"Sir,—We have now come to the question of the 15 per cent. compensation. It is a question of money, a question of business. It is not a question of sentiment, and I see no reason why it should be discussed with heat. The loyalty of the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan is in his own hands, but I do not think that the speech which he has delivered has added to the dignity of the discussion. This provision of the Bill has been altered since the Bill was introduced in Council. The Bill, as originally introduced, followed the line of the Bombay Act and provided that whenever the Trust acquired land, the 15 per cent. compensation should not be paid. As it now stands, the Bill merely provides that the 15 per cent. shall not be paid when land is taken up for improvement schemes in Calcutta, that is to say, it shall not be paid when land is taken up for remedying the existing intolerable state of affairs. And in this connection I deny that it is a correct description to say that we are making a drastic change in the law of the country. On the contrary we are following the only precedent that exists in India—the precedent of Bombay. If we are not to follow the lines of the only law that exists in India, dealing with similar circumstances, the burden lies on those who would have us to depart from that precedent to show why we should do so. We are not making a drastic change in the law. It is those who wish us to remove this section who ask us to do so. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu has given us an account of the development of the law relating to the payment of additional compensation in England and in India. I do not think that he took the story far enough. I think that the following brief account of the law in England will be admitted by him to be correct. There is in England nothing corresponding to the Land Acquisition Act in India. When lands came to be acquired under the Land Clauses Act, the practice grew up among arbitrators of awarding additional compensation which varied from 10 to 40 per cent. in different parts of the country and for different classes of property, but you will not find on the statute book of England any law which makes it compulsory to award that additional compensation. The custom grew up, and after a time, when Acts authorising the compulsory acquisition came up before Parliament, it was decided to restrict the award of additional compensation to the circumstances in which it was thought justified. The Hon'ble Member has referred to the practice on the Continent. He says it is the universal practice in the Continent to award this solatium. When I spoke on this subject on the motion to refer this Bill to the Select Committee, I quoted the case of Prussia where no compensation is given. In my official position I could not make such a statement without what I thought good authority, and if the Hon'ble Member contradicts me, I think he owes it to me and to this Council to quote his authority. Now, one of the restrictions which Parliament placed on the granting of the 15 per cent. compensation was that, under the Artisans' Dwellings Act of 1875, no such compensation should be paid when land is acquired for improvement purposes. This Act gave the municipal authorities power to acquire and clear away insanitary and crowded areas. In that law it was laid down that in the acquisition of such an area no additional compensation should be paid. Mr. Chamberlain was then, as Mayor of Birmingham, laying the foundation of his fame, and he at once proposed his great improvement scheme to be carried out under the Act. In his speech introducing that scheme he exultantly said: 'The Council would have the power of compulsory purchase of the whole of the property without paying one penny for the compulsory sale. This was an important provision, for the British Parliament had for the first time recognised something higher than property. They would not have to pay the landlords what was termed solatium: they would be able to acquire the property at a fair market price.' That was the spirit in which municipal reformers welcomed the change in England. That was the principle laid down by Parliament, and it has not since been departed from. On the contrary, it has within the last year or two been extended to lengths to which we do not propose to follow it here. In the Act of 1909, which provided funds for creating main roads in England, the law gave power to the Board to acquire land extending for 220 yards on each side of the road, without paying any additional compensation, and in the same Act the Development Board may take up land for purposes connected with the development of agriculture or fisheries, for forestry, for light railways and other purposes without paying any solatium. The question is, if you expropriate a man from his land, what should you pay him? The obvious answer is that you should pay him the value of that which you take from him: You, in addition, pay him for any incidental damage, such as loss of earnings, which he may incur. It does not inevitably suggest itself that additional compensation should be paid for sentimental grievances arising from the loss of the land: and such sentimental grievance was stated to afford the justification for the 15 per cent. when it was introduced into the Land Acquisition Act.

"Now, what justification is there in the case of Calcutta for paying additional compensation to the owners of property? The critics of this Bill have from the first freely admitted that Calcutta sorely needs an improvement scheme. I am not going to discuss the question of who is responsible for the present condition of Calcutta. I will leave it at what cannot be denied that Calcutta was built when ideas of sanitation were most primitive and when men went about in palkis, whereas now they wish to go about in motors and in trams. Calcutta has therefore to be brought up to date, and primarily the duty lies on the owners of the land and buildings in Calcutta to bring Calcutta up to date. They have a moral duty as regards the disposal of their property. But owing to the multiplicity of owners and other reasons they will not and cannot take action. Therefore Government steps in and creates the Trust and places funds at its disposal. We are not going to pay additional compensation merely because we are going to help the landlords to perform a moral duty that lies upon them, namely, to see that their property is laid out in accordance with modern ideas of sanitation and convenience.

"We are here as legislators arranging for the expenditure of large public funds. What is our first and obvious duty, our duty to the public and our duty to the ratepayers? Our first and obvious duty is to arrange that this fund shall be expended with the utmost efficiency and the utmost economy. And any one who wants us to depart from that principle has to show very cogent reasons for the course that he proposes. I do not look at this state of affairs in Calcutta as a development of landlordism, and I have never said that they must be punished for their misdeeds in the past and the present, and I think the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha must have been misled, for I never made any such statement in regard to landlords. In Select Committee, so far as I remember, I never used hard words of anybody. I do not blame the landlords for the attitude which they have taken up. In every country those who have vested interests have resisted reform. Their attitude is quite natural, but it is also against the public interest. I say no hard words, but I say to them that we have a duty here to see that these sums entrusted to us are spent with the utmost possible economy and the utmost possible efficiency. And it is no light matter that 75 lakhs of rupees—to adopt the estimate of the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu—should be diverted from the improvement of Calcutta. This sum spent in Calcutta will be the saving of many lives.

"We have recognised that a 15 per cent. compensation should be paid when you acquire lands outside Calcutta for the development of the suburbs, because there you are not to rectify the errors of the past. There at least there is no moral duty for the owners of property to make good the evils that have grown. There we are laying out property with an eye to the future and to avoid the evils which have arisen in Calcutta, and there we are prepared to follow the ordinary law of the country when land is not taken under the peculiar circumstances which exist in Bombay and in Calcutta. We recognise that the opposition of this procedure in Calcutta is not unnaturally greater than in Bombay. In Bombay there was no opposition. Some of the provisions of the Bill were greatly contested in Bombay, and with some heat. But when the clause came up, in which it was provided that 15 per cent. compensation was not to be paid, there was not even a comment. It passed without a word, because the Bombay men remembered the terrible lessons of plague and they recognised that their city had to be put in order, and that they should get the utmost possible value of the money they were paying. I submit it is our duty to adopt the same view of the matter. I know that there are grounds why the prospect of the improvement scheme should create more consternation in Calcutta than in Bombay. I would willingly admit, as the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu has asked me to do, that certain classes of the population will be affected by the improvement scheme more in Calcutta than in England. In England, when dealing with congested and insanitary areas, the better class of population have been able to move out, because in every growing city provision is made in advance for the laying out of healthy suburbs, so that the unhealthy quarters of the town are left to be occupied by people earning weekly wages, to whom removal is no great hardship. Within the last decade a population of 100,000 has been added to Calcutta and its suburbs. If there were any such increase in any town of Europe, you will find suburbs would be growing up; whereas, here, this extra 100,000 have had to crowd in the already existing overcrowded suburbs or quarters of Calcutta. There is therefore a considerable middle-class population living in their own houses in the most congested and unhealthy parts of the city, and these men have a strong sentimental objection to leaving what are called their ancestral houses, though they are scarcely ancestral houses in the English sense of the term, for they have mostly been occupied for but two or three generations. That, however, is not a consideration which can be raised or which should affect our judgment on the present question. It is admitted on all hands that we must have improvements in Calcutta, which will involve the displacement of many people of this class: the more deeply their feelings will be hurt, the more nearly religious is their feeling for their homes, the less relevant does it become to suggest that the payment of 115 rupees instead of 100 rupees will make the difference between content and discontent.

"There is only one other matter that I will refer to, and that is the note of dissent which the Hon'ble Mr. Shorrock appended to the Report of the Select Committee. Of course my position is somewhat strengthened when notes of dissent of contrary purports are appended to the Bill. The Hon'ble Members who support this amendment anticipate that the denial of the 15 per cent. will cause the greatest wrong and hardship. On the contrary, Mr. Shorrock contends that, if it is given, it would make no difference to anyone, for his idea was that if no additional compensation is payable, the Land Acquisition Collector will naturally be more liberal and that he will practically include the 15 per cent. in his award. Mr. Shorrock is a practical man of business with a knowledge of human nature, and I am willing to concede that there is something in his contention, and so far as there is anything in it, it may serve as some consolation to the mover of the amendment. But I know more about the land acquisition work than the Hon'ble Mr. Shorrock, and I do not think that the Collector's award will be increased by anything like 15 per cent. It may be increased by 5 per cent., but even if it were as much as that, that is not at all the same as handing over to the owners of property the whole of the 75 lakhs which are to be saved and spent on improvements in Calcutta.

"There is one remark by the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur, and similar remarks have been made elsewhere, to which I think I will refer. It has been said that in Bombay there was a crisis, and that was why the Bombay people took to the improvement scheme so eagerly, and that conditions in Calcutta are far more satisfactory. We do not know what the death-rate of Calcutta is. It is a city of immigrants. It is a matter of common occurrence that people, who had come here for business and have lived here, go to their native villages to die when they grow old or are seized with chronic disease. Those deaths are not recorded. But we do know what havoc certain diseases make in Calcutta.

"When a man is seized by plague or cholera or small-pox he has no time to escape, and the death-rate for those diseases is fairly accurate. I find that the average deaths from those three preventible diseases totalled 6,800; and if we exclude 1910, which was singularly free from epidemic disease, the annual average was 7,500. I call those diseases preventible, not because they can be extirpated in the dreams of sanitarians but because in other countries they have been actually eradicated. People do not die of plague or cholera in London; and if there were an outbreak of small-pox in a single parish the newspapers would be full of it. This is not because that favoured clime enjoys any natural immunity; every school-boy knows what havoc plague wrought in England so late as the 17th century: all the big English towns in the forties and fifties of the last century were smitten with cholera. In Glasgow, in three successive epidemics, the death-rate varied between 10 and 14 per thousand of the population, while until the discovery of vaccination it was the exception for an Englishman to pass through life without an attack of small-pox. These diseases are preventible, and 40,000 persons died of them in Calcutta in the last six years. The Hon'ble Member says that there is no crisis; I say that there is a chronic crisis.

"With all this it is idle to say that we should wait for a crisis to take up the improvement of Calcutta. We owe it to the tax-payers to effect an improvement in this city and also to see that, in doing so, their money is spent with the utmost economy. That, Sir, is the justification for the proposal in this Bill. I need not say more. I would also remind Members of the fact mentioned by you, Sir, in your opening speech. The Government of India is also responsible for the administration of the funds that it will place at the disposal of the Trust, and they have intimated that, in their opinion, this fund should not be applied in the way in which it is intended by the Hon'ble Mover in paying this unnecessary additional compensation to the landlords and property-owners, and that if such a proposal is persisted in, they will have to reconsider the question of whether such large sums should be placed at the disposal of the Trust and whether the money could not be spent on some more deserving object."

The Hon'ble MR. FILGATE said:—

"Sir,—An Hon'ble Member of the Select Committee says in paragraph 25, page 23, in his note of dissent:—'In conclusion I earnestly pray that the Bill may not be passed in a form which will go to displease a class of people—I mean, owners of property—in Calcutta.' It seems to me that here we have in a nutshell the reason of the strong opposition to the Bill, and certainly it looks very much as if the opposers do not want any improvements at all unless they can see their way to getting their pound of flesh. After all this is but human nature, and one cannot but admire the good and strenuous fight their representatives are making in this Council, as they are in honour bound to do all they can for those they represent. Calcutta will contribute ⅛th of the cost, and the general taxpayer ⅞th. Now, exclusive of the Calcutta landowners' representatives, have the other Hon'ble non-official Members of this Council a mandate from those they represent, and who will provide ⅞th of the cost to support the amendment, and do they suppose for a moment that the travellers from all over the world, who visit this city by rail, or river, or the millions of jute cultivators of Bengal, would prefer to see their mites to the extent of a crore of rupees go into the pockets of the property-owners of Calcutta (if the amendment now under discussion is carried), instead of being spent to brighten the lives and surroundings of generations yet unborn? Whatever personal sympathy an Hon'ble Member, who is not a representative of the landholders, may have, it will not justify his supporting the amendment. I go as far as to say, it would be a breach of trust to those he represents, if he does.

"The present Bill has the approval of the Government of India, and I believe I am correct in saying, is approved of and sanctioned by that enlightened and far-seeing Secretary of State who has done so much to meet the wishes and just aspirations of His Majesty's subjects in India. If this amendment is carried, is it not likely that he may ask himself, 'Have I been wise in giving a non-official majority to a Council who carry an amendment in favour of one class instead of the whole community, who will have to pay the larger share of the cost'? Whereas, if the amendment is rejected, what an unanswerable argument for all time to those who have questioned the wisdom of his statesmanship!

"Experientia docet surely is the acmé of sound law-making and legislation, and to profit and be guided by the working and experience of similar acts in India, the British Empire and other countries. In paragraph 34 of his note of dissent, an Hon'ble Member of the Select Committee, page 28, paragraph 24th, with reference to clause 14 (2 a) [now 9(1)] remarks:—

'In Calcutta the first Improvement Act begins with the latest innovations adopted in England after 20 years.'

"I feel assured that the Hon'ble Member's dearest wish is to see this Council a progressive one, but if his suggestion was accepted, would we be progressive, or retrograde? The principle that has now come to be accepted and acquiesced in by the owners of property in England and other countries surely is good enough for the owners of property in Calcutta, and I hope the Hon'ble Member I refer to will pardon me for having hoped that since he has recently visited England, he may now be of opinion that we should begin where they have left off and take a broader and more enlarged view of the question, not the parochial one. Especially, after reading in the public press his speeches for the British workman, but after listening to his championship of the landlords and property-owners this morning, I am afraid he withholds that sympathy he has for the English workmen from his own countrymen—the Calcutta workmen.

"The cry is being heard all over this vast continent for improvement and expenditure on sanitation. What an example for the rest of India to see this, the first enlarged Bengal Legislative Council, with its representatives of all classes of the community, carrying an amendment, the effect of which would be to put into the pockets of owners of property in Calcutta an enormous sum, and whose same property has increased in value by leaps and bounds, not by lavish expenditure of the owner, but by improvements paid out of the rates and taxes of the people! I hold no brief for the Government. I speak for those I have the honour to represent, and I appeal not only to my fellow Bihari colleagues but to every non-official Member who is not representing the Calcutta property-owners to oppose the amendment. Before actually recording your vote, ask yourself—am I voting as the majority of those I represent would wish me to do?

"I believe there is a feeling amongst some of the non-official Members that, in the future, if the 15 per cent. was to be disallowed in this instance it might be taken as a precedent generally in land acquisition cases. I myself have no such fears.

"If you, Sir, and this Council will excuse my further trespassing on your valuable time, I will go further and appeal to the Hon'ble Mover of the amendment and his supporters not to press for a division, but even ask him to withdraw it. The Bombay Act has been in force for some years now, and I believe is working satisfactorily. To any one who knew Bombay 30 or even 20 years ago and now visits that fair city, it must strike him as most remarkable what has been done, and compares favourably with any city improvement in the world Surely Calcutta is not going to let Bombay oust them from the title of the second city in the Empire.

One of the Hon'ble Members of the Select Committee, in his note of dissent, with reference to clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill, paragraph 7, page 15, says: 'Very probably the people of Bombay did not raise any objection, as they thought any sacrifice would not be too great for the purpose of escaping from the ravages of plague which was then raging in a virulent form. The conditions prevailing here are fortunately very different, and there is no necessity for the inhabitants to make such sacrifices on that account.'

"Is it a fact that to-day, hidden away from the magnificent streets and palaces of this city, there exist spots and so-called dwelling-houses that would be a disgrace to an African village, and that as long as these danger-spots remain in your midst they are seed-beds for propagating plague, cholera, small-pox, and enteric, and should (which God forbid) a serious terrible calamitious epidemic start from one of these spots and sweep over the city, carrying off thousands of its inhabitants, rich and poor, what would be the feelings of any one who had delayed, for his own personal gain, their clearing away and improvement? Wealth and riches entail responsibilities on those who possess them towards their poorer, less fortunate neighbours and fellow-creatures. Calcutta owners of property must be prepared to make certain sacrifices. Surely it is better to make these sacrifices while there is still time-before a serious epidemic would entail still greater sacrifices, and perhaps even life itself.

"All the world over the ancient rights and privileges of the landlords are being modified. I would draw the Calcutta landowners' attention to the fact that, thanks to the solemn and sacred pledge of the British Government under the permanent settlement, the land-rent payable to Government is, I believe, about three rupees an acre only, and they should bear in mind that if they press and stand too much upon their rights and especially claim the 15 per cent., it is quite possible that not only landlords outside Bengal but all classes of the community from one end of India to the other may raise the question? why should the landlord of Bengal be so particularly favoured?

"It is very natural that the landlords of Calcutta may say, it is all very well for you to appeal to us—you who do not own a dhoor of land or even a grass hut in Calcutta (I only wish I was fortunate enough to own a cottah or two in the vicinity referred to the other day in Council), but I fully sympathise with them as I happen to own a small portion of the soil in my own country, Ireland, and I can assure you that Irish landlords have had to make far greater sacrifices under the various Land Acts, compulsory acquiring of land for labourers' cottage, etc., than any Calcutta landlord is ever likely to have to make if the amendment is withdrawn.

"This city is to have the unique honour, in conjunction with Bombay and Delhi, of a visit from their Gracious Majesties the King-Emperor and Queen-Empress at the commencement of the new year. What an opportunity the landowners of Calcutta have of giving real, practical proof that they are above the sordid question of pounds, shillings, pence, in considering and caring for the welfare and well-being of His Majesty's poorer subjects—a tribute far above rubies and surpassing anything that was ever laid at the feet of a Cæsar.

"In all human probability the youngest of us here to-day will have passed beyond the 'Bourne' by the time the Trust that we are here to initiate will have come to an end, but if there is no division over this amendment, what an epitaph future generations can inscribe to the memory of this Council—"the first enlarged Bengal Legislative Council, but the most enlightened and progressive."

"I hope you will take my remarks in the spirit which they have been made, and that I have not said a single word that would lead you to suppose you have not my personal sympathy. I consider that the landlords are the natural leaders of the people, but a leader either in military or civil life must be prepared to make personal sacrifices. You have the opportunity of doing so. Don't lose it, and if you accept my appeal, in 1971 not only will Calcutta stand as the second city in the British Empire, but Urbs prima in Indis, and her citizens of that day will be able to quote the words of the classic poet—

'Where shepherds once were housed in homely sheds,
'Now towers within the clouds advance their heads.'

And if this Council accepts the advice of the High Court on the question of an appeal, the remainder of the quotation can be omitted—

'We viewed the ground of Rome's litigious hall,
'Once oxen low'd where now the lawyers bawl'.

"If I have given too free a translation from the original, I appeal to the Hon'ble Member for the University to put me right.

"With these remarks, Sir, I beg to oppose the amendment now before us."

The Hon'ble MR. DIP NARAYAN SINGH said:—

"Sir,—I feel it my duty to say a few words in support of the amendment of my Hon'ble friend,—especially as I feel that this is the last chance the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill has of at least putting a coat of sugar over his bitter pill.

"Sir, I shall not discuss the arguments of 'efficiency' and the analogies to the 'Bombay' and 'English Acts', that have so constantly been brought forward before the Council during these debates. Efficiency, I think, Sir, has been made too much a fetish of, and the Bombay and English Acts have been converted into double-edged weapons of offence and defence during the present discussion—weapons, Sir, that have been freely used, both to guard the existing clauses and to demolish them. I support this amendment—and I appeal to my colleagues, both official and non-official, to support it—on another ground. My strongest argument, Sir, is that, on this question, Indian educated public opinion is almost unanimous, and that its rejection—apart from the hardship that it may cause to persons directly concerned—will create an amount of discontent that will far outweigh any monetary benefit that may accrue to the Trust. I at once admit, Sir, that your drastic treatment will succeed in curing and cleansing some of the sore spots of Calcutta, but is this all that has to be thought about? Will you not consider, Sir, whether such heroic doses of strong antiseptics might not poison the blood, touch the brain, or affect the heart of your patient? Sir, it is not only a question of whether a certain method is efficient or not: we have also to see that it is suitable to the times and circumstances of the country. I can understand, many of the clauses of this Bill being acceptable to the general public fifty years hence; I can understand their being supported even by a majority of the citizens of Calcutta, but that only when the people of this country have advanced in education to the same degree as that of England or other European countries. I shall go a step further; some of the clauses of this Bill would not have been so strongly opposed even now, had there not unfortunately existed a feeling of distrust with regard to the tribunal that has been created. But, Sir, having regard to the present condition of the country and to the almost absolute unanimity of educated Indian opinion on this point, I am afraid I cannot see my way to advise the Council to reject this amendment, as my Hon'ble friend Mr. Filgate has done. Sir, perhaps the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas will say that he is not so sure about the Indian public opinion being unanimous on this point. Well, Sir, my assertion is certainly very difficult to prove by facts and figures, but all I can say is this that if this amendment is rejected, it will be rejected in the face of the unanimous protest of almost all Indian non-official Members of this Council—Members, Sir, who certainly represent, if any body of men can possibly do so, educated public opinion, in Calcutta and outside Calcutta. With these words I strongly support the amendment."

The Hon'ble MR. APCAR said:—

"Sir,—I had not intended to intervene in the discussion of this question, but the Hon'ble Member who spoke from the rostrum has induced me to break my silence. I congratulate him on the very eloquent speech he has made. But I think that possibly he has devoted his time more to polishing his periods than to studying the subject of this Bill. He presumes that all our opposition is due to our desire to obtain this 15 per cent. compensation. I think, Sir, that he could not have been attending even in the discussions here if he has not realised the conditions under which the operations of the Board will affect ten times as numerous persons who are not landlords, but those who are tenants and occupiers who will suffer under this Bill. He does not appear to have followed our proceedings sufficiently to understand that when the question of an improvement scheme is before the Board, the Government have refused to allow a direction in the law that the Board should ever consider or make any inquiry into it before declaring an area to be an unhealthy area; the Government have refused to allow a direction that the Local Government should inquire into a scheme submitted to them by the Board for sanction, or should specify the area to be declared an unhealthy area. On my own part, I am the least interested in any possible prospect of whether or not this compensation is withdrawn, and I do not think that it is fair that he should attribute a sordid motive, as has been attributed, to all those who are taking part in this discussion in opposing the various clauses of this Bill, to bring it in consonance with the principles that govern the same question in England and in endeavouring to obtain an amelioration of the hardship that may be caused by the stringent terms of this law."

The Hon'ble MR. BRADSHAW said:—

"Your Honour,—In the early stages of the discussion on this Bill, the Association I have the honour to represent passed a resolution in favour of this 15 per cent. clause, and it is because I think some of my non-official friends may think I come with a mandate from my constituents to support this that I do not wish to give a silent vote. Sir, I come with no mandate, but with their express wish that I should have a perfectly free hand to vote as I think best in the true interests of the public.

"The resolution passed by the Calcutta Trades Association was a qualifying one; it was chiefly in favour of compensation being granted to the poor individual householder and the tenant who would be turned out of his house, and left to find a home elsewhere, perhaps at an increased cost. But, Sir, I feel it is very little of this 15 per cent. compensation that would find its way into the pockets of these evicted people. As regards the property-owner, I am of opinion that, having regard to the great increase in the value of property in Calcutta and presuming the Trust will have to pay the prices at present ruling, I think he will be fully compensated.

"Only two days ago I heard a man congratulating himself that property he had purchased only three years ago for Rs. 35,000 had just been valued at Rs. 70,000. One could quote similar instances. Why the public should be made to pay 15 per cent. additional profit on transactions such as these, I fail to see, and, in view that those who really deserve the compensation are not likely to get it, and in view, Sir, of the important statement made by your Honour at the beginning of this debate, and also with the full belief that throughout this Bill the Government are desirous only of doing that which will do the greatest good for the greatest number, I support the Government and oppose the amendment."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir,—I am sorry that in spite of my repeated endeavours to catch your Honour's eyes, some speakers have intervened between the Hon'ble Mr. Filgate's naive demand for aid for the correctness of his translation of his furbished up classics and early errors which if not corrected betimes, were best left alone. Descent from the rostrum to nostrum is apt ever to be a pitiful bathos, specially when it has a distinctly bucolic tendency. Corrections under such circumstances being too late, I shall direct myself to the amendment that stands against my name according to the freshly laid dictum of Bihar georgics. I have to do so at the risk of being considered guilty of breach of trust, for the learned constituency by whose suffrages I am here are supposed to be no way interested in the issues before the Council. A legitimate sequence of such an obiter would be that when an Orissa or a Bihar measure is on the table, Calcutta Members must content themselves with giving 'silent sensible votes' upon which one of your Honour's predecessors in office wanted to put a premium. In being thus guilty of breach of the kind indicated I shall be in excellent company, for when a much less drastic measure of spoliation, on the strength of which we are asked to accept this enactment, was passed, a previous representative of the University of Calcutta, no less than the Hon'ble Dr. Ashutosh Mukherji, who has now been translated to a different sphere of public usefulness—where the Hon'ble Mr. Filgate's classic translation will fall flat—was guilty of as gross a breach of trust, if not grosser, though his protest on that occasion was no more effective than mine is going to be.

"I share the regret of the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas that a certain amount of avoidable heat has been introduced into the deliberations of this Council, while we are in view of the end. The responsibility of the location and the apportionment of that heat will be no useful topic now to pursue. We have been told to-day, Sir, that our duty here as a legislature is to the public and to the tax-payer. As I read the vigorous protests of the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan and those who have spoken in a similar strain, we have another duty, if not higher, certainly equally high,—duty to what has been considered to be the prevailing law—duty to ideas of order and orderliness—duty to subsisting ideas of private rights and proprietorship—which, though not for the first time, are being steadily assailed. In this clause, which are now seeking to amend, it is no answer to the criticism that may well be aimed against it that in Berlin or, with regard to certain classes of properties, in London or in Bombay, such an attack has already successfully been made. If a proposition like that could be carried to its legitimate consequences, the grievances of the Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur would disappear—one class and one tract having a different law from another. If the logic of the Hon'ble Rai Bahadur's objection could be carried far enough in the way that this clause seeks to carry it, to-morrow the Acquisition Act would be so amended as to do away with the whole of that 15 per cent. clause for all tracts and all classes and then the socialistic propoganda of this enactment could have its due and legitimate position I do not know, Sir, whether the objections of the Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur are going to be met in the particular way, and, if it is, the day of rejoicing of the kind that the Hon'ble Mr. Filgate has thought fit to indulge in to-day and to the strain of which he asks the Bihar representatives, have nothing to do with Calcutta and Calcutta lands, to vote with him, I do not know how long that rejoicing will last. One trembles to think as to how or when the Frankenstein thus raised is going to be laid if at all, or whether it is to go the way of other Frankenstein of other lands and climes—too terrible to recall. With a propaganda like this about, little wonder that some heat should have unconsciously crept in. Sir, I do not wish to participate in that controversy; I prefer to confine my observations to what appertains to be my own legitimate domain, that is, of the lawyer that bawls.

"Before we get away from the point, I should like to put right the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu, who was followed by the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, with regard to the question of the 10 per cent. that is allowed under what the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas calls unrecognised statutory enactment. This 10 per cent. is given by the old Common Law practice which had always had acceptance in the law courts of England and which was embodied in a more liberal spirit in our own old Land Acquisition Act of 1870. Distinguished and unchallenged authority on Compensation lays down that the fact that lands have been taken compulsorily does alter the principle of valuation, and the customary addition of 10 per cent is, strictly speaking, a part of the valuation of the property under the circumstances. As has been pointed out by the Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur, in order to arrive at what ought to be the proper assessment and value under the circumstances of the case, they took the market-value plus this 10 per cent., which they regarded not as an addition but as an integral part of the value to be paid to the person whose land is going to be taken up compulsorily. That 10 per cent. does represent anything like what is proposed to be embodied in our own Bill in the way of a doubtful solatium, namely, the payment of certain costs which the party aggrieved may have to incur, not in acquiring a new habitation but in placing his case before the Collector, and sundry other matters dealt with under that Act. Therefore, on the basis of time-honoured Common Law which the Statute had never considered it necessary to enact formally, compensation used to be added to in this way. The Imperial legislature proceeded to regularise it in 1870, and after a great deal of deliberation, to add 15 per cent. compensation on what was known then as the market-value. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu has casually referred to the proceedings on that occasion, which really are the basis of the law that now obtains. We are contending for the retention of that law, and it is of the utmost importance to realise how the matter stood when the present system came into vogue, whatever the result of our amendments may be.

"The Land Acquisition Act of 1870 (X of 1870), when introduced in Council, did not contain any provision for payment of 15 per cent. extra compensation, nor did it exempt any award or agreement under the Act from stamp duty. In supporting the introduction of the clause at a later stage Sir John Strachey (then the Hon'ble Mr. Strachey) said :—

The intention of the Government, when this measure was first brought forward, was to take the law of England, as interpreted by the English Courts, as the basis of our legislation.

Sir James Stephen said that the legislature had merely adopted the law of England, and done so in a spirit of somewhat greater liberality towards the public than that which prevailed in England. According to the law of England, the compensation was assessed by a jury summoned by the Sheriff, and generally presided over by an assessor. No rules had been laid down to guide them in the exercise of their discretion, and the consequence was, that a branch of business had grown up in England, eminently profitable to lawyers, eminently profitable, in some instances, to those who received compensation, but in no way profitable either to the undertaking for which the land was acquired, or to the general interest which the public had in a fair and equitable arrangement on such occasions. During the early history of this subject, those from whom lands were taken used to get enormous compensation. After that there was a considerable reaction, and cases of hardship sometimes occurred the other way. But at length, without any explicit legislative provision on the subject, but partly by practice, and partly by the decisions of the Courts of Justice, a sort of general rule was arrived at, more particularly in London, with regard to the amount of compensation to be awarded, and that general understanding was, that you were to pay the fair price which a prudent purchaser would accept for the property, plus an addition for the forced sale, which, by practice, was taken at 10 per cent. Besides this, special compensation was made for severance, for expenses of removal, and any damage to trade that might result.

"The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas has said that because the principle of doing away with extra compensation, such as was allowed under the Act of 1870 and the existing Land Acquisition Act, has been accepted in Bombay, and partly in London, with regard to acquisition of a certain restricted character, the onus lies upon us to show that what we seek for us is right and just and that the onus is not upon him. I desire to argue quite the other way. Unless it is affirmatively shown as to why the principles recognised by the legislature in 1870 by so distinguished authorities as those I have mentioned should be departed from, we have no right to make a departure from that practice, particularly because there are no special extraneous circumstances quoted in justification of that departure. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas complained that the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu had not taken the history of the English legislature on the subject far enough, and he proceeded to supplement that history in a way that is certainly instructive and interesting. I should like to supplement further his statement by referring to a piece of legislation on a line of our own, which was attempted unsuccessfully in 1892 to be forced upon the British public by availing of the growing power of socialistic principles which, under peculiar circumstances, succeeded with regard to the Working Men's Housing Act of 1890. They attempted a still more revolutionary and drastic measure in 1892 in the shape of what was called the Local Authorities' Purchase of Land Bill, by which indefinite purchase of land for communistic purposes was attempted by some members of the present Cabinet. That Bill very deservedly failed. The debate on that Bill enunciated and brought out certain principles which have very vivid application to the state of affairs that we are dealing with here and which made the British legislature reject the larger measure of spoliation (let us call it for convenience). The Hon'ble Mr. Haldane, as he then was, and the Hon'ble Mr. Asquith led the attack on property-owners, which they have successfully led for a long series of years, till they brought property-owners of England to the straits that the last Parliamentary Bill represents. In speaking against that measure which sought to authorise acquisition of land for indefinite purposes with application for twenty years, the Hon'ble Members of Parliament who opposed the Bill drew attention to the ideas of property that did weigh with the British legislature at the time, but which, we cannot hope, will weigh with this Council to-day.

"Mr. Beauman who lead the Opposition Bill pleaded hard in the interest of the inhabitants of all counties that security in properties should be maintained. He claimed to be old fashioned enough to believe that what was wrong in morals could not be innocent in politics. To make war upon property was to make war upon human nature, as Burke had said. Of all the blundering and plundering fallacies propagated by modern radicalism, this doctrine of unearned increment was the worst. The real issue raised by the Bill, he said, although it had not been avowed, was whether private ownership in land was to continue to be recognised by the legislature. If it was not to be recognised, let them say so honestly and openly, and let the State or the local authorities buy out the existing landlords. Let them not pretend that the recognised principle of private property in land and then destroy that property piecemeal by depriving the owners of ordinary rights, privileges and advantages of possession. They had been told that property was only an idea, that it had been created by law, and that it could be destroyed by law. The idea of private property consisted in the established expectation in the apprehension of the power to derive certain advantages from possession. It was that established expectation, that certainty of power based upon the law of the country that enabled a man to acquire property and induced him to improve it. If that established expectation was destroyed, that certainty diminished, the whole of our complex society would tumble to pieces like a house of cards. According to Bentham, security consists in no shock or derangement being given to the expectation which has been founded on the laws of enjoying a certain portion of good. The legislator owes the greatest respect to this expectation to which he has given birth. When he does not interfere with it, he does all that is necessary to the happiness of society; when he interferes with it he produces a proportionate amount of evil.

"Mr. Asquith, who spoke later on in the debate, reassured the House that the Bill would enable the local authority to get rid of the system of leasehold tenure in towns where it was injurious. He proposed to achieve this by giving in the shape of compensation everything that their landowner would be entitled to. He would give him the full value of the land for the time being; he would give him additional compensation for disturbance and further compensation for severance. He pleaded hard for this special measure because public authorities had to pay exorbitant prices when they wanted to buy lands and had to come to Parliament for a provisional order which enormously increased the cost. He therefore pressed hard in the interest of the community that the local authority should get land after paying the owner the full value with compensation for the damage sustained.

Mr. Lawson said:—'There was, after all, a great deal in the sentiment of home, but would any man get compensation for the sentiment of home, which he would lose under this Bill? Not one penny, nay, he doubted whether a man would get any compensation for goodwill and connexion, which went a long way to make the value of his holding. There was a provision for compensation for disturbance, but would that cover the rightful claims of tradesmen who had invested capital in the hope of future profit, and who had not yet obtained the full and just meed of their efforts and enterprise? Then there was to be compensation for improvements, but there were some improvements which might add to the value of a house in the eyes of an owner without adding to its letting value, and for such improvements what compensation would be given? If this Bill were passed no man would be secure in the occupancy of his house (Hear, hear). For his part he thought it should be the aim of all land-law reformers to identify occupancy as closely as possible with ownership. The Bill would plunge county councils into a Serbonian bog of mad speculation, and the results might be very unsatisfactory'.

Mr. Ritchie, who had in 1890 successfully piloted the Housing of the Working Classes Bill through the Parliament saw, said that he could not go further. He was no less emphatic in his condemnation of the Bill. He said:—

'J. S. Mill had never proposed to take away the unearned increment (Mr. J. Morley and Mr. Haldane expressed dissent). What he proposed was some arrangement of taxation and rating. He was aware that several proposals had been made with regard to tapping the unearned increment by taxation, but such a monstrous proposal as that contained in the Bill had never been made (Hear, hear). The Right Hon'ble Member for Derby had never made any such proposal, and he would have been glad to ask the Right Hon'ble gentleman, if he had been present, whether he adhered to the opinion expressed by him on this matter in 1874. Unfortunately, the Right Hon'ble gentleman possessed the pecularity of not being present on occasions when awkward points were raised (hear, hear and laughter), although he was sure his absence was accidental on the present occasion. The Right Hon'ble gentleman had, at Oxford in 1874, said:—

'I shall not discuss with you the unearned increment of land. That is an idea so illogical, so unreasonable, so perfectly unjust and so absolutely 'philosophical' that it does not require a refutation. Neither shall I inquire into the nature and origin of property in land. I am content to assume that a man's right to his lands depends on the same principle as your right to the coat on your back, namely, that you have paid for it.'

"I take it, Sir, the Hon'ble Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan's protest, that has been sadly misunderstood and misinterpreted, was against the likely production of such a mischievous state of things as the Bill devised to bring about and which Parliament rejected. I shall not, however, pursue the topic further because we have much to engage our attention to-day.

"I am not quite sure that, in spite of the Berlin and London and Bombay precedents that have been quoted, we are not doing something of the kind that the rejected Land Purchase Bill wanted to achieve but failed. It is certainly much in advance of when the Working Men's Housing Act had achieved earlier and which Mr. John Burns in 1909 did not succeed in taking very much further.

"Sir, the expectations that have been aroused and that, according to Mr. Beauman, ought not to be lightly set aside, were embodied deliberately in our Land Acquisition Act of 1870. When the Buildings Commission met after the Housing of the Working Classes Act had been solemnly enacted by the British legislature, although they had to complain of extraordinary prices having been paid in certain instances and although they had to introduce a rule of thumb about the twenty-five years' assessment referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, they not only refrained from urging that the 15 per cent. should be done away with, but they actually recommended that that compensation should continue. And when, in 1894, the present Land Acquisition Act was passed, all that had actuated the British legislature in doing away with the Common Law of practice of compensation with regard to particular matters and particular areas had no influence on the Indian legislature. Although the whole of that wisdom and knowledge and learning was available to the Imperial legislature, they never thought fit to touch that 15 per cent. compensation. Successive legislatures in this country and responsible bodies like the Buildings Commission, that had to deal with the situation, never suggested the desirability of interfering with this matter, whatever necessity for curtailment of expenses of acquisition may have existed. And expectations were deliberately and repeatedly raised, which are now to be belied.

"We have been told by the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas that this 75 lakhs of rupees, which would be paid as compensation would have to go into the landowners' pockets, if the amendment was carried, can be applied to very much better purpose in effecting the Improvement Scheme. I would go further and could, in the same strain, argue that 150 lakhs of rupees would effect many more improvements unquestionably; but would it be for that reason open to us to say that, because of the exigencies of the situation, we shall not give fair market-value to the owners but a little less than market price, on the ground that 150 extra lakhs of rupees would thereby go into the coffers of the Trust? The reduction would be an excellent cause and would probably be justifiable on arguments like these. Could we go further and would it be open to us to say that, because a property ordinarily is valued at 25 years' purchase and because it has been in the enjoyment of family for more than 300 years, that the owner should make a free present of the property in the way that the Hon'ble Mr Filgate thought the landowners of Calcutta may be expected to do in view of the approaching Imperial visit? The reference to the gracious occasion in this connection is unfortunate. In view of the Imperial visit some people thought that consideration of contentious measures like these should stand over so that strife and disputes might not animate the component parts of the society, when peace and good-will ought to pervade and people's energies and attention be more pleasurable. Property-owners will have to defend in the best possible manner their rights and privileges such as the law, deliberately worded, affords them, and regarding which expectations in the words that have often been repeated have been abundantly raised.

"The case of England, where differential treatment of property of a certain class under peculiar circumstances has been necessary, can never apply to this country. Calcutta is not a city chiefly of tenants, as has been erroneously supposed and said without any basis whatsoever, and the leasehold system which is supposed to have vitiated sanitation in general, which Messrs.

Asquith, Haldane, Burns and Lloyd George felt bound to condemn, does not obtain here to any extensive degree. Most people in northern Calcutta certainly live in their own houses, though they have to pay dear for it. The Hon'ble Maharaj-Kumar Hrishikesh Laha referred to certain figures showing how property stands in Calcutta. I tried also to get figures in order to show what percentage of Calcutta houses are residential and how many are tenanted. It has not been possible to get that information in figures, but the fact is exactly as I have stated."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I can give it to the Hon'ble Member."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

"It would have been very convenient to have it in the early stages by way of dispelling much of our misapprehensions; if we are proved wrong much of our complaint would disappear. If we have not yet figures of the kind that I want, I have figures of another kind Those who have any considerable number of houses, and even those that have not a considerable number, may resort to what is known as the hazuri method, by reason of which, under an arrangement, all the rates and bills are put into one nathi, as they call it, and are given to one man instead of different men in different wards for the purpose of realising rates in the different wards. This hazuri Collector goes to the landlord and realises the owners' and occupiers' rates realizable in respect of all his properties in a lump. If Calcutta was really a city of landlords with a negligible proportion of people living in their own houses hazuri nathis would be expected to predominate. But no such thing. The number of these nathis in Calcutta is only 1,100. If my information is correct, they represent 22 lakhs of owners' as well as occupiers' rates. Therefore, the half of that 11 lakhs may be regarded as owners' rates The rest are occupiers' rates; but the whole of that will not be occupiers' rates because owners live in their own houses, and have offices and quarters for their servants. Houses of that description also go into the hazuri nathi, and must not come under the category of tenanted house because they appear under the hazuri nathi. I do not mean to argue from this that less than 11 lakhs out of a total of nearly 65 lakhs or 64½ lakhs represent what may be called tenanted properties in Calcutta I am trying only to get an idea of the number of large landowners and their properties that go under the hazuri system, in order to combat the prevailing notion that Calcutta is a city of long-suffering tenants in whose interests such a feeling appeal has been made. So far as the better portion of Calcutta is concerned, which will not be primarily affected by the Improvement Scheme, no doubt it is tenanted—portions like Chowringhee quarters and the general European quarters. There no doubt tenancy is about the rule. But the rule is otherwise in the northern quarters, and until figures are produced to the contrary, I shall never go away from the idea of things that Calcutta is a resident-owners' city and not tenants'. The debate in Parliament that I referred to clearly shows that, even according to the Hon'ble Mr. Asquith who wanted to get rid of the monopolies of landlordism and the prevailing leaseholding system which has been a bane to the sanitary improvement of England, property has been in very few hands, and the owners have always resisted improvements which made it obligatory upon the British legislature to come to the rescue of the tenants, and make drastic rules which are unwarrantably sought to be introduced here merely because they are necessary and convenient. Where is the evidence that the present state of Calcutta that is sought to be remedied was brought about by landlordism? Many other causes are at work, which have been absolutely overlooked. Here the tenant lives in his own house for the most part, and even if his house is insanitary it is not because of landlordism, except perhaps in places like Bara Bazar, but because of the other circumstances which this legislation will never be able to overcome. They are due to their defective education, their want of notions of rudimentary principles of sanitary science, and things of that kind, and not the least of which is inadequate assistance from the sanitary authorities in the way of water for flushing the houses and other necessities and conveniences that I need not refer to at this moment. These are things that you will never attach importance to, although you may take out of the landlords, as has been estimated, a crore of rupees—the amount representing the withholding of this 15 per cent. compensation.

"Your Honour has drawn attention to what the Government of India have recently said regarding the 15 per cent. compensation, and reference has been made to it by the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas also. Of course, it is not difficult to see what the inner meaning of that communication is; but may it not be given to us to hope that, if this Council should think that a real hardship will entail in consequence of the withholding of this compensation—whether it be 15 per cent. or a lesser amount that will be proposed in the subsequent amendments—is it not open to us to hope that in view of that circumstance, the Government of India will be pleased to reconsider its position and make such other subvention and contribution as the exigencies of the situation may require? The contingency of having to make an increased subvention may never arise if the various financial schemes work well, as I have no doubt they will. Those who are opposing most the measure as a Bill will be bound to co-operate in its proper administration as an Act, as may be witnessed in the case of the opponents of the Universities Bill, among whom are to be found the staunchest workers under the Act. There is little chance, therefore, of the financial schemes failing, if there is whole-hearted co-operation of all concerned. If the Corporation, in its 2 per cent. contribution, is as lucky as we anticipate, no very serious disturbance of the financial aspects of the question need take place, and at the same time it may be possible for us to give some at least of that compensation at least to the poorer people, which the landlords have been accustomed so long to get, even before the Act of 1870, when the arbitrator under the older Acts used to give them compensation in a much larger measure than since the enactment of 1870. We shall be disturbing very seriously and unwarrantably the prevailing state of things if compensation be withheld. With regard to other acquisitions it cannot be withheld till the Land Acquisition Act itself is improved in the way that this Bill is being enacted, and there will be palpable and indefensible invidiousness. So far as the Municipal Act is concerned—although the drastic measure of 25 years' assessment rule recommended by the Buildings Commission was adopted and although they had all that had been done in England—the legislature did not think fit to do away with that 15 per cent. clause. Therefore, the application of that principle in England at an earlier stage will not be an answer to our contentions in this legislature to-day, in spite of the fact that in the intervening period Bombay has lost that privilege. We are told that Bombay took the loss of this compensation very quietly and did not even raise a contention or comment. The answer to that has been already given, although it has been made light of: in Bombay it was a panic measure that they were dealing with. The Government tried to come to some arrangement with the people and the people did not do their duty. The Government was thus forced to adopt a measure which, in the then state of things prevailing there, the Bombay leaders did not think fit to oppose. Here there is opposition that ought to make some difference to the situation. It was no concern of ours if they did not choose to oppose the loss. Bombay has grievance with regard to the permanent settlement that obtains here and a variety of other matters, in spite of which Bombay landlords are better off than Calcutta landlords, and to them it may not have been much of a loss if this compensation was withheld. This may be reason enough for there acquiesence; moreover, they were dealing with a panic measure.

"Taking all these circumstances into consideration, I am definitely of opinion that, although a great deal of assertion has been resorted to on the other side, no real reason has been shown, either on the score of necessity or expediency or justice, why this clause should be enacted in the way that it is proposed to be done."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU then got up to reply on the motion, and the Hon'ble the PRESIDENT said :—

"The procedure seems to me objectionable. I wish to rule that when there are identical amendments, the gentleman who actually moves the amendment should have the right of reply. But as there has been some misapprehension, I shall allow the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to reply on this motion."

"Sir,—With your premission I wish only to make some observations by way of reply upon this motion—not that I hope to make any impression upon my friends here, but that I believe it is just and fair only to ourselves that we shall place on record what we feel on this subject. It may be that posterity may find fault with us for having proceeded on these lines. But that is a matter which we are content to leave to the judgment of posterity. It is to me a source of regret that my friends, the representatives of Chamber and of Trades on this Council, should have taken an attitude on the present occasion different from what we were led to expect they would, when the Hon'ble Mr. Shorrock was on the Select Committee. Though it is a matter of regret to us, I have no cause to complain, for an Hon'ble Member may change his views at any moment before he records his vote There is one observation which fell from my friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Norman McLeod. I do think he meant to urge it seriously, but which I believe does require to be contradicted. He said that he felt some sympathy for those who, by the introduction of this change in the law, would be affected, but who were in no way responsible for the condition of things that has arisen in Calcutta, but he proceeded to say that they must suffer also for the guilty. That the innocent must suffer for the guilty, I do not think, is a sound proposition, either in ethics or in law, and I do not consider it necessary to adduce authorities, either in the domain of ethics or in the d main of law, to prove to my friend that the statement is not at all justified or warranted by the high precedents of morality or of justice.

"There is one other question that my friend referred to about the wages of our working classes, and he said, 'Where are the working classes anywhere in the world who are able to go home on a holidhy and absent themselves from their work?' I would put a question in reply. I would say, where are the working classes anywhere in the world who are drawn from the land and who are the tillers of the soil and who come to cities and factories merely for a part of the year to supplement their resources that they derive from land, and if the working classes of my country had not got their hereditary ancestral lands behind, the profits to the capitalists now open in my country would have told a different tale.

"The Hon'ble Member in charge has disclaimed any heat in the discussion of this part of the Bill. Well, Sir, so far as I am concerned, I have shown no heat. I have lived long in this country to be accustomed to measures which we consider to be unjust, and to be moved to any exhibition of heat or temper on what is after all another of those measures which I consider to be unjust. Our experience has been so bitter that we are fully innured to Acts which we conceive to be unjust, but which are nevertheless forced upon us. I now come to the argument of my friend, the Hon'ble Member in charge. As I said when I started, I say again that I knew that no useful purpose would be attained by my seeking to meet these arguments, and I feel also the deepest sympathy for my friends whom I am detaining from their midday meal, but I would only remind them of what we all read in our youth of the state of things in England, 'that wretches hung that jurymen might dine'. Though we are going to be hung I will not detain you very long from your lunch. I will take the first part of the arguments of my friend opposite which has great force, I admit, that when Bombay has accepted under similar circumstances a principle without protest, the onus lies upon us who object to that principle to establish a case why we should not accept it. Well, is my friend correct in laying down that proposition? When Bombay accepts an exception to the general law of the country, the onus lies upon my friend to show that circumstances have arisen in other parts of the country, also to accept the same change from the general law. If that law of Bombay were the general law of the country, then certainly the onus would have been upon me. But it lies upon my friend to show that the circumstances of Bombay and of Calcutta are similar. Throughout the long debates that have taken place over this Bill and the discussions that took place in the Select Committee, I have never heard one word said by any Member on the side of Government as to the identity of conditions between Bombay and Calcutta justifying similar treatment in both cases. Sir, the very introductory speech of Lord Sandhurst was that Bombay was in the midst of a calamity, that Bombay did not see its way to meet that calamity, that the people of Bombay did not know where they were. Are we in the same position? Then, again, is the resident population of Bombay and of Calcutta the same and of the same character? Have you in the island of Bombay the same residential population that you have got in the city of Calcutta? Are you ignoring that in Calcutta we have not got our great mills in the city, but that they lie outside the municipal area, though Calcutta is the centre of the jute industry; that we have not got in Calcutta the same system of chauls as they have got in Bombay? Do we not read in the newspapers of the collapse of houses, chauls and huts in Bombay, the like of which we have seldom or never seen in Calcutta? Is the condition of the overcrowding of the working classes in Bombay and Calcutta the same, for your mill-hands do not live in Calcutta? Plague has not dealt so severely with Calcutta as it has done with Bombay. Are the residential house-owners the same in Bombay as in Calcutta? My friend has said that he does not rely upon our death-rates. Here are 6,000 deaths in a year from preventible causes, e. g., cholera, small-pox, plague, etc., which his Improvement Scheme will charm away as with the wand of a magician. What are you doing with the millions of deaths that take place from malaria which is a preventible disease? Have you introduced into Bengal a sanitary measure of any great importance in which the Government has done anything in the interests of the poorer population or has laid out a single pice beyond distributing a few quinine packets? What have you done in the way of preventing the silting up of rivers?"

The Hon'ble Mr. FILGATE said:—

"Sir,—May I rise to a point of order? We are not dealing with the question of sanitation of Bengal, but clause 14(2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"I think that the Hon'ble Member is out of order."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"I say therefore that if the number of preventible deaths is the sole test for depriving any class of men of the right vested in them under the existing statute law, the case of Calcutta is much stronger than any other part of Bengal or India. Sir, my friend says that small-pox has disappeared from England. Is it only owing to sanitation or is the disappearance rather due to the universal or the general adoption of vaccination, and also to opening out of roads and to the growth and spread of education amongst the working classes? My friend says that there is no reason to believe that climatic conditions protect England from the ravages of cholera. My friend forgets or overlooks in the heat of the argument, I hope, and not deliberately, that cholera is not an epidemic disease in these northern latitudes, that instances of cholera imported into England and other northern countries can easily be traced to causes conveyed through ships and other channels, and as soon as the conditions which gave rise to these outbreaks disappear, the outbreaks disappear. In my country it is different, and, therefore, the cases upon which he relied do not furnish me with arguments that he seeks in support of this innovation in the law that he proposes.

"Then, again, Bombay is at least just in its injustice. My friend is not. He has not satisfied us, and I am quite sure that he has not satisfied himself, as to why the suburbs of Calcutta, the outlying parts, should be treated differently from Calcutta itself. My friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Filgate, has made to us a most moving appeal; but much of that appeal loses its value, when he admonishes his Bihar colleagues by saying, that they in Bihar need not fear the introduction of a change like this; they are quite safe in their holdings, for there the Improvement Act will not step in to deprive them of the 15 per cent. Well, I can understand my friend's making that appeal, taking his stand upon that safe pedestal If he were a resident of Calcutta, I believe he would have sung to a different tune, but I go on Much as I admire my friend's speech, I think it lacks in the knowledge of local circumstances. It is true, indeed, that some of my friends on our side are representatives of the great landed interests in Bengal. They have come here as such; they have been invited by Government to take their places in the Councils of their country, but I hardly think that, so far as we are concerned, we can be regarded in any sense as being the representatives of the landlords, either of Calcutta or of outside; but apart from that, my friend has said that in giving the history of this legislation in European countries, I have not gone far enough. I believe what my friend meant was that I have kept back what would have been against my case. My friend says that the law of Berlin is different. Is it the same law that he is seeking now to propound and is asking us to accept? Well, I was not speaking on my own authority. I do not pretend to have a knowledge of the German language; but I was speaking on the authority of Sir Henry Maine and Sir Fitzjames Stephen who said that the law on the continent of Europe was the same as in England in regard to acquisition of property. I did not say in my opening speech that the statute law of England provided for a 10 per cent. compensation. In England people know much better to manage their own affairs than by means of statutes of Parliament; they have a much better knowledge as to how to conduct their own matters themselves, and there the practice had grown up of allowing 10 per cent. on the value. But what I seek to impress upon my friends is this, that the value in England is not the market-value of the property; it is the value to the owner that makes a great deal of difference; and even under the latest Acts, the Town Planning Acts and the Housing of the Poorer Classes Acts (I am reading from Browne's Law of Compensation as to what is the basis of valuation). The market-value thus obtained, he says in his note on clause 21 of the Housing of the Working Classes Act, is the market-value to a person desiring to sell. That is what it is. If that principle were adopted in this Act, much of the hardship that we anticipate probably would be minimised. Here you are acquiring property from me who, at the present moment, may not be desiring to sell. In valuing you must take into consideration all the facts which would go to establish a satisfactory price for the property. You have hedged in your law with conditions which only serve to diminish the value, and therefore the safeguards that obtain in your country you have not provided here. Where are your arbitrators, where are your juries? For the arbitrators, for the juries, you have given us a Tirbunal. Then, Sir, one of my friends here said, why should any consideration be shown to the holders of house property in Calcutta and why should they benefit at the expense of the public? Much has been said of the ⅘ths contribution by Government and other sources. If the figures are at all scrutinised with fairness, even to the limited extent to which I was able to explain yesterday, Calcutta will contribute much more than ⅘ths of the cost. Did he ever consider as to how much of the rate of Calcutta is realised from the house-owners of Calcutta? I suppose it will be news to him when I tell him that out of 65 lakhs of rates in Calcutta—how much do you think they will contribute? Half you think: much more than half. They contribute 50 lakhs, while the occupiers contribute 15 lakhs only. Well, Sir, when the Improvement Scheme comes into force, there is no reason to anticipate that they will contribute in any other proportion. Then, whose money after all is it that you are using? It is the money of the very same people from whom you are seeking to withhold this privilege, if I may say so. But more than that. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas says, why should we make a gift of 75 lakhs to the landowners of Calcutta? Is it a gift? Are all the moneys that are being paid under the Land Clauses Act, or Acts similar to those throughout the world, merely in the nature of gifts? Is it nothing for me that you take away from me the house, which may not be my ancestral house in the sense that my friend the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas understands it in England, but quite an ancestral house in our sense, where my father and grandfather were born and where I and my children have been brought up? Is that nothing in my country? When distress comes, what is it that a man here does? He disposes of the moveables, and then what does he do? As you all know, the only insurance that my people possess for their womenfolk, when they themselves are dead and gone, against times of adversity, against neglect of children, are the ornaments with which they endow their wives from time to time. They would sooner part with the bone of their body than with these ornaments which are given by their husbands in moments of affection and for considerations which are peculiarly traditional. But they part first with their moveables, then with their immoveables, then the ornaments of their wives and daughters-in-law, and last, when all these have gone, when nothing remains but walking out on the streets, they sell their paternal dwelling houses. Is that nothing to us? Are traditions, sentiments, customs and associations to be absolutely ignored, and is the East to be put on the same level with the West when you come to consider these questions of Government and the administration? Are you quite sure that in all your processes of administration you put the east on the same level with the west? Do you not always say, and sometimes with reason, that conditions so differ that different systems must be adopted, and are the conditions so alike in the west and the east, in London and in Calcutta, in Birmingham and in Bara Bazar, that you will apply not the system, which England has adopted and but one which is much more drastic, for I come at once to what my friend has said—I hope he did not say it for the purpose of throwing dust into our eyes—that the only land that would be taken up would be for the purpose of improvement schemes? Did he mean to say that he would exclude all lands not situated in insanitary areas?"

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"We have got a definition of improvement schemes in the Bill.

"I was just going to say what an improvement scheme is. It includes everything that you are going to do in connection with insanitary areas, etc., whereas in England the things are expressly stated where compensation is to be allowed.

"My non-official friends are going to vote against us. They have expressed their intention so to do, but will they try to understand if what is proposed to be taken in Calcutta is similar to what prevails in London and in Birmingham, and will they see if the safeguards are the same, though the conditions are not similar. I am not quite sure but I believe those who are associated with me in my opposition to this provision of the Bill will accept and admit in their entirety every provision that the London County Council has thought fit to incorporate in its working under Parliamentary Statutes for the carrying out of the different improvements. We are quite willing to admit and accept the principles that have been introduced into Birmingham, provided you give us the safeguards, provided you give us the same machinery; we have nothing more to say."

514. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that for clause, 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill the following be substituted, namely:—

(2a) To sub-section (2) of section 23 the following shall be deemed to be added namely:—

"except where the land acquired is actually required for carrying out an improvement scheme under the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911, in which case a sum equivalent to ten per cent. on such market value shall be awarded."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I oppose this amendment, Sir. It is such a small variation from the original motion that I cannot distinguish between them. Further more it will not be always possible to distinguish whether lands will be actually required or will be only affected by the operation of the Improvement Scheme." Land is taken up along a new road with the double object of providing convenient building sites and also of recoupment."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"This motion of mine is this, as I was explaining to the Hon'ble Members in connection with my preceding motion that the 15 per cent. should be retained. This is the second stage at which I say that let 15 per cent. be retained except for lands actually required for Improvement schemes, in which case allow us 10 per cent. and all our arguments have already been advanced, and it is no use repeating things that have already been said. I put it to the vote."

The motion was then put and lost.

515. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that for clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill the following be substituted, namely:—

(2a) for the word "fifteen," in section 23, sub-section (2), the word "ten" shall be deemed to be substituted.

He said:—

"In this amendment there is no question of any uncertainty, for I simply desire to substitute "10" for "15", following the precedent of the English Acts."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I resist this amendment also because 10 per cent. compensation is not the universal practice. The English practice varies from the 10 and 40 per cent. in different parts of the country. I see no justification in English practice for the alteration of the percentage and the sense of the Council is that we should follow the precedent of Bombay."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"What I say is that I have erred on the side of moderation. It is quite true that the English practice is from 10 to 15. However, I took the minimum limit."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

517. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that the words "in the Calcutta Municipality and", in clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

516. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that for clause 14 (2a) [now 9 (1)] of the Schedule to the Bill the following be substituted, namely:—

(2a) To sub-section (2) of section 23 the following shall be deemed to be added namely:—

"Provided that compensation at such rate less than fifteen per centum as the Tribunal may determine may be allowed with respect to any area which is stated in a certificate granted by a salaried Presidency Magistrate or a Magistrate of the first class to be unhealthy."

He said:—

"Sir, much has already been said that could be said in support of this amendment. I realize that the time at our disposal is very short. We see from the papers that Your Honour is to leave town to-night, and therefore it is our anxious desire to do nothing that will take the discussion over the day and stand in the way of the Council passing the Bill. In that view of things I do not make any observations in support of the amendment, but simply move it."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I oppose this amendment on the ground that I opposed the principle amendment. There are some amendments which propose to distinguish between sanitary and insanitary areas. My answer to all those is that the problem in Calcutta is a single problem. The original proposal was to deal with insanitary areas by constructing 15 miles of roads. That scheme has been enlarged; but the problem is still a single problem and the works to be undertaken will all form part of one scheme.

The motion was then put and lost.

518. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha moved that the words "and is required for the execution of such scheme" be inserted after the figures "1911" at the end of clause 14 (2a, in the Schedule to the Bill.

He said:—

"I beg to move that the words 'and required for the execution of the scheme' be added to the clause after the figures '1911' (clause (2a) [now (1)] of clause 14 (now 9 of the Schedule).

"What I mean by this amendment is that when land is acquired for any improvement scheme, solatium need not be given for that quantity of land, as has just been determined by the Council, but if excess land is taken under clause 41 (now 42) of the Bill for the purposes of recoupment only, not affecting the main object of the scheme, I do not see any reason why statutory allowance of 15 per cent should not be paid for such excess land. It is but just and fair that additional compensation should be given for the compulsory acquisition of that excess land, when the Board will derive considerable profit from it."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, it does not seem to me that it will be equitable to accept the principle contained in this motion. Land taken for the execution of a scheme is all required for the scheme, in the practical sense of the word. Suppose a road is to be constructed and we acquire land on both sides of the line. Some portion of the land is acquired for the purpose of recoupment and some for the purpose of laying out the road. I do not see any reason why the owner in one case should receive move favourable terms than in the other; or rather I see no reason why in one case he should receive less favourable terms that he does in the other. It is purely a private concern of the Trust with which he has no concern. His rights are precisely the same in each case. As I said before, in the majority of cases it would be very difficult to say whether roadside land is taken primarily with the object of laying out building sites, or with the object of recoupment. In most cases these two objects will come into play, and for this reason this amendment is objectionable."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

The Schedule.

Clause 10 B (now 2).

518A. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Sankar Sahay Bahadur to move that the words "who is found to be entitled to compensation, and who is not entitled to receive the additional sum of fifteen per centum mentioned in section 23, sub-section (2)", in lines 6 to 10, clause 10 B (now 2) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

518B. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur to move that the words "and who is not entitled to receive the additional sum of fifteen per centum mentioned in section 23, sub-section (2)" in lines 7 to 10 of clause 10 B (now 2) in the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

518C. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that at the end of the proposed sub-clause (iv) for section 11 of the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 10 B (now 2) of the Schedule to the Bill, the following be added, namely :—

and also all costs and charges such person may be put to in acquiring his future habitation and in removing thereto.

He said:—

"The clause as it stands provides for a very infinitesimal portion of the cost. In doing so it concedes the principle that something more than the actual value should under the circumstances of the case be paid. The amendment seeks to carry the principle a little further, and in order to alleviate admitted suffering, the extra charges that a person may be put to in acquiring and removing to his future habitation ought to be paid to him." The framers of the Land Acquisition Act of 1870 in spite of marked division of official opinion on the subject made larger concessions in the matter of stamp duties on the instruments under which compensation was payable and this was done in spite of influential opposition like that of the then Commander-in-Chief and another high official who went the length of voting against the Government on the question.

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I resist this amendment because the object sought to be attained is already covered by the existing law. Section 23 (1) fifthly) of the Land Acquisition Act runs as follows :—'If in consequence of the acquisition of the land by the Collector the person interested is compelled to change his residence or place of business, the reasonable expenses (if any, incidental to such change' shall be taken into consideration in determining the amount of compensation. That seems to me to meet the case that this present amendment covers. But this present amendment is too widely worded to be safely admitted into the law. All costs and charges are too vague terms. The Hon'ble Member does not say how his charges, etc., for removing will be determined. What is already provided in the law can only be safely allowed."

The motion was then put and lost.

The Schedule.

Clause 12 (now 4).

518D. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that clause 12 (now 4) (2) of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

He said:—

"I simply move my amendment, Sir. I do not like to adduce any argument in support of my motion."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, this provision of the Bill is taken direct from the Calcutta Municipal Act, and provides that where land is to be acquired on the ground of unhealthiness that we may proceed with it in the same way as we would proceed in the case of an arable land, i.e., take possession of it straight away. If it is once found that the property is unhealthy, and it is being acquired in order to put an end to the unhealthy conditions, surely it is sufficient reason for expediting matters and letting the acquisition take effect at once; otherwise there will be some months' delay in obtaining the orders of the Collector."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

518E. If Motion No. 518D be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that the words "so unhealthy as to be dangerous to human life" be substituted for the word "unhealthy" in the last line of the proposed sub-section (4) for section 17 of the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 12 (2) (now 4) of the Schedule to the Bill.

The Schedule.

Clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)].

519. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)] of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

He said:—

"Sir, all that I can say is this, that the modifications made here are intended to reduce the market value of the property. They do not find any place in the Land Acquisition Act, and they have been introduced in order to reduce the amount of compensation to be paid."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I cannot possibly accept this amendment for moving that the whole of the clause be omitted because there are provisions in the clause to which nobody has made any objection. No one has objected to sub-clause c. Therefore I resist the amendment which seeks to omit the clause en bloc.

The motion was then put and lost.

The Schedule.

Clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)] (a).

520. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Roy Bahadur moved that clause (a) of the proposed section 23 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 14 [now 9 (2)] (3) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

He said:—

"It would be most unfair to property owners, prejudicial to their interests to provide that the market value of the land to be acquired should depend on and be judged by the disposition, that is, the then condition and disposition of the land at the date of the publication of the declaration. The fallacy of this argument will be apparent from the following illustration. Suppose there is a piece of garden land in Cossipore comprising an area, say, of 10 bighas, a small portion of which has been let to different tenants at the rate of annas 6 to 8 a cottah per mensem, and the average aggregate rental of the garden in question is, say five hundred rupees a year. Now, as the major portion of a garden house always remains unoccupied and unutilised, it would be quite reasonable if this piece of land were acquired [to award according to the principle of law laid down here Rs. 12,500 for compensation calculating it at the rate of 25 times the gross rental, which is about Rs. 500 (five hundred rupees a year)], this is the value which the owner would get according to the present disposition of the property; but from the several recent deeds of sale it can be proved that no land can be had thereunder on an average, say, 400 to 500 rupees a cottah.

"A garden house at Cossipore on the banks of the Hooghly with no fixed income, but which is occasionally let for Rs. 200 or Rs. 300 a month, but which almost all the year round remains vacant and unutilized, was sold the other day for more than two lakhs of rupees. It was the other day that a piece of land measuring about 50 bighas situated in a suburban municipality admirably suited for a mill, but which was at present utilised for growing paddy only, having been acquired was awarded about Rs. 50,000 for compensation; but if the property in (fifty thousand) question came to be acquired by the Calcutta Improvement Trust then the august special Tribunal would have been quite justified in awarding a lump sum of, say, Rs. 1,000 in the highest instead of Rs. 50,000; for, according to the present disposition of the property, as its income was little or nothing, the sum of one thousand rupees would be enough for the property. Now, from the several illustrations I have cited in which nothing has been exaggerated or extenuated, it would be clear that if the land acquisition clauses are altered and modified in the way suggested here, it will have the effect of compelling property owners virtually to make gifts of their valuable properties, which are every year increasing in value, for the benefit of the Improvement Trust. In the name of equity and justice I ask the Hon'ble Members of the Council who are all men of business and own properties, some here and others in the mafassal or in England, whether you can conscientiously acquiesce in a proposition of law which will go to sacrifice the unfortunate owners of property in Calcutta and the suburbs at the altar of the Improvement Trust. In the words of Sir Bamfylde Fuller the Improvement Trust is a great measure—it requires a sacrifice and the landords are the sacrifice."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, this sub-clause deals with the difficult question of valuation of land, and I hope that we shall not be called upon to debate this question in all its length. I would justify the clause primarily on the ground that it stands in the Calcutta Municipal Act and has been found serviceable in the acquisition of land in the Calcutta Corporation for the last 12 years. It is necessary to meet certain cases where the valuation claimed is extremely exorbitant. A case was mentioned when the discussion took place on the Municipal Bill. A piece of land covered with tumble-down cowsheds was acquired for the Medical College Hospital and the owner appeared in Court with a plan showing it as covered with fine houses suited for the residence of Europeans and asked to be compensated on the basis of the profits which he would derive from such houses. It is intended to defeat the device of purely hypothetical development of the land. That is to say, valuation will not be made on what the owner might have got if he had built a shop or a house on the land, but on the normal value of the land. There is considerable safeguard in the sub-clause (a1) (now b). In connection with the land acquisition in Calcutta there will be a great number of men who will be using all their wits to secure money—there is a whole class of speculators, particularly in land acquisition cases, who will do all they can to defeat the operation of the law, and in the interest of the public we want this sub-clause as a protection against excessive claims."

The Hon'ble MR. PAYNE said:—

"SIR, the Hon'ble. Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu has referred to the bustees in Calcutta in which the rent assigned is small, but the land can be sold for building purposes at higher rate. I think in such cases undoubtedly, if the land can be sold as it stands for a higher rate than that, it would be the market value of the land, and that the compensation will be granted on that rate and not merely on the bustee rate."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"I am afraid it is no use advancing any arguments, but at the same time I do think it desirable that we should place before the Council what we think about this matter. This clause does not occur in the Land Acquisition Act. It does not occur in the Bombay Act upon whose model we are proceeding. It does not occur in any of the English Acts. It does occur, as my friend says, in the Municipal Act, which is an Act of limited operations for the purpose of land acquisition. This is an Act of a very different nature so that the analogy of the Municipal Act wholly fails, because land acquisition itself independently is not an operation of such an extensive nature, an . then I quite agree with my friend that it is desirable to stop fictitious cases; but there is another class of cases which I believe he has overlooked, or of which perhaps he is not aware. In our part of the town there are large bustee lands from which we derive, say, a rent of Rs. 2 or Rs. 3 per cottah; but if this bustee land, as it is, was sold immediately for the purposes of a building, it will sell at Rs. 1,000 a cottah. It may be argued that this land from which you are receiving Rs. 2 or Rs. 3 a cottah may be valued upon the return you are getting from the hut, and not for the value of the property which you may get in the open market. What I feel, and my hon'ble friend will agree with me, is that this result will take place. We have the authority of the Bombay Act, and why should we not follow it with reference to its essential features? The market value, to which my friend, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur, referred, I have not the means to do anything with. There are bustees the owners of which are too poor to put up houses, but these lands would be readily saleable as dwelling sites. Belgatchia would be easily available for mills, but the owner has not the means to do this, and is letting it out for purposes of growing paddy. But why should we deprive him of the marketable value? The difficulty arises according to the disposition at the time of the acquisition. I quite agree and I am prepared to concede that fictitious claims may be bolstered up for hypothetical price which should not be entertained."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said :—

Sir, I cannot resist the temptation of citing one or two concrete cases. There is a bustee in Shambazar which belongs to a member of my family and which is generally let out at Rs. 2-8 per cottah. Calculating it on that sum, the Trust will fix the price at Rs. 750, but it was only the other day that the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu offered Rs. 2,000 for each cottah of land in that bustee. I also beg to refer to the personal experience of the Hon'ble Member of the Executive Council; he owns considerable land in Halisahar, which was formerly let out for a small sum, but now he has let it out to the jute mills, it being very convenient for them—he is getting several lakhs of rupees. If it had been acquired under the Trust formerly he could not have expected to get more than Rs. 100 for 100 bighas. I will give another concrete case. I own a bustee at Bhowanipur where the land is let out at Rs. 2 or Rs. 3, and according to the Tribunal I will not get more than Rs. 700 or Rs. 800 for that land, but I have been offered Rs. 2,000 for each cottah of the land and I have refused to sell it. Can we, after these facts, acquiesce in the provision of the law which would go to deprive us of our property by one fourth of the real value"

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

521. The Hon'ble Rai Shib Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that clause (a) of the proposed section 23 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)] of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

The Schedule.

Clause 14 (3) (b) [now 9 (2) (c)].

522. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha moved that clause (b) of the proposed section 23 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in sub-clause (3) [now (2)] of clause 14 (now 9) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted

He said :—

"I beg to move that clause (b) [now (c)] of the proposed section 23 (3) of the Land Acquisition Act in sub-clause (3) [now (2)] of clause 14 (now 9) of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

"The owners of properties will consider the operation of this clause as of considerable hardship. It assumes that property holders knew two years before the declaration was published that their property would be required for the purposes of the Improvement Scheme, and it therefore lays down that any improvement made during that period should not be taken into account for the purpose of assessing the fair market value. The onus will be thrown upon the property holders to prove their boná fides that such improvement was not made with a view to get a higher price when the land would be acquired by the Board. Improvement is looked upon by this clause with suspicion; and any improvement, however necessary it may be, would be construed as made with a view to extract money by raising the price of the property. It is impossible for any owner to know two years before the declaration that his land would be taken for the purposes of the Trust, and the clause, as it now stands, throws upon him the most difficult task of proving a negative. Malâ fides should not be presumed, but the person who alleges malâ fides must prove them. To endeavour to reduce the fair market value of any property by an enactment would be putting the Board to an advantageous position at the cost of the property holder. The clause, if adopted, will be unjust, unfair and injurious to the interests of a large section of the community and will be a fruitful source of litigation and waste. On these grounds I move for its omission."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"I oppose this amendment. This sub-clause also comes from the Calcutta Act, and it is a question relating to what the acquiring authority should have to prove in any case of suspicious nature. Of course the burden of proving boná fides is to be upon the owner of the property. The ordinary respectable owner of property, if he has carried out any improvements of ordinary nature will, I apprehend, have not the slightest difficulty whatever in proving to the Collector of the Tribunal that his act was done in good faith. If it is of an ordinary every-day nature, there is nothing suspicious about his conduct. He might say to the Collector, 'I have added this story to this house, because I have grown rich or because my family has increased.' And any reasonable man in the Tribunal will accept his explanatoin. But if you put the burden of proof so as to show bad faith on the Trust, it would be almost impossible. Mr. Surendra Nath Banerjee said during the debates on the Calcutta Municipal Act that he felt very strongly that to lay the burden of proof on the Corporation to show bad faith was to impose upon it an impossible task. Anything of that kind would be impossible. Nobody is in a better position to prove good faith than the party concerned. If the improvements made by the house owner are capable of bearing the light of day, he has only got to make the reasonable explanation and any member of the Tribunal will accept it. But there are cases in which suspicions may arise. There may arise cases of suspicious improvements made to extract compensation : this clause will protect the Trust from paying compensation in such cases. We have not been told that this clause, which has been in force in Calcutta now for 12 years, inflicts any hardship. Therefore I resist this amendment."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"Sir, I desire to associate myself with the arguments that have been adduced by the Hon'ble Maharaj-Kumar Hrishikesh Laha, though for reasons I have already stated I do not wish to take up the time of the Council by making lengthy observations."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

523. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause (b) [now (c)] of the proposed section 23 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 14 (3) [now 14 (2)] of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

524. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the words "six months" be substituted for the words "two years", in line 1 of clause (b) [now (c)] of the proposed section 23 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 14 (3) [now 14 (2)] of the Schedule to the Bill.

He said:—

"I desire to reduce the limit of time from two years to six months. We have often been told that the proceedings of the Trust will be conducted with secrecy, and there is no likelihood of any one knowing as to what improvements the Trust are going to undertake. Two years is, therefore, far too long a time, for which we have no warrant in the Land Acquisition Act nor in the Bombay Act. I think six months ought to be quite enough a time to meet all the apprehensions of the kind that have been referred to by the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, in the original Bill the time fixed was three years, and in the Select Committee it was reduced to two on the basis of the Calcutta precedent. Six months seems to be too short a period to be of any practical effect. There is no magic in two years but it is the period that stands in the Calcutta Act. Therefore I would not wish for a change."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

525. If Motion No. 519 be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that for the words "unless it be proved that the improvement was made bonâ fide and not in contemplation of proceedings for the acquisition of the land being taken under this Act," at the end of clause (b) [now (c)] in clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)] of the Schedule to the Bill, the following be substituted, namely:—

> if it be proved that the improvement was made not bonâ fide but in contemplation of proceedings for the acquisition of the land being taken under this Act.

526. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that for the words "unless it be proved that the improvement was made bonâ fide and not in contemplation of proceedings for the acquisition of the land being taken under this Act," at the end of clause (b) [now (c)] of the proposed section 23 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)] of the Schedule to the Bill, the following be substituted, namely:—

> if, in the opinion of the Tribunal, such improvement was made with a view to obtaining or increasing compensation under this Act.

He said:—

"Your Honour, I have no objection to the principle of this sub-clause, nor do I take exception to the period of two years reserved within which the owner should account for any improvement, but when it is two years I object to a man being considered dishonest and for him to prove that he is honest. On these grounds I move my amendment. The Hon'ble Member in charge says that any ordinary respectable owner of property would be in a position to prove that he is acting bonâ fide. The proceedings should be conducted in the ordinary way, and the onus of proving that he is not fraudulent should not be placed on an owner. I of course know, Sir, that this clause is included in the Municipal Act, but I do not take the Municipal Act to be the last word on the subject, and I hope that as years go by greater fairness of dealing will be accorded in the law to those who will be affected under this Bill."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I oppose this amendment because it only covers up difficulties. It says if in the opinion of the Tribunal, such improvement was made with a view to obtaining or increasing compensations' but says nothing about the burden of proof. It cannot be that the burden of proof should lie on the Trust; if there is any ground for doubt then the man would be called upon to say why he made particular improvements. He is the only person who can give that information, and if his explanation is satisfactory, it will be accepted by the Tribunal. I submit that no reasonable property owner who has in the ordinary course of affairs made some improvements in his house, will have the slightest difficulty in proving that he has done it in the ordinary course of business."

The motion was then put and lost.

The Schedule.

Clause 14 (3) (d) [now 9 (2) (e)].

527. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that clause (d) [now e], of the proposed section 23 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)] of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

The Hon'ble BABU HRISHIKESH LAHA said:—

"I rise in support of the amendment which has been moved by my hon'ble friend, Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu. This amendment also stands in my name.

"Overcrowding no doubt has some prejudicial effect upon health, but there was no official standard, as was adopted in England, as regards allowing a certain number of persons to live in a room in each dwelling. The number composing the family affects the question of overcrowding in a very marked degree, and it would not have been possible to enforce this or any other standard in this country where the zenana system prevails. Frequent visits of inspection would have been considered intolerable, and a poor parent with a large family who live in cheap and small dwellings would have been the greatest sufferers. Considering the peculiar circumstances of the people, it was very probably considered not at all desirable to lay down any such standard, and now to make overcrowding the ground for reducing the market value of a building is to say the least not consonant with the principles of justice and commonsense. By what standard is overcrowding to be measured? I find in the Encyclopædia Brittanica (Cambridge edition) 'a standard has been officially adopted in England based on the number of persons to a room in each dwelling, and the facts in relation to this standard are embodied in the census return.' It is a much better criterion than the state of 'density' or number of persons per acre which is very deceptive, for an apparently low density may conceal much overcrowding within walls and an apparently high one may be comparatively guiltless. The room density is the important thing in actual life.

"Let us see what they do in Germany, which is considered the great exemplar and the great stronghold of municipal socialism. We are struck by the remarks made by Mr. T. C. Horsfall in his work entitled, 'The Improvement of the dwellings and Surroundings of the People—the example of Germany'. He says, 'if it be assumed that a dwelling is crowded when for every room which has a fire-place there are more than six persons in the dwelling and for every two rooms with fire places there are more than ten persons, then, in the year 1880, of 198, 640 dwellings in Berlin, 22,890 were crowded. And if we assume that a dwelling is crowded, if there are more than two persons for every room with a fire-place, then more than a third of the population of Berlin lives in crowded dwellings'. The only remedy for such overcrowding is to remove the inhabitants remorselessly from their houses, and this condition is incapable of fulfilment by persons who have any sympathy at all for their fellow creatures The first preliminary to such removal is an ample supply of new houses at rents within the paying power of the displaced persons; and unless this is done, the Municipality has no right to remove persons from their houses. Mr. Horsfall further says, 'The fulfilment of the conditions needed to ensure that there shall be an adequate supply of new wholesome houses is the most important of all the subjects which have to be attended to; either in a town which has an increasing population; or in a town which, though its population is not increasing, has congested areas which need to be wholly or partially cleared; or which has a large number of houses which for any cause need to be destroyed'. The pivot on which the entire question hangs is therefore the supply of new wholesome houses, before the provision for overcrowding could be enforced; and as the Municipality failed or even did not contemplate to provide house accommodation, no advantage should be given by this Bill to reduce the value of property on this ground. Neither the standard of 'room density' nor that of the number of persons per acre was ever introduced here, and I am not aware that overcrowding is the only reason for a higher death-rate, and so long as it is not proved it would be a grave injustice to penalize the property owners In this I am confirmed by the remarks made by Mr. Horsfall that the causes of the high death-rate are 'not the overcrowding of dwellings, though that is a very marked and serious evil, nor excessive drinking, nor licentiousness, nor betting and other forms of gambling', but 'the chief cause is that while all these evils exist, there is nothing to counteract the effect of them' and 'that the towns lack the pleasantness, which is the most important condition of cheerfulness, hopefulness, physical and mental health and strength for all classes—for the poorest as well as for the richest.' We have therefore yet to know whether heavy mortality is connected only with overcrowding and not with the food, clothing and general condition of the people. Unless that is proved to demonstration no reduction should be made in the value of the property; and as the Calcutta Municipality has made overcrowding a ground for raising the tax, it will be not at all fair to leave this question to the decision of the Board who are interested in getting the price of the building reduced. It would not, I think, be out of place to mention that in this country overcrowding is not so great an evil as it is in England and does not call for such stringent measures as are adopted in English Statutes. The reason is not far to seek. In my opinion the marked difference in the climatic conditions and the modes and habits of living of the people of the two countries should be taken into account. Here poor and middle-class people during the greater part of the year live and sleep in the open air and are used to it, whereas in England such a mode of living is fraught with danger to life and is not probable owing to the rigour of the climate. This clause should therefore be expunged."

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said :—

"With reference to innovations proposed in sub-clause (d) [now (e)], I beg to observe that under section 435 of the Calcutta Municipal Act the Chairman of the Corporation has full powers to abate overcrowding in dwelling houses and other buildings and huts, but not having exercised the power vested in him by law, but on the contrary having allowed the Assessor of the Coporation to assess all overcrowded buildings and huts at their full valuation due to such overcrowding and having reaped the benefit of such overcrowding by realising much larger amounts in the shape of rates than what would have been ordinarily payable if there was no overcrowding, it would be unfair to the owners of such buildings and huts to turn round and say that the market value of such buildings should be determined by the rents which would be derivable from such buildings if they were occupied by only such number of persons as would be accommodated in them without risk of danger from overcrowding.

"It is well known that buildings in Burra Bazar are to some extent overcrowded, and some of them fetch very high rents amounting to sum varying from Rs. 300 to Rs. 8,000 a month. Suppose it becomes necessary to acquire a building in Burra Bazar, the annual rent of which is Rs. 12,000, under the Land Acquisition Act the amount of compensation payable would be about three lakhs of rupees plus the statutory allowance of 15 per cent.; but under sub-clause (d) [now (e)] of this Bill it might be said that if the house had not been overcrowded the average yearly rental would have been about Rs. 5,000 or Rs. 6,000 a year, and as such the amount of compensation should be considerably less.

"I beg to submit that the additions proposed to be made to section 23 would have the effect of enormously reducing the compensation which would otherwise be payable under the Land Acquisition Act. It would be expedient to deal with Calcutta people differently from other people in other parts of India."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I am surprised that five members should have supported the abolition of this sub-clause (d). We have accepted sub-clause (c) [now (d)], which says that 'if the market-value is specially high in consequence of the land being put to a use which is unlawful or contrary to public policy,' then that excess market-value shall not be taken into consideration. This sub-clause makes a similar provision that, if the market-value of the land has been enhanced owing to rents being taken from an excessive number of occupants, then that enhanced value shall not be considered and in the English law and in the Bombay Act which is copied from the English law, these two clauses form only one clause, it is merely a matter of draftsmanship that here it is two. The position of the two cases seems to me to be exactly the same.

"This sub-clause has been copied from section 19 (5) of the Bombay Act. Overcrowding is one of the most terrible evils. I am not questioning what particular amount of overcrowding is unwholesome, but every one admits that it is a fruitful source of every kind of moral and physical evil. The Chancellor of the Exchequer said the other day to a crowded audience that he would like to see the land-owners and house-owners who draw profit from overcrowding treated in the same way as receivers of stolen goods, because he saw no moral difference between them. It is true, as the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur has said, that the Corporation has power to reduce overcrowding. That seems to me to strengthen my argument. If a building is very much overcrowded, the Corporation has power to apply to a Magistrate and the Magistrate has power to interfere. In that case it seems to me clear that if any profit is made from that building, the owner, however, has no right to ask for excess compensation on the ground that he has been guilty of deriving this illegal profit. The clause requires that the overcrowding shall be such as to be dangerous to health. This is a fact which is to be proved by the acquiring authority. What is more, the General Committee of the Corporation have power to lay down general rules in pursuance of their local knowledge as to what shall be regarded as overcrowding in Calcutta. It has never been held impossible to determine what unwholesome overcrowding is. I see therefore no justification for making any difference between sub-clause (b) [now (c)] and sub-clause (c) [now (d)]."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"I am sorry, Sir, that I have to add to my friend's surprise by making myself the sixth member objecting to this clause, and I regret that my friend should have been calling the representatives of the Corporation names and some very strong names specially while the Hon'ble Mr. Maddox is here. That the Corporation is a receiver of stolen property is, I say, a very strong expression, although an extra vigorous and ultra-socialistic Chancellor of the Exchequer has been using that and other opprobrious terms with regard to property and property owners in general in convenient forgetfulness of the past. I do hope that it will be long before we follow the vigorous parlance and emphatic action such as St. Stephen's has been familiarised of late and such as anti-property platforms have long been accustomed to. Otherwise the results predicted by the Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraj of Burdwan, not with regard to his own class, but with regard to the Frankenstein that all super-socialistic legislation is bound to raise, which have been so much resented would not be far in coming. I am sorrythat official members are not following us with regard to the embargo upon length and are making us break the canon I have laid down for myself, considering the late hour of the day. If the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas's quotation of the Right Hon'ble Mr. Lloyd George has any application to the case, it can have application not only to the landlord but to the Corporation also—and to the latter with double force, because of causes that I must detail to the Council in spite of the lateness of the hour, for it is a matter of history and not a matter of fiction at all. Not very many weeks ago and after this Bill was introduced in Council I had occasion to appear professionally before the Municipal authorities with regard to a new building erected on Harrison Road. The assessment was on the basis of assumed overcrowding, such as the Corporation in spite of its powers condones and connives at. I objected to it and pointed out to this clause and said that, 'you must not assess the house like this and put a premium upon overcrowding by making your assessment so high as to compel the man to recoup himself by overcrowding.' The Municipal authorities would not, however, listen, for they have always insisted that the assessment shall be on that basis, because it has been the accepted basis. I was plainly told that they knew nothing as to whether a clause like this was going to be passed, though already it is in the Municipal Act. As the Municipality has not refrained from receiving what has been called stolen property by participating in and insisting on assessment on the basis of overcrowding, which they are still insisting on as the basis of assessment with regard to new houses that are being built along Harrison Road and other parts of Burra Bazar, it seems to us that the provision being already in the Municipal Act has not very much charm in itself and ought not to be re-enacted in spite of the strength of language and the supreme surprise of the Hon'ble Member in charge."

"Sir, I shall say a few words as I was responsible for moving this amendment, and the language that my friend has used makes it incumbent upon me to justify my position. I am not one of those who would advocate overcrowding in any sense, but, as my friend, the Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha, pointed out, overcrowding might have a quite different meaning from what it has got in England; and when my friend imports the language of the Chancellor of the Exchequer he applies the doctrine of the fur-coat to India, because we do not live in closed rooms as English people do. The question of overcrowding is entirely different—even as it is I do not justify it. Then what happens? I think my hon'ble friend, Mr. Payne, will enlighten my friend on this subject. In a bustee the tenants take the land from the owner at a certain rate and then they build huts and sub-let them. When the assessing officer comes round, he does not value upon the rate at which the owner has let it out, but finds out how much the tenants make out of the bustee, and that is the basis upon which he proceeds. He not only legalises it, but puts a premium upon it, because he wants his rates enhanced. I remember a case in Amratolla Street in Burra Bazar where a gentleman let his houses for a certain rent for a certain period, and he did not wish that his house should be overcrowded, because he was a man of artistic tastes and wealthy. The Municipal Assessor came and assessed the house at a rate it would fetch if it was overcrowded. The owner said that he did not wish it to fetch so much rent. The Assessor said, 'You may not wish it, but the rent of the next house is so much and we shall assess upon that basis.' If I am assessed and if I am paying upon it, not only with your connivance, but I am assessed upon compulsory overcrowding, why is it that you should penalise me for this purpose—and then there is another consideration, a consideration which does not apply, but which would strike a student of political economy. I have got a plot of land which I let to you for Rs. 20 on a condition that it is overcrowded now—more people being there than would be proper. Where are these other people to go? If you would not allow overcrowding, accommodation for these people must be found somewhere else. Apart from other questions, the question of political science is a question which does not arise and which cannot affect the question of value; because if the Corporation did not only encourage overcrowding but made profits from it for these very many years, my rent would not have gone down. It would have remained where it is, because the men excluded would have accommodation—they would pay me higher than I receive, so that I think my friend was not right in expressing the surprise that he did. That surprise was only due to his ignorance of the state of things in Calcutta."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

528. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that clause (d) [now (e)] of the proposed section 23 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)] of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

529. If Motion No. 519 be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause (d) [now (e)] of the proposed section 23 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 14 (3) [now (9 2)] of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

530. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause (d) [now (e)] of the proposed section 28 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)] of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

531. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that clause (d) [now (e)] of the proposed section 28 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)] of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

Clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)], new sub-clause (f).

532. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur moved that at the end of the proposed section 23 (3) for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 14 (3) [now 9 (2)] of the Schedule to the Bill, the following be added, namely:—

(f) The market-value of the land, if situated in the Calcutta Municipality, shall, until the contrary is shown, be presumed to be twenty-five times the annual value of the property, as entered in the Municipal assessment-book.

He said:—

"Sir, this new provision which I wish to add is taken word for word from the Calcutta Municipal Act, section 557, proviso (d). It appears that all the provisions of the Calcutta Municipal Act with reference to acquisition and disposal of land and buildings have been embodied in this Bill, but this provision which furnished a rough-and-ready presumption (of course a rebuttable presumption) of 25 years' purchase has been omitted from our Bill. The Council may be aware that this provision which has been omitted and which I recommend for insertion was introduced into the Calcutta Municipal Act after a good deal of consideration and after a good deal of discussion. The debates in the Council show that, although the feeling of the official members was that 25 years' purchase was more than the owner was entitled to, it was accepted to prevent hardship. I am tempted to quote a small extract from the speech of the Hon'ble Sir Edward Baker in the Council in this connection.

"His Honour says, 'Babu Kallynath Mitter said before the Building Commission that 30 years should be given. Why? He has given no reasons. The only reason why we should be justified in giving 25 years' purchase or taking that as the presumption is in order to soften the severity of the law of land acquisition. We know that in Calcutta there is a strong prejudice against giving up and being deprived of one's ancestral house, and it is a feeling which the Legislature will do well to take into consideration. I think that we ought not to reduce the number of years' purchase below 25, not because it would not be absolutely just, but because it would be felt as a hardship; but to give anything more than 25 years would be, I think, unfair to the rate-payers and unfair to the Corporation.'

"These are weighty words, and in the language of Sir Edward Baker I appeal to this Council to take into consideration the feeling, the prejudice, the sentiment, or whatever you may call it, of the people of Calcutta with respect to their unwillingness to give up their ancestral houses. Treat them with respect and not disregard them as the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas has asked you to do. I also ask the Council in the words of Sir Edward Baker not to reduce the number of years' purchase below 25, as it would cause hardship.

"Sir, the Calcutta Municipal Act has been in force for 12 years, and the people have come to understand this rough-and ready rebuttable presumption of 25 years' purchase as a fair and just method. It will be therefore a hardship—a great hardship—if a different mode of calculation is adopted by the Board or by the Tribunal."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I am not sure whether any other members will support the motion. If they do not I need only deal with it briefly. The Hon'ble Member has moved it on the principle that this clause finds place in the Calcutta Municipal Act. But I must say that, having read the debate on this clause when the Calcutta Municipal Act was under discussion, it seems to me that Dr. Ashutosh Mukhopadhyay made out an overwhelming case against it. It is primâ facie unfair and I find on inquiry that it has worked unfairly. Take a common case: two buildings may each rent at Rs. 100 a month, there being demand for the accommodation which they supply: their municipal valuation will be the same: but one may be an old building on the verge of falling down and the other may be newly built of the best material; by this rule of thumb the market value of both is taken to be the same. Unoccupied lands are very lightly assessed by the Corporation, and therefore under this rule will not be paid for at their real value. Moreover, whatever may be said for holding the Corporation bound by its own valuation, there is no conceivable reason for holding a third body like the Trust bound by it.

The motion was then put and lost.

The Schedule, Clause 16 (now 11).

533. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur moved that clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

He said:—

"I simply beg to move my amendment, Sir."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir I will resist this amendment, and I have no doubt that the Hon'ble Member will have no objection to withdraw it when he learns that I am going to accept amendment 535. I am sure that will please him immensely."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS also said:—

"Sir, there are some amendments which seek for the omission of the sub-clauses one by one. I propose that they may be taken first."

The discussion of the motion, and also of the following motion was postponed :—

534. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that clauses (1), (3) [now (2)] and (4) [now (3)] of the proposed section 24A for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

535. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that clause (1) of the proposed section 24A for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, I accept this amendment, because the principle is not so important in Calcutta as it is in Bombay."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

536. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha to move that clause (1) of the proposed section 24A for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

537. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that clause (1) of the proposed section 24A for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

538. If Motion No. 535 be not carried, the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu to move that the words "shall be presumed to be the amount so awarded" be substituted for the words "shall not, unless the Tribunal otherwise directs, be deemed to be greater than the amount so returned," in lines 7 and 8 of clause (1) of the proposed section 24A for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill.

539. If Motion No. 537 be not carried, the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that the words "accepted or fixed by the Corporation" be substituted for the words "so returned," in line 8 of clause (1) of the proposed section 24A for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill.

533. The Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill be omitted.

540. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that clause (3) of the proposed section 24A for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

He said :—

"This is a new clause 24A (3), and it is not taken from the Bombay Act but from the Calcutta Municipal Act."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"It is in the Bombay Act as well as in the English law."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said:—

"I wish only to call my friend's attention to this fact. The section runs thus: 'if in the opinion of the Tribunal, any building is in a defective state, from a sanitary point of view, or is not in a reasonably good state of repair, the amount of compensation shall not exceed the sum which the Tribunal considers the building would be worth if it were put into a sanitary condition or into a reasonably good state of repair.' I really do not understand this, because if you are acquiring a house which is not in a proper sanitary condition, the house loses so much in value."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

"Sir, I think the purpose of extending this provision, which is derived from the English law, is quite clear. There are many ways in which property is valued for land acquisition purposes. Valuation on the rental value is, I think. the favourite method. Owing to pressure of population an old and insanitary house may be bringing in the same rent as the house next door which is new and sanitary. In such cases it will be practicable to fix the value of the property as if it were in a sanitary condition and in a good state of repair. And if the cost of such repair is deducted from the amount of compensation it will be quite reasonable, for in the long run it is the same thing as if it were repaired and put into a sanitary condition by the owner himself."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

" Well, Sir, my experience is the other way."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

541. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause (3) of the proposed section 24A for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

542. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that clause (4) of the proposed section 24A for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

He said :—

" This I also object to as being very wide : 'If in the opinion of the Tribunal any building which is used or is intended or is likely to be used for human habitation.' Well, Sir, my fears are these. It is all very well to say that this is a provision in the English Act. I frankly confess that up to the present moment we do not trust your Tribunal. It may be that the Tribunal will justify itself, but for the present it does not."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said :—

" I have got a similar motion, and I desire to associate myself with the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu in his objection. It was perhaps an oversight on the part of the draftsman that he did not also exclude the cartage when he wanted to exclude the demolition cost from the value."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said :—

" SIR, this sub-clause has reference to such an extreme state of affairs that it can scarcely give rise to reasonable objection. We have dealt with the provisions of the Bill which relate to cases where it may be somewhat difficult to draw a line. But here we have got the case that a building which is inhabited by human beings is really unfit for human habitation. In such a case the law provides that you must pull down the house and sell the materials. A man has no right to be compensated for an uninhabitable building on the basis that he has let it to tenants."

The motion was then put and lost.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

543 The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that clause (4) of the proposed section 24A for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

534. The Hon'ble Rai Shiba Shankar Sahay Bahadur to move that clauses (1), (3) [now (2)] and (4) [now (3)] of the proposed section 24A for the Land Acquisition Act, in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill, be omitted.

544. The Hon'ble Rai Baikuntha Nath Sen Bahadur to move that the word "Court" be substituted for the word "Tribunal," wherever it occurs in clause 16 (now 11) of the Schedule to the Bill.

The Schedule.

New clause 16D (now 14).

545. The Hon'ble Babu Hrishikesh Laha moved that after clause 16C of the Schedule to the Bill the following be inserted, namely:—

New section 49A, 16D. After section 49 the following shall be inserted, namely:—

"49A. The provisions of this Act shall not be put in force for the purpose of acquiring any land which forms part of a garden attached to a dwelling-house or is otherwise required for the amenity or convenience of any dwelling-house."

Non-acquisition of land required for convenience of dwelling-house.

He said:—

"My submission is that this proviso is absolutely necessary for restricting the unlimited power of the Board to acquire land for the purpose of any scheme. There would have been no such necessity if the Board had been invested with power to acquire no more land than would be absolutely necessary. The Bill gives the Board power to acquire more land in order to recoup the cost of the main scheme, so under the name of recoupment any land and any quantity of land may be acquired for the purpose of subsequently disposing it off at a profit. I therefore proposed certain amendments to this clause while the Bill was in the Select Committee, and that which I now propose is a very moderate one indeed. Some restriction is necessary. a carte-blanche cannot be given to the Board for the acquisition of land, and in this connection I have followed the principle of English law; for even in England, where the people are so much advanced in knowledge and experience, such restriction has been recognised as may be observed in section 5 of the Development and Road Improvement Funds Act, 1909. It might be said that the aforesaid Act applies only to provincial towns and not to big cities, but the principle acted upon cannot be ignored whether the town be a big or a small one. If such a provision can be made in England, there is all the more reason why a similar provision should be introduced here where the rights of property are so much respected. The people of this country are very much attached to their homes, and some provision should be made for their protection from the arbitrary operation of the Land Acquisition Act. Property holders are no doubt liable to make some contribution towards the cost of the scheme, but it would not be at all fair that the whole burden should be placed upon their shoulders. The proviso to this section which I have proposed will I hope meet with the approval of the Council."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, whatever may be the intentions of the Hon'ble Member in trying to insert this clause into the Bill, he can scarcely expect that the Council will accept it as it stands. There is nothing in the Act to prevent the acquisition of dwelling-houses. And if you may acquire dwelling-houses, there is no reason why you should not acquire gardens attached to them. We have made a new provision in section 49 of the Land Acquisition Act, by which if a garden is acquired it is made perfectly clear that you must acquire the attached house also. The Hon'ble Member need have no fear that the garden will be acquired and the house left. The Hon'ble Member has referred to English precedents, and I must trouble the Council for a moment or two by explaining why the precedents are not applicable here. We have two precedents—section 45 of the Housing of the Working Classes Act and section 5 of the Development and Road Improvement Act. The former deals with the acquisition of land for the housing of the working classes. A municipality may acquire land and build houses on it if the conditions under which the working classes live are unsatisfactory. When the Bill was discussed in the House of Lords the provision referred to by the Hon'ble Member was inserted. It was not unreasonably contend that you should not destroy the amenity of one man's house, merely to provide a more comfortable house for another man. Under the other Act the Road Board may acquire any land for 220 yards on either side of a new trunk road, i.e., a strip of land a quarter of a mile wide. That is a very wide power, and the gardens and parks attached to country houses in England are among the glories of the country. It was decided that it is wrong under the plea of material development to ignore æsthetic considerations and the amenities of life. If the Hon'ble Member quotes the Development Act, he should adopt it as a whole. Under that Act no additional compensation is allowed when land is acquired. If this amendment is carried, much of the work of the Trust would be rendered impossible. One of its important duties is to lay out new suburbs, and it is obvious that in doing so it will be constantly necessary to acquire garden lands. I will again refer the Hon'ble Member to section 49 of the Land Acquisition Act which fully covers his case."

The motion was then put and lost.

546. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the word "Chairman" be substituted for the word "President," wherever the latter word is used in the various clauses of the Bill as meaning the President of the Board.

He said:—

"In reading through the various clauses of this Bill I have been a good deal embarrassed in distinguishing between the President of the Board and the President of the Tribunal, and without impairing the dignity of either functionary, for the sake of convenience I desire to call one the Chairman and the other the President by way of avoiding comedies of error."

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"I accept this amendment, Sir, and in consequence I would move the next amendment, No. 547."

The Hon'ble BABU DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"I am glad of the concession and feel like the squirrel of old who was able to assist in ever so slight a manner in improving the Adam's Bridge of old and the Adamantine of to-day. Like the self-same squirrel we shall bear the stripes and strokes on our back to the end of creation."

The motion was put and agreed to.

547. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas moved:—

(1) that clause 2 (h) be omitted; and

(2) that after clause 2 (b) the following be inserted, namely:—

(b1) [now (c)] "the Chairman" means the Chairman of the Board.

The motion was put and agreed to.

Clause 61C (now 71) of the Bill.

The following motion (postponed from the meeting of the 19th August 1911) was then taken up.

318. If Motion No. 311 be not carried, the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur to move that clause 61C (b) be omitted.

The Hon'ble MR. BOMPAS said:—

"Sir, Amendment No. 318 above was left over to be moved after the amendments on the Schedule. It can be moved now"

The Hon'ble RAI SITA NATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"I beg to withdraw it, Sir."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The Preamble to the Bill.

548. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari moved that the word "certain" be inserted before the word "persons," in line 5 of the Preamble to the Bill.

He said:—

"It is only a verbal amendment. Limitations have already been put in regarding the objects of the Act and it can no longer be a question whether the introduction of 'certain' in the Preamble is necessary or not. However, this again is a matter for the Department to consider."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"This amendment affects the preamble of the Bill and not any of its clauses. In the course of the present discussion in Council it has been decided that the Board should undertake rehousing schemes only for persons of the poorer and working classes. It may, therefore, be argued that we should qualify the word 'persons' as used in the preamble, but if it is desired to make any mention of specific classes of persons, I would prefer to do so in the way proposed in Amendment No. 549."

The Hon'ble DEBA PRASAD SARBADHIKARI said:—

"In that view I have no objection in withdrawing Amendment No. 548."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

549. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that the words "of the poorer and working classes" be inserted after the word "persons," in line 6 of the preamble to the Bill.

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said:—

"There is no harm in accepting that."

The motion was put and agreed to.

The following motions were, by leave of the President, withdrawn:—

550. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that the words "of the poorer classes" be inserted after the word "persons" in line 6 of the preamble to the Bill

Clause 2 of the Bill.

551. The Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari to move that after clause 2 (d), the following be inserted, namely:—

(dd) the expression "good faith" has the same meaning as in section 52 of the Indian Penal Code.

552. The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu moved that after clause 2 (g) the following be inserted, namely:—

(g1) the expression "persons of the poorer and working classes" means persons whose income, either singly, or collectively as members of a joint family, does not exceed one thousand rupees a year.

He said:—

"Does my friend think it would be necessary? I was simply seeking to define this. I want to ascertain the views of Government in this matter."

The Hon'ble MR. WHEELER said :—

"There are two or three amendments which seek to define the meaning of the expression 'persons of the poorer and working classes,' but I would advise the Council to leave it undefined as is the case in the English Act. Looking to the conditions of this country—the existence of joint families and of races with different standards of living—it would be exceedingly difficult to frame one definition which will cover all cases, and if an attempt were made to do so, I think we would only restrict the Bill undesirably. In fact the deversity of definition shown in the amendments themselves shows that the difficulty is a real one."

The Hon'ble BABU BHUPENDRA NATH BASU said :—

"In view of what has been said by the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler, I do not desire to put my amendment to the vote."

The motion was then, by leave of the President, withdrawn.

The following motion was, by leave of the President, withdrawn :—

553. The Hon'ble Mr. Apcar to move that after clause 2 (q) [now 2 (j)] the following be inserted, namely:—

(q1) the expression "persons of the poorer classes" means persons whose income does not exceed an average of two hundred rupees per mensem, and includes the families of such persons residing with them.

554. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas moved that the Secretary be directed to renumber the clauses and sub-clauses of the Bill in consecutive order, and to make corresponding alterations in all cross-references thereto.

The motion was put and agreed to.

555. The Hon'ble Mr. Bompas moved that the Bill, as settled in Council, be passed.

He said :—

"Sir, I have now to move that the Bill as settled in Council be passed. And in doing so I will venture to make a very few remarks. It has been said several times in the course of the debate by movers of amendments that their position is hopeless, that they are like billows beating against the cliff, and, if not actually said by them it has been implied, and it has been said by the newspapers that represent the views of the section of community which they also represent—that the enlargement of the Council has been a farce, and that the debate has been a sham. Sir, I may be excused for touching a personal note; I came here as a novice. I am the jungliest of jungly Collectors whose official heart is in the wild tracts of Chota Nagpur where the best years of his service have been spent, and I have watched with the interest of a novice the proceedings in relation to the Bill, and it seems to me absolutely impossible for any one acquainted with the facts to contend that the Government has taken up an unreasonable and impracticable attitude in this matter, or that it could not be moved from the course it had marked out before it. The Bill was introduced in this Council a year ago, expressly with the purpose of allowing time for criticism. Those criticisms were received and considered in the Select Committee for two months. The Select Committee introduced very considerable modifications in the Bill—modifications according to public opinion. In the first place, the number of members of the Trust was raised from 7 to 11 in deference to public opinion The different characters of type in the Bill will show how numerous were the alterations made in the Select Committee. The High Court's suggestions in regard to the right of appeal from the Tribunal were accepted. The right of pre-emption was recognized and the suggested method of levying the jute tax was adopted. As regards the land acquisition procedure, the control of the land acquisition work has been taken away from the cognizance of the President, and the ordinary procedure was substituted for it. Costs have been allowed in land acquisition proceedings before the Collector. Clause 24 A (1) of the Schedule to the Bill has been omitted, in deference to public opinion. The 15 per cent. compensation, about which there has been so much dispute, has been allowed on all lands outside Calcutta and on all lands acquired for purposes other than the improvement scheme. This is a very long list of substantial alterations mainly introduced in deference to public opinion. When the Government has considered and given effect to so many suggestions in Select Committee, surely it is unreasonable to make a charge against it that it has not considered public opinion in the matter of this Bill. In this Council too, many substantial concessions have been made. The suggestion that the building operations of the Trust should be confined to the poorer classes has been given effect to. Provisos have been added to clauses 110 (now 105) and 111 (now 106) under which the municipal guarantee has been restricted. We have excised from section 24A of the Land Acquisition Act a proviso by which a person was bound by the return of the valuation of his land which he has filed with the municipality—it was a clause to which great objection was raised by the public. Sir, in view of these facts, it cannot be stated that the Government has taken up an impossible attitude, and I will say, more; it has appeared to me that it has throughout been present in the minds of the Government that this Council is, to a very large extent, representative of the different interests and opinions of the province. And it has been with great reluctance that Government has ever risked acting in opposition to the united opinion of the non-official members of this Council. And I must say further that during this debate it has never seemed open to me to rely on the fact that there might be an official majority behind me to carry anything that Government wished to be carried. Every time I have spoken and Mr. Wheeler has spoken, we have spoken with the intention of convincing those whose minds were not already made up and who were open to conviction, and I have had clear enough illustration that this debate was not a sham. On one amendment I failed to convince the Council that a clause effected what I believed that it was meant to effect, and the Council at once divided against me 21 to 21. There were therefore at least 21 who were prepared to vote against me. It is possible that if the Council had divided 21 to 21 on all important amendments, this Bill would still have been placed on the Statute Book, but I should have made the motion which I am now making with very different feelings. But when we find the number of the votes cast against the Bill on important amendments hovering in the region of 12 and 13 no one can contend that Government is acting in opposition to the united enlightened opinion of the Province."

The Hon'ble DR. ABDULLAH-UL-MAMUN SUHRAWARDY said:—

"Sir, now that the Bill has reached its final stage, I take the earliest opportunity of congratulating the Council on the fact that it has approached the conclusion of this important measure, and I also wish to congratulate the Hon'ble Member in charge of the Bill on his brilliant powers of debate. Thanks to his unquestioned ability, the call for a division on almost every contested question has resulted in a preponderating majority for the Government. At the same time it is my duty to point out to the Council that the signal victory achieved by the Government over the opposition is due not so much to the eloquence and persuasive powers of the speakers on the Government side as to the character and composition of the non-official body. It is true that the unavoidable absence of several non-official members has considerably thinned our ranks, but I am sure it would not have made any difference were it otherwise. The fact of the matter is, that, unlike the official members, we do not claim to be proof against the voice of the charmer, or rather that our political consciousness, or rather conscience, has not reached such a stage of development as to permit us to vote solid for or against the Government on any contested question. The passage at arms between the Hon'ble Rai Sita Nath Ray Bahadur and the Hon'ble Babu Deba Prasad Sarbadhikari and that between the latter and the Hon'ble Babu Mahendra Nath Ray are illustrations of what I mean. This is but natural, for not only do we represent diverse and varied interests upon this Council, but the very fact of our freedom from official restraint is at once the source of our strength and weakness. Therefore, the victory for the Government was almost a foregone conclusion, and defeat for the Opposition inevitable. In spite of this obvious fact the leaders of the Opposition fought every inch of their ground, till at last, convinced of the futility of further resistance, not by the efforts and persuasions of the speakers on behalf of the Government, but by successive defeats, they bowed to the inevitable. The attitude of the Government,—the no-surrender attitude of the Government in the words of the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan—had become abundantly clear from the very first day of the debate, and the public and the non-official members began to ask themselves - and, I dare say, the official members also, though for a different reason, must have asked themselves,—the question—'What is the good of all these speeches?' I hope I am not betraying any non-official secret, when I tell you, Sir, that at one time the sense of public disappointment was so keen that it was suggested that the non official members should, by way of protest, secede from the Council in a body. Happily, wiser counsels prevailed, and I am glad to say that the feeling of disappointment expressed itself in a more practical form—the abandonment or curtailment of speeches—which has largely contributed to the speedy conclusion of the business before the Council. Occasionally, however, there was a tendency to return to lengthly speeches, for hope springs eternal in the human breast.

"With the modesty becoming in one who, like myself, lacks in experience and knowledge of men and affairs, I take the liberty of answering the question—'What is the good of all these speeches?'—both on behalf of the official and the non-official members. To the official members, wearied with listening or replying to speeches, I say, that the zeal,—or to borrow once more the phraseology of the Maharaja of Burdwan,—'the tenacity' of the non-official members, is an unmistakeable proof of the fact, that behind what may appear to be a mere passion for speech-making, there is a genuine body of public opinion, which views the provisions of the Bill with alarm, apprehension, and even resentment. Sir, the many vacant chairs on our side may be deemed as an indication of indifference, but the presence in our midst this afternoon of the Maharaja of Burdwan, though suffering from fever, is a strong testimony in favour of the genuineness of popular discontent, however unfounded they may eventually turn out to be. No one can for a moment imagine that the Maharaja is present here to-day, simply because he happens to be a large landholder, and represents the interests of the landholding class. Here permit me, Sir, to digress for a moment, and refer to the speech of the Hon'ble Mr. Norman McLeod. I am afraid he misunderstood the Maharaja when he made references to Liverpool and the loyalty of the zamindars. If I understood the Maharaja rightly he was not asking for a concession on behalf of the zamindars, simply because the landholding class was loyal and law-abiding, and was the bulwark of British rule in India. He meant to point out the grave danger of attempting to transplant in an oriental country the ideal of the West, regardless of surrounding circumstances. It is the duty of every member of the Council to point out to you, Sir, that in your zeal to beautify our city and make it worthy of the metropolis of a great Empire, you may not be swelling the tide of popular discontent; in your enthusiasm to thrust Western ideas of sanitation down the unwilling throats of a people who care very little for them, you may not be introducing the germs of a disease which you would soon find it beyond your power to kill. Introduction of anarchism has already followed in the wake of Western education, let us not entangle ourselves in the meshes of socialism and introduce the complex and complicated labour problems that culminate in riots and bloodshed. In the words of an Urdu poet

'You yourselves have brought the Flood of Freedom from the West.

Lay, therefore, the foundations of your edifice deep in the hearts of the people, so that it may endure for ever.'

"It is well known that no tax is more vexatious than the income-tax, and no measure more liable to be regarded as an act of oppression as compulsory acquisition of land. Sir, it is an elementary principle of good government that the attitude of the public should be taken into consideration when introducing a new measure, and that it is an asset of great value and immense advantage to the practical administrator. In this connection I need hardly remind my honourable colleagues of the famous passage in Burke's 'Thoughts on the Present Discontents,' where that great statesman says that amendments though lost soften the rigours of the administration of the country.

"To my non-official colleagues, despondent and dejected, I say, 'What though the amendments are lost, all is not lost.' Amendments may be lost in the Council Chamber, yet the Act itself may work smoothly in practice. Permit me, Sir, here to remind you of the heated debate in this Chamber in connection with the Calcutta Police Bill, which offers a parallel to the Bill before us: that was the first important measure which came up for legislation before Sir Edward Baker, as this is the first important measure before Your Honour; there was the same reference to Bombay and to London, and there were the same solemn warnings. But the comparative calm which has followed the passage of that Bill is ample justification of the supporters of that Act. On that analogy I venture to hope that the present Bill also will prove a success in its practical working. Sir, however liberal my views may be on other subjects, I frankly confess I am yet conservative enough to firmly believe in the good intention of Government in carrying through this measure, and I have not the slightest doubt that notwithstanding what the Hon'ble Mr. Deep Narayan Singh has said about the suspicion and distrust aroused in the public mind, all my colleagues share in this respect my opinion, if not my optimism as to the ultimate success of this Bill. But, Sir, much depends upon the personnel of the Board and the Tribunal, and I earnestly trust that Your Honour's Government will make such judicious selection in this particular, that those who came to oppose and to scoff may live to bless and praise the supporters of this measure. I, for one, have no hesitation in voicing the view of the great astronomer-poet of Persia, who in describing quite a different situation says:—

'Folks of a surly Tapster tell,
And daub his visage with the smoke of hell.
They talk of some strict Testing of us! But He's a Good Fellow and 'twill all be well.'

"Before I conclude I would like to add a word on behalf of the constituency I have the honour to represent. It is well known that the only politics which the Muhammadans know is Religion, and Religion spells fanaticism with the masses. My honourable friend, Mr. Halliday, will bear me out that wherever mosques, cemeteries, or shrines are concerned, there is trouble; and once the blood of the masses is up, they are beyond the control of the leaders of the community. It is well known that Moslem zeal and prosperity have always expressed themselves in mosques and religious endowments, and that these properties are inalienable and inheritable. The whole of Calcutta is dotted over with mosques and shrines; even non-Moslem parts of the town are not immune from this passion for mosque-building. Take, for instance, the mosque in Camac Street and that wedged in between the walls of the Medical College Hospital. However desirable it may be from sanitary and æsthetic points of view to remove these thorns in the side of fashionable houses, any attempt to acquire and demolish them is sure to meet with the most stubborn resistance from the masses, and bound to end in bloodshed. I earnestly trust that due regard will be paid to Moslem susceptibilities when any mosques and sacred places happen to be included within any area coming under the improvement scheme, and that a qualified Mussalman, preferably a non-official of independence and integrity, well versed in Muhammadan Law, will be appointed on the Board, so that where necessary and possible he may successfully negotiate with the parties concerned by referring to the texts of the Sacred Law."

The Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan said:—

"Your Honour, I am sorry that now that the Bill is going to be passed, I have to still withhold my support from it. I hope, Sir, I may be pardoned if I make one or two personal allusions. First of all, before I allude to myself, I must object to the Hon'ble Dr. Suhrawardy's saying that the Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu was the leader of the opposition, and that there were so many seats vacant on our side of the Council. I for one never entered this Council hall with the idea that we formed the opposition; or that there is more than one party here; for, there can be only one party here, and that to see the carrying on of good Government.

"Sir, the Hon'ble. Mr. Bompas has very kindly referred to my speech which, of course, must have to a finished debater like himself, seemed to have not been quite in accordance with the dignity of this Council; but I thank Mr. Bompas nevertheless for his reference 'that the Maharaja's loyalty is in his own hands.' Had not the Maharaja been sure of his loyalty, had he not known that that loyalty was safe in his hands, and that he was not like a gramaphone machine which unfortunately some zamindars are like, he would certainly not have brought to the notice of the Government, with a certain amount of vehemence, the danger that this adoption of broad principles of equity might involve the Government in. It is not alone the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, nor the Maharaja of Cossimbazar, or others, that will be affected by this scheme. For though certain noblemen have the misfortune to have landed interests in Calcutta properties, it is not that selfish motive that has made me speak thus; but as one of the few perhaps among the landholding community who feel that in trying to do good, you sometimes forget that there may be far-reaching opposite effects, that I have ventured to speak out. I understand, of course, that in this question of the granting of additional compensation, the hands of the Government of Bengal are to a certain extent tied by the decision of the Government of India; and for that reason I say I do not think that the Government of India are right. I think that if we had had a more liberal-handed Finance Member than my friend, Sir Guy F. Wilson, probably we might have fared better. But, of course, I need not discuss that here; I shall soon be going up to Simla and shall there certainly give a bit of my mind on the subject to Sir Guy. Meanwhile we have got no option left; certain broad principles of equity the Government of India have thought fit to insist upon—which broad principles certain of us non-official advisors of the Government have not thought fit to accept. For these reasons, I for one will have to withhold my support from this Bill being passed into law."

"Sir, at this late hour of the day and after having so fully and elaborately discussed the provisions of the Bill, it is hardly fair to my hon'ble colleagues that I should enter into any lengthy examination of the Bill or its provisions. In fact, we on our side had entertained a desire not to say anything on the conclusion of the date of this Council, but some observations which have fallen from the Hon'ble Member in charge require a reply from us. My friend, the Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan, has said that there are no sides. I agree with him in the sentiment that has been expressed. We only referred to two sides on a particular question, meaning by sides two different and opposite views. We have ventured to put forward our views with whatever amount of reason we could command in their support. They have not commended themselves to Government. My friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, has referred to certain modifications in the Select Committee and to certain changes made in the six days' debate that has taken place in this Council. I believe even a novice from Chota Nagpur ought to know that the very object of referring a Bill to a Select Committee means that opposite views are to be considered and so far as possible—so far as consistent with the policy of Government—such views should be given effect to. That has been the meaning of the Select Committee which represent only a few Members, or rather which is constituted of only a few Members. There are questions of principle both on the Government side and on the popular side which have got to be considered, and those questions of principle are naturally raised before the Council. If it was the intention of the Select Committee and of the Council to adopt a Bill as it is placed before the Council, there would be no meaning in these Committees or in the meetings of these Councils. My friend has referred to some modifications. Well, Sir, we are thankful for small mercies, but what are the modifications? Have they been any on questions of principle? Have they been at all even on any great question of details? The modifications have been very slight, the modifications in this Council, I may be permitted to say, have been of very little value. In the Select Committee there have been some modificati ons in detail which have only made the Bill, when it is passed into law, more workable. That is all. I will not follow my friend into the details. He thinks he has made a very large concession by giving 15 per cent. compensation to lands outside Calcutta. He thinks he has made a large concession by giving to the people concerned their costs in the land acquisition proceedings. This again I may, for the enlightenment of the Members of the Council concerned, say at once that it is provided by statute in England that costs should be awarded, and there the costs are not left to the discretion of the valuing officer, not to the Collector who, under the law we are going to pass, may refuse the cost if an extravagant demand has been made. There the system is different: there they know how to protect themselves through representatives in Parliament. There the cost must be paid on the valuation. Now, question of personal discretion of the officer comes into consideration. There is a scale according to which costs may be taxed by the taxing officer of the High Court, so that what my friend says is a concession, I say it is not. If it is looked upon as a concession, then the omission would appear to have been originally intentional; then may we take it that it is intended not to give to the people of this city what is granted by the English law?

"Then my friend says even the 15 per cent. is allowed for re-housing scheme, and that it is only not allowed in cases of improvement schemes. My friend, I believe, remembers that improvement schemes include stieet schemes, that housing schemes for the poor will have to be more largely carried out outside in Calcutta area, and consequently the concession practically means nothing to the people of Calcutta: so that after all the concessions have not been very great. Well, Sir, that has been the attitude of the Government, and we must accept it. My friend has said that there was no reason for us to complain that our position was hopeless. Well, Sir, I will not dwell upon the features of the debate, for facts illustrate theories better than arguments. There was one instance only, truly, when 21 were opposed to 21 upon what I believe one of the grossest abuse of Government powers that could be imagined in the framing of the Bill, namely, of disregarding public interests in the interests of the officer concerned, and I do hope and trust that this will not occur again, for it lowers the prestige of Government.

"Well, Sir, the Hon'ble Member in charge naturally congratulates himself on the support he has had in this Council. We have been unfortunate on our part; eight Members on our side have been absent. I do not say that they are wilfully absent, but they are absent because they find the futility or the inutility of their presence here. Then, again, of the non-official Members, there are six who represent interests which are identical with Government. If my friend had made out a case that he had carried his Bill with the free approbation or free approval of the majority of the Indian Members who will be seriously affected by the provisions of this Bill, for upon their shoulders will fall their burden—upon their shoulders is the responsibility,—then certainly my friend could have congratulated himself upon the support which Government has obtained in this Council. It cannot be denied that, so far as those who are directly concerned, the non-official Members and the Indian Members on the Bengal side, they were opposed to the Bill to a man. I have had division lists taken, and so the question of voting is not a secret matter, and therefore I am at liberty to refer to the votes recorded. My warmest and heartiest thanks are due to my friends from Bihar who, at great personal sacrifice, at great personal inconvenience, have been present throughout this debate on matters which are not their personal concern. It speaks well of the future of my province, that we have learnt to stand by each other in matters which affect one section of us. To them again my heartiest thanks are due to those of them that have voted with us and have supported us in this dire necessity—and I am glad that they were able to resist the selfish appeal of a Bihar Member, fortunately for us not a Biharee, not to interfere in a matter in which they were not likely to be affected. I wish that that appeal had not been made in this Council. Passing on from this aspect of the question, friends outside have asked us what was the use of wasting our time over a debate, the result of which was a foregone conclusion, what earthly use, and we also felt it. We who have got to earn our daily bread felt what was the use of this sacrifice? I may assure my hon'ble friends that it is not for the purpose of making speeches that we are here, for we have got platforms much more interesting where we can make our voice heard—where our opinions are shared by a large portion of the audience. To some of us the advice had been tendered by men in our community, also by men not of us, but whose opinion is entitled to the highest weight, that rather than participate in this farce of a debate, we had better withdraw from the debate altogether and secede from the discussion. Well, Sir, we resisted that advice. Whether we have acted rightly or wrongly, it will be for the future to decide. And why did we resist that advice, because after all, we Hindus believe the great precept, which the most inspiring book in the possession of humanity teaches; the Gita of the Hindus says that you have nothing to do with the result, but do your duty and that has been the motive principle which has guided us in this debate. We have tried to follow humbly and at a great personal disinclination at times this solemn injunction given to the Hindu race in long bygone times, and more than that or less than that, for I am free to confess that there has been some personal motive also in sticking to our post in this Council and in trying to place before this Council the views of at least the Indian public over the merits of this Bill. Not personal motives in the sense of obtaining distinctions or titles to which I am afraid some of us are looking forward with the advent of the King-Emperor when there will be a large shower upon the deserving, but a personal motive that the Government might not be dragged into a false position, for I am free to confess that myself and every one of us here associated with me in the opposition to this Bill, believe that India's future towards greatness and prosperity lies in ordered progress, and the continuance of British rule lies in the absence of discontent against that rule: for we believe that that rule has come about under some inscrutable decree of Providence which we cannot fathom, and so far as it has gone, it has been generally for our good. But we see signs, Sir, that there are occasions when the bureaucracy of my country with their vision obscured by the inebriation of excessive powers have gone on in courses which we feel will land them in disaster. Sir, on this occasion and in this Council, I d onot think it is desirable to go into large questions of policy, but it may be permissible for me to say that the best safeguard of British rule in India is to secure the co-operation of the people in the objects which that rule has set before it for achievement. It may be, Sir, through our lesser knowledge, through our greater, through our smaller experience, that we may not see so far as you do. It may be, Sir, that we take a perverted, an erroneous, a small-sighted view of questions of which you are able, from your larger experience, from your greater knowledge, to take a wider view, but great Anglo-Indian administrators,—I will not trouble you by quoting from their writings,—have said that it is better in the cause of progress that the Government should go on slowly, more slowly than would be otherwise desirable, in order that it may get the co-operation of the people in what it seeks to do. In your country, when a party is in opposition, it tries to bring to bear all the pressure that it can upon the Government of the day. There is always a compromise which unhappily is wanted in this country, but when that compromise is not attained, the party in opposition has got a chance of being at some time or other the party in power. In my country no such opportunity exists. The Government must consider that it is not only the Government of the day, but it is also the opposition for the day, and therefore the responsibility rests upon you which is much greater than on the Government at home,—a responsibility of conciliating public opinion and of considering different and divergent points of view. When you fail in this, as you unfortunately have failed of late, you create a feeling against you which is detrimental to you and which leads to our undoing. It was to prevent that result that we have pleaded in vain to introduce into this Bill principles of co-operation with the people, principles upon which English statutes lay stress in express terms. But you have rejected them. My friend, the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas, says I have given you four Members. Have you? I ask you again. You have given four more Members, two of whom you have taken away yourselves. Of the two that were left, you have given one to your own men in the Corporation, the result of which we can easily foresee. That is the sum and substance of the concession that you have given. I leave it to you to say what they are worth. We have done our duty, we have given you the warning, and we can do no more.

"The Hon'ble the Maharajadhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan has referred to discontent among a class of men still well affected towards the Government of the country. Whether it is judicious, whether it is right, whether it is proper to alienate that element from your side at this juncture, it is for you to consider. We have tried to place this before you, but failed to persuade you.

"I do not wish to detain the Council at greater length at this time of the evening, but we must oppose the Bill, not because we desire that the improvement of Calcutta should not be taken up in hand, but because we feel that you have so hemmed in the provisions of the Bill, you have so disregarded the safeguards which exist in your own country, you have so culled all the provisions which go against popular rights both from your own country and from Bombay and marshalled them against us with the forces behind your back as to make its smooth working a matter of impossibility. You have neglected to give us the safeguards which exist in your own country, and you have succeeded also with the same forces behind you. We are not responsible for what the consequences may be.

"Your Honour, we felt, as the debate proceeded, that it was useless to go on, and naturally when we know that we are bound to be defeated, much of the life in the debate vanishes, for when we know that we cannot convince, it is useless to put heart into a discussion. And, Sir, though my friend, the Hon'ble Member in charge, says that he is a novice and a newcomer, now that the debate is coming to a close, I cannot but acknowledge the high ability that he has displayed throughout these proceedings for the conduct of this debate. He has brought to the question a degree of minute knowledge which it is only possible to attain by months of the closest study, and he has shown his powers in meeting the opposition of his opponents which would do great credit to any Member in the front benches in the House of Commons. I am sure he feels like ourselves that the best in him would not be put forward, for no man can put forward his best when he finds his opponent bound hand and foot and himself well armed with plenary powers. There is no pleasure in slaying the slain. I am quite sure that when he retires from this country full of honours and age, he will find in him a congenial field for the display of his great abilities in his own country, where he will not suffer from the disadvantage which he has suffered in the conduct of this debate, namely, of finding himself placed against an antagonist at his mercy, and Sir, in conclusion, I can only make one appeal to you, namely, that in the administration of the Trust, whatever may be the extent of the powers which the Government has reserved to itself under the Bill, the Government will pay attention, will pay heed to the various points that we have raised, for it is necessary that the wheels of administration should move well and smoothly, and should be kept scrupulously free from the sands of obstruction which may bring the administration into danger; that the Board under the direction of the Government will proceed in a spirit of fairness and justice, and that it will seek the co-operation which it has spurned to-day. For in that alone lies its success, for otherwise it is bound to fail, bound to create a spirit of dissatisfaction which cannot be good for Government, and will not certainly be good for us."

The HON'BLE MR. FILGATE said:—

"Sir, our Herculean task is accomplished. The goal has been reached, despite the fact that some have fallen by the way under the strain.

"The Hon'ble Babu Bhupendra Nath Basu remarked during this debate that 'time was of great importance to many of us, non-official Members, who have to earn our daily bread,' and if the non-official Members who reside in Calcutta find this, although they can get through a good deal of their private work each day before the Council meets and after it rises, of how much greater importance is it to us, the mufassil Members, who also lose a day in coming and another in returning. If he will excuse my saying so, he and some other non-official Members, who have taken part in the lengthy debate, are responsible for having taken up unnecessarily a great deal of time. I have followed with keen interest the speeches and remarks that have been made, and I came to this Council on the 15th with an open mind ready to support or oppose the numerous amendments—over 600 in number—after hearing the arguments for and against. I would be the very last to suggest that full discussion of any measure, but especially one of such great importance and far reaching results as the 'Calcutta Improvement Bill,' should in any way be curtailed. In my own case, had the principal opposers of the various clauses of this Bill confined their arguments and remarks to the particular point under discussion, I might have been convinced of their soundness. But when the point at issue was so wrapped up in the highest flights of magnificent oratory, the original point was as difficult to find as 'the needle in the bundle of straw,' and I frankly admit I could not follow them in many instances; and this Council may remember one Hon'ble Member got so carried off his feet by the flood of his exuberant verbosity, that he was certainly arguing against the amendment he was moving on at least two occasions

"Again, an argument is used in support of or opposition to an amendment. To any one of ordinary intelligence the repetition of the same argument over and over again in respect of various succeeding amendments does not convince anyone to support or oppose. The Members of this Council surely are not to be compared to the members of an infant school who require repetition after repetition to impress facts on their young brains, but from the repetitions we have had, one would suppose that certain Hon'ble Members considered they were. This is scarcely a compliment to the intelligence and common-sense of this Council, let alone a considerable waste of its time I have been trained and spent my life as an agriculturist pure and simple, and it may be considered presumptuous on my part, a mere novice as a legislator, to offer advice and criticise those who rank with some of the finest orators in India and have had a lifelong training in this particular line (I must mention I would welcome advice from anyone in any line of life that would help me in agriculture). We hear a great deal about sympathy and co-operation between the Government and the people, between the man of the West and the man of the East, and it is the duty of every one of us, of whatever creed or race, to do all in our power to cement and bind such a bond. I regret to say that during the course of this debate remarks have been made with reference to the 'Methods of Government,' 'Unfounded suspicions of the intentions of Government,' 'Star Chamber tactics,' etc. Can any fair-minded man hold that reiterated taunts and thinly veiled insinuations against the Government and its officials are calculated to foster a spirit of co-operation, or do they not rather make for the opposite? Do those who profess to plea for co-operation think that this furthers their wish? But in reality do not these taunts and insinuations defeat their professed object? And does it not strike one that when arguments of this kind are used to support a case, it must be a weak one?

"Again, hair-splitting arguments do not appeal to me, and when an Hon'ble Member in the most powerful and wonderful flow of language mentioned that the freedom of debate was being interfered with in this Council, I was more than astonished. This was said in reference to some remarks that fell from th Hon'ble Member who is in charge of the Bill during the discussion of clause

No 35. What I understood the Hon'ble Member to say was, 'that after a Bill had been returned by the Select Committee, he would require very strong and convincing arguments before accepting any alterations in the draft and the full onus of proof lay with the mover of the amendment.' How this can be held? and the Hon'ble Member's remark so twisted and turned as to imply that it interferes with free debate, to me is incomprehensible. We who are present fully understand and recognize that in the heat of argument a word or an expression or even a sentence may drop from an Hon'ble Member that he may afterwards regret, or be sorry for, and no strain is put on the bond of sympathy I have referred to. But one must not lose sight of the fact that the general public in India read in the press the speeches very often reported in full, and I cannot help thinking that the bond of sympathy and co-operation is strained and weakened by remarks such as I have referred to.

"I am no orator or politician, but nevertheless I have the welfare, well-being and progress not only of Bihar and Bengal, but India at heart. A few remarks such as I have referred to made in this Council might have far-reaching results. I have to apologise to you, Sir, and the Hon'ble Members of this Council, for having taken up any more time of this sitting, but I would be false to my oath of allegiance, neglecting my duty to my King-Emperor, to the Government, to this Council and to the thousands I have the honour to represent, if I had sat mute and had not drawn attention to certain remarks which I consider there was no justification for making. Duty is not always pleasant and agreeable, and I can assure you, Sir, it has given me no sense of pleasure having to make them. On the contrary, it has been painful. Those who enter an arena, however, cannot help themselves. I have been trained to give and take the hard blows of life, but I am thankful to say I can never be reproached with having 'hit a man below the belt.'"

The HON'BLE MR. STEWART said:—

"Your Honour—As a non-official member of this Council, and as one of the representatives of the Bengal Chamber of Commerce, which has through out strongly supported the Bill in its main features, though by no means in all its details, I heartily congratulate Government on having brought this important measure to a successful issue, and especially to felicitate the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas—and the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler—on the clearness and courtesy with which they have expounded so many provisions of the Bill, and the skill with which they have countered the attacks which some of my honourable colleagues have felt it their duty to make upon it. These attacks were bravely made and bravely met, and they have failed: and, therefore, hoping and thinking, as I do, with the Hon'ble the Maharajdhiraja Bahadur of Burdwan that there are, and should be, no sides and no parties in this Council, I sincerely trust that all members will now unite and co-operate in extracting from this legislation all the benefits to the second city in our British Empire, which it is imperative that it must, and which I am convinced that it will, confer.

"There is only one small suggestion which I beg to throw out for consideration before resuming my seat. It is this—that when, in the opinion of the President, all debateable matter on any provision of a Bill before the Council has clearly been exhausted, it shall be in the power of any individual member to move that the question be put."

The HON'BLE MR. GOLAM HOSSEIN CASSIM ARIFF said:—

"Now that the Bill is going to pass into Law, you will permit me to make a few general observations.

"I have not understood the attitude of the Hon'ble Member in charge when he puts the residential owners of Calcutta in the position of an accused person in the dock. That is hardly the method which will secure co-operation. Before treating any class of men, who may be affected by any egislation, as standing in relation to it in the position of accused persons on heir trial, I am sure my Hon'ble friend had paid sufficient attention to the History of Calcutta, to have discovered by this time that the residential house-owners of Calcutta are not the only persons responsible for its present state, nor are they mainly responsible for it. Streets which are now justly condemned for narrowness were allowed to grow up in Calcutta by Government before the days of any municipality, and it was only in the year 1888 that any sanitary rules were laid down for the house-holders of Calcutta. If the suburbs, which were in the hands of the Government, were rendered healthier, if suitable outlets had been provided in the shape of good roads and cheaper means of traffic, the congestion in Calcutta for which the house-owners are sought to be penalised, would not have arisen.

"However that may be, I had hoped that your Honour's Government would have reserved one seat in the Trust exclusively for the Muhammadan community. Among us owners of house property are but few, and the large majority of my community in Calcutta, who supply a considerable portion of labouring population, dwell in huts, and they will be greatly affected by the Improvement Scheme, especially as regards displacement of the working classes and suitable provisions for their re-housing. I trust that this omission in the Law will rectify in practice.

"I do not wish to say anything more about the provisions of the Bill, which have been so ably discussed by some of my Hon'ble colleagues, more competent than my humble self to deal with them.

"My only hope and prayer is that the provisions of the Law will be put into operation with justice and fairness, and no one will be more pleased than my humble self, if in the course of the first few years of the administration of the Trust, the apprehensions so justly felt by the people of Calcutta are dispelled."

The HON'BLE RAI SITANATH RAY BAHADUR said:—

"In conclusion, now that the Bill is about to pass into law, I beg to say that it was a great disappointment to me to see that all our amendments, amendment after amendment, should have been thrown out and rejected. I was not prepared for such a spectacle. However, a great responsibility will now devolve on the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas. Let him not interpret the law too rigorously, let him deal with the people sympathetically, generously, and with some consideration to the circumstances of the people and the country.

Let not the impression be verified that the Improvement Trust is an important measure, it requires a sacrifice and the owners of property are the sacrificers."

The HON'BLE RAI BAIKUNTHA NATH SEN BAHADUR said:—

"At the fag end of the day, after holding sittings for seven days over this very important Bill, it is not my purpose to encroach upon the time of the Council to any appreciable extent and I, therefore, confine myself to a few observations. Before I do so, I offer my thanks to your Honour for the latitude which has been given to some of my non-official colleagues in discussing matters which came up in connection with this Bill. Some of my hon'ble non-official colleagues, I must say, made speeches and submitted arguments which were beyond the regions of relevancy, and I offer my thanks to your Honour that they were not stopped. At the same time I beg to submit that though some of my hon'ble non-official colleagues dealt with some matters which were not strictly relevant, they are not at all to blame, since in their zeal and honest efforts to advocate the cause they were pleading, they overstepped some times the legitimate limits. In the first place, permit me, Sir, to congratulate the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas and the Hon'ble Mr. Wheeler for the able way in which they have discussed matters and shown very great debating powers, and I beg also to congratulate my hon'ble friends in carrying every measure they wished and opposing successfully any amendments, however, just they might have been, on the strength of the reserved forces behind them. I regret to say that amendments after amendments, which were urged and moved by non-official Members based on sound recognized principles of law, have been lost. When, Sir, the Calcutta Municipal Bill was before the Council, I had the honour of being a Member then. In this enlarged reformed Council, I also have the honour of being a Member now. Men in those days in 1899 knew of our minority, popular representation was made by a minority, and we knew that nothing could be done then against the wishes of Government. When, Sir, this reformed and enlarged Council was formed, great hopes were entertained, and in some quarters it was apprehended that the Government would be carried on by non official members, because there is ostensibly a non-official majority, but, Sir, it has not been realized in practice. Experience of this present session shows that the non-official Members, especially the non-official Indian Members, can never expect to carry out a measure which will not be accepted by Government. So it is to be hoped that time will come when, if the enlarged and reformed Council is to be popularised and if real concessions and privileges are to be granted to the Indians, the rules undoubtedly have to be modified. It is true that Calcutta needs improvement, some Act is necessary, but the Bill as settled, throwing aside acknowledged principles of law, does not commend itself to me."

The PRESIDENT said:—

"Gentlemen of the Council, I have to acknowledge the great patience and earnestness with which you have attended the passing of this measure. It will be remembered as one of the most prolonged sittings of the Council we have known for a number of years. I can hardly add anything to the encomiums which have been passed on the manner in which the Bill has been conducted by the Hon'ble Member in charge and the assistance which he received from the Hon'ble Mr Wheeler. I will only add one word as to the remarkable readiness and complete preparation which they have shown in this debate. I wish also to acknowledge the earnestness and determination with which those Members who were opposed to some of the principles of the Bill have pressed their points, and I say so freely and gladly, for when matters of great importance are in dispute, it is the duty of those who represent Indian interests to do all they can to force upon the attention of the Council their views of the case. Whether this is always done in the most successful way or whether the tactics are always of the best, is another matter, but as to the great energy and patience that have been displayed there can be no doubt. I would wish to endorse what the Hon'ble Mr. Bompas has said as to the concessions that have been made first of all in the Select Committee and subsequently in the Council. I am aware, of course, that they are few in number in comparison with the number of alterations demanded, and for the most part not very important in point of principle. But is it to be expected that when a measure has been considered by Government for very many years, when it has gone through several drafts, when it has been exhaustively examined in Select Committee, that the Government will give up any vital portion or anything which it regards as a vital principle unless it is compelled to do so by an adverse majority or at any rate unless it should see such a weight of opinion against it as would warn it that it is making a mistake in pressing its views against an unanimous popular conviction? We have heard much as to the determined rejection of amendments by the Government, but I would remind you of the number of elected Members—I will not say, non-official Members—in this Council. They are 26, I think, and I would ask you to compare this with the numbers in the division lists, and I would also remind you that almost always one or two at least of the votes cast against the Government in favour of the amendments were those of Government nominees. It seems to be occassionally assumed, because a certain portion of the non-official element in Council agrees with the views of Government, that therefore there is no genuine popular representation in Council. It is thought that there can be no such representation, unless the Government can be defeated on a question. That, I think, was not the purpose with which the popular representation was increased. The idea was that Government can be defeated when there is unanimous non-official opinion against it, and will probably realise that it is wrong or at least would not usually press its view, if unanimity were very nearly attained, but Government is not to give up a policy which it has adopted on mature consideration, merely because one section of opinion persists that its opinion is right and that of the Government, and those who agree with it, is wrong. In this case at least it is perfectly certain that non-official opinion is not unanimous. I make these remarks because the division lists have shown rather small numbers of votes in favour of the amendments, except on one occasion which has been specially referred to, where there was an equal number of votes on each side, and I had to cast my vote on the Government side. It was a matter in which I may say my official conscience was somewhat at variance with my private conscience, because I was of opinion that an officer in the position of the Chairman of the Trust should on no ground, be allowed to vacate that office for such a purpose as a short temporary promotion. But, on the other hand, whatever may have happened in the past, I certainly think, from the official point of view, that in such a matter no Government can assent to a statutory restriction being imposed upon its action.

"The one point on which the opposition was most keen has been the 15 per cent. compensation. I will say as to that, that I hold no doctrinaire opinion on one side or the other. I cannot understand that there was any essential merit in the 15 per cent. It was for some years the practice in England to pay compensation. But the more advanced modern theories strongly hold that when land is required for the good of the community, as opposed to commercial or other purpose, no compensation should be given. We know that lands in Europe and America have risen enormously in price, and we know that land in Calcutta has also risen considerably. Although some extraordinary exceptions have been produced to show deterioration in value, I think the general experience is entirely to the contrary, and that every one who had purchased land 10 years ago would be certain of obtaining a profit, because the value of land has considerably increased during this period. I have known it to be seriously contended on behalf on some landlords that they should be able to lent their land lie vacant as long as they like and ultimately obtain a price for it as great as if their money had all the time been invested at five per cent. They may have been sanguine and all may not be so successful, but I have no doubt that the value of land has increased to such an extent that I do nct think anyone will be a loser by acquisition.

"We have been warned with some seriousness of the danger we are incurring in going against popular opinion—it might more correctly have been said, a certain section of popular opinion. But I cannot say I am greatly impressed by these suspicions of failure and disaster. Without any very prolonged experience of the Legislative Councils, I have heard such auguries of evil before on the passing of important measures, but it has usually been found when a measure has been carefully worked up beforehand and carefully considered during its passage though Council, that no such evils result in practice. I am convinced that most of the fears of mischief will turn out to be groundless.

"I have noticed a point which has been mentioned by two Muhammadan gentlemen in the Council about the troubles that may arise as regards Muhammadan places of worship and their regret that the Bill has not provided for a Muhammadan member. There is a provision in the Bill which enables persons to be associated with the Board for special purposes. I should think that that provision in the Bill will meet their objection.

"I hope that as a result of our labours, we have produced a measure which will be of incalculable benefit to Calcutta, and will enable it to take its place amongst modern cities of its size. Perhaps very few except the youngest Members of this Council will live to see anything like the full effects of the Trust. I can confidently say that the measure was unquestionably most urgently called for, and with the assistance of the experienced men who will form the Trust and the great resources with which they have been provided, I think we have every reason to hope that in the course of another generation, those parts of the town which are now something of a disgrace to the Administration, will be absolutely unrecognizable by those of us who will live to see it."

A division was then taken, with the following result:—

General Summary.—Rain fell in all districts. The fall was heavy in Cooch Bihar, in parts of Darjeeling, Purnea, the Sonthal Parganas, Darbhanga, and the greater part of Shahabad, Saran and Monghyr. It was moderate in Midnapore, Murshidabad, Patna, Gaya, Bhagalpur, Ranchi, Balasore and parts of Birbhum, Muzaffarpur, Cuttack and Hazaribagh, but light elsewhere. Transplantation of paddy is almost completed in Bihar; it still continues in most districts of Lower Bengal and Orissa. More rain is wanted in Midnapore, Hooghly, Howrah, the 24-Parganas and Angul. Prospects have improved in Cuttack and Balasore, owing to the recent rainfall. The condition of the standing crops is on the whole fair. The newly transplanted paddy in part of Hooghly is suffering for want of rain. The price of common rice has risen in Burdwan, Bankura, Howrah, Nadia, Jessore, Khulna, Monghyr and Bhagalpur and has fallen in Murshidabad, Saran, Purnea, Hazaribagh and Cooch Bihar. Cattle-disease is reported from Midnapore, Murshidabad, Patna, Gaya, Darbhanga, Monghyr, Bhagalpur, Angul, Sambalpur and from all the districts of the Chota Nagpur Division except Singhbhum. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient throughout the Province.

Customs Notice.

THE following procedure will be followed in the Calcutta Custom House for the levy of duty on raw and manufactured jute when this duty comes into force under the Calcutta Improvement Act:—

1 Shipping Bills.—The form of shipping bill prescribed for dutiable goods should be used (Form 43 at page 169 of Board's rules). Shipping bills must be taken out in duplicate for shipments in the foreign trade and in triplicate for shipments in the Coasting trade. One copy of the shipping bill will be returned after presentation to the shipper. This must be delivered to the Preventive Officer on board or (if there is no Preventive Officer on board) to the ship's officer or the Port Commissioners' Shed Officer, as the case may be. The procedure for Foreign exports will in fact be identical with that in force for rice shipments In the Coasting trade the only difference will be that an additional copy of the shipping bill will be required.

2. Deposit accounts for payment of duty.—It is open to exporters either to pay duty in cash or to maintain a deposit account. The advantage of a deposit account is that it avoids the necessity for adjustments on account of short shipments, etc, the original payment being treated as a provisional debit in the first instance. Subsequently at the time of final adjustment it is written back to the depositor's credit and a debit is then made of the exact amount of duty leviable. Any further particulars required can be obtained on application at the Custom House.

3. Exemption from duty under the proviso to clause 73 of the Calcutta Improvement Bill.—Jute shipped under contracts made before the 15th August (which have been duly registered in the Custom House before the 15th September on their existence being established will not be liable to the duty. Shippers should in such cases note the claim for exemption prominently on the shipping bills as "Exemption from duty claimed under serial No. of Messrs. & Co.'s list of free contracts."

4 Manufactured jute —Within five days after the vessel's departure shippers of manufactured jute should produce either a mill specification, jute mills association contract or details of the Licensed Measurers weighment in support of their figures as may be most convenient to them. It is recognised that the weights shown in the mill specifications are usually slightly in excess of the actual jute mills association contract weights and any such slight excess will be disregarded Duty will be charged on the net weight, the weight of the packing being excluded. Where different descriptions of goods are shipped under one shipping bill the new weight of each class should be separately shown.

5. Raw jute.—In the case of raw jute the duty is leviable without reference to any excess over or deficiency in the standard weight of 400 lbs. per bale, and no documentary evidence of the weight of the bales will therefore be required.

6 Collection of duty, etc.—Duty will be calculated to the nearest anna; amounts under 6 pie will be disregarded and 6 pies and upwards reckoned as 1 anna. In cases in which shippers require, in addition to the ordinary Customs receipt, certificates of payment for amounts of Rs. 5 and over a uniform fee of Re. 1 per certificate will be charged. In the case of payments of less than Rs. 5 no charge will be made for this certificate.

H. F. HOWARD, Collector of Customs.

and that the most satisfactory method of dealing with the evils connected with such buildings and the sanitary defects in such area is a general improvement scheme for the re-arrangement and re-construction of the streets and buildings, or some of them, within such area, the Board may pass a resolution to the effect that such area is an unhealthy area, and that a general improvement scheme ought to be framed in respect of such area, and may then proceed to frame such a scheme.

(2) If the Board decide that it is not necessary or expedient to frame a general improvement scheme forthwith, they shall inform the Corporation of the reasons for their decision.

(3) If the Board fail, for a period of twelve months after the receipt of any official representation made under section 37, to intimate their decision thereon to the Corporation, the Corporation may, if they think fit, refer the matter to the Local Government.

Bills introduced into the Council of the Governor General for making Laws and Regulations, or published under Rule 23.

GOVERNMENT OF INDIA.

LEGISLATIVE DEPARTMENT.

The following Bill was introduced in the Council of the Governor General of India for the purpose of making Laws and Regulations on the 11th September, 1911 :—

No. 16 OF 1911.

A Bill to modify certain provisions of the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911.

Ben. Act of 1911.

WHEREAS it is expedient to modify the provisions of the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911, so as to provide in certain cases for an appeal to the High Court from the awards of the Tribunal constituted under that Act; It is hereby enacted as follows :—

Short title.

1. This Act may be called the Calcutta Improvement (Appeals) Act, 1911.

Definitions.

2. In this Act—

(1) "Court" means the High Court of Judicature at Fort William in Bengal: and

Ben. Act of 1911.

(2) "Tribunal" has the same meaning as in the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911.

Ben. Act of 1911.

Appeal from awards of the Tribunal.

3. (1) Notwithstanding anything contained in the Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911, an appeal shall lie to the Court in any of the following cases, namely :—

(a) where the decision is that of the President of the Tribunal sitting alone in pursuance of clause (b) of section 77 of the said Act:

(b) where the decision is that of the Tribunal, and

(i) the President of the Tribunal grants a certificate that the case is a fit one for appeal, or

(ii) the Court grants special leave to appeal :

Provided that the Court shall not grant such special leave unless the President has refused to grant a certificate under sub-clause (i) and the amount in dispute is five thousand rupees or upwards.

(2) An appeal under clause (b) of sub-section (1) shall only lie on the following grounds, namely :—

(i) the decision being contrary to law or to some usage having the force of law;

(ii) the decision having failed to determine some material issue of law or usage having the force of law;

(iii) a substantial error or defect in the procedure provided by the said Act which may possibly have produced error or defect in the decision of the case upon the merits.

Procedure in such appeals.

4. Subject to the provisions of section 3, the provisions of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, with respect to appeals from original decrees shall, so far as may be, apply to appeals under this Act. V of 1908.

Execution of orders of Court.

5. The Chief Judge of the Court of Small Causes of Calcutta shall, on application, execute any order passed by the Court on appeal as if it was a decree made by himself.

Period of limitation for such appeals.

6. An appeal under section 3 shall be deemed to be an appeal under the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908, within the meaning of No. 156 of the First Schedule to the Indian Limitation Act, 1908. [Act XIV of 1904, s. 3.] V of 1908. IX of 1908.

STATEMENT OF OBJECTS AND REASONS.

THE Calcutta Improvement Act, 1911, passed by the Legislative Council of the Lieutenant-Governor of Bengal, constitutes a Tribunal for the purpose of performing the functions of "the Court" in reference to the compulsory acquisition of land for the Board of Trustees for the Improvement of Calcutta. The Act, as first introduced in the Council of the Lieutenant-Governor in the form of a Bill, contained clauses providing for appeals to the High Court from awards of the Tribunal, it being intended that those clauses should be validated by an Act of the Legislative Council of the Governor General on the lines of Act XIV of 1904, which validated and supplemented an appeal clause in the City of Bombay Improvement Act, 1898 (Bombay Act IV of 1898). This Act was passed in consequence of the decision of the High Court of Bombay in the case of Hari Pandurang v. Secretary of State for India in Council (I.L.R., 27 Bom., 424). While the Calcutta Improvement Bill was under the consideration of the Bengal Council it was felt that it would be more suitable for the Legislative Council of the Governor General to deal exclusively with the question of appeals to the High Court rather than for the local Legislature to enact clauses to be afterwards confirmed by the supreme Legislature. Accordingly the appeal clauses were struck out of that Bill, and the present Bill has been prepared to take their place.

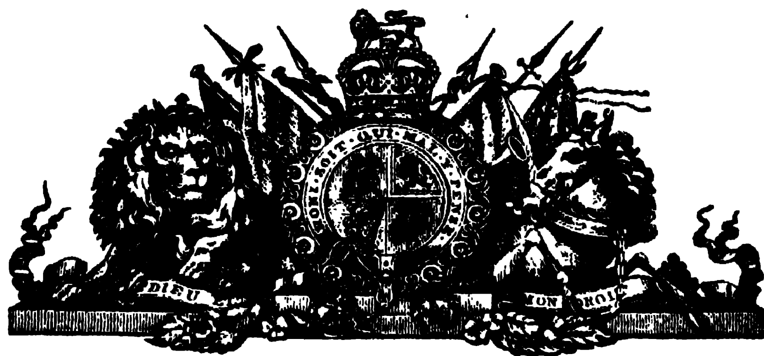
2. Clause 3 of the Bill declares the cases in which an appeal shall lie to the High Court. These are—

(a) cases in which the President of the Tribunal determines the persons to whom compensation is payable, or the apportionment of compensation, in the absence of the assessors, who, with him, constitute the Tribunal,

(b) cases in which the President of the Tribunal grants a certificate authorizing an appeal, and

(c) where the High Court grants special leave to appeal in any case in which the amount in dispute Rs. 5,000 and upwards, and the President refuses a certificate.

Clause 3 (2) limits all appeals from the full Tribunal to grounds of law as in section 100 of the Code of Civil Procedure, 1908.



3. Clauses 4, 5 and 6 of the Bill contain provisions, based on those in Act XIV of 1904, providing for procedure, execution and limitation.

MONTHLY WEATHER AND CROP REPORT OF BENGAL FOR AUGUST 1911.

Character of the season.—The rainfall was below the normal in all the districts of Lower Bengal except Birbhum, Bankura and Murshidabad and in Cuttack, Balasore, Darjeeling and Singhbhum. In the remaining districts of the Province it was above the normal. The excess was well marked in Sambalpur and in most districts of the Patna and Tirhut Divisions. The statement showing the rainfall in different districts is appended.

II. Progress of agricultural operations.—The rainfall during the previous month was insufficient in many districts and the transplantation of winter rice was delayed. In the second week of the month under report there was good and sufficient rain in many districts, and satisfactory progress was made in the work of transplantation. The rainfall, however, was insufficient in the districts of Hooghly, Howrah, Cuttack and Balasore. There have been some good showers recently in Cuttack and Balasore, which have improved considerbly the prospects in those districts.

III. Statement of standing crops.—The newly transplanted paddy is now doing well Some of the standing crops were reported to be suffering for want of rain in the early part of the month under report in parts of Sambalpur, Hazaribagh and Ranchi.

IV. Prospects of probable outturn of harvests.—Prospects of jute and other bhadoi crops are, on the whole, good.

V. Damage to crops.—Some damage was done by floods in Cuttack and also in Puri. Want of sufficient rain in the early part of the month affected the crops to some extent in parts of Sambalpur, Hazaribagh and Ranchi.

VI. Condition of agricultural stock.—The condition of agricultural stock was, on the whole, fair. Cases of cattle-diseases were reported from Midnapore, Nadia, Murshidabad, Monghyr, Bhagalpur, Purnea and from all the districts of the Patna, Tirhut, Orissa and Chota Nagpur Divisions except Saran, Balasore and Singhbhum.

VII. Failure of pasturage and fodder.—The supply of fodder was sufficient throughout the Province except in parts of Midnapore and Murshidabad.

VIII. Prices of food-grains.—During the second fortnight of the month under review, the price of rice rose in fourteen and fell in ten districts. It varied from 9 seers a rupee in Darjeeling to 15 seers in Angul.

IX. Condition of agricultural people.—The condition of the agricultural population was, on the whole, satisfactory.

RESOLUTION ON THE ADMINISTRATION REPORT OF THE POLICE DEPARTMENT FOR THE YEAR 1910.

POLITICAL DEPARTMENT—POLICE.

RESOLUTION—No. 2584P.—D.

Dated Darjeeling, the 23rd September 1911.

READ—

The Report on the administration of the Police Department for the year 1910.

Read also—

The Report for the year 1909 and the Resolution of Government thereon.

1. The Hon'ble Mr. L. F. Morshead, I.C.S., held charge of the office of Inspector-General of Police throughout the year.

2. Political Crime.—The important political cases of the year were noticed in reviewing the Report for 1909, with the exception of the Khulna-Jessore case. The year ended with a comparatively clean sheet in respect of this form of crime, but events of the first quarter of 1911, notably the murder of Head Constable Sirish Chandra Chakravarti in Calcutta and the bomb outrage at Writers' Buildings, unfortunately demonstrated that no relaxation of vigilance is yet justifiable. The Special Department remained throughout the year under the efficient control of Mr. F. C. Daly, Deputy Inspector-General.

3. Professional Crime.—The Criminal Investigation Department under the charge of Mr. C. W. C. Plowden, C.I.E., maintained its record of usefulness. As a result of successful prosecutions, thefts from running trains on the East Indian Railway, to which the special attention of the Department was called in the Resolution on the Report for 1909, were reduced from 1,540 to 942, and further measures for the improvement of the policing of the Asansol-Burdwan Section of the E. I. Railway have been adopted during the current year. Important convictions of dacoits were obtained on the Bankura-Manbhum border and in the 24-Parganas and Hooghly. The arrangements with the Nepalese authorities on the Purnea border continued to work satisfactorily. As a result of those operations and those of the district police, the number of dacoities during the year fell from 341 to 231,—a most satisfactory result. The decline was most marked in the Bhagalpur Division (82 to 26) and in Chota Nagpur (50 to 25), though it must be remembered, as the Inspector-General points out, that divisional jurisdictions furnish a fallacious basis of comparison. The Finger-print Bureau continued to do most successful work, and the Inspector-General of Police quotes two striking cases in which finger prints left at the time of committing the offence were instrumental in securing the culprits' identification and conviction. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council notices with satisfaction that the collection and classification of information in the Criminal Intelligence Bureau was completed during the course of the year, and that systematic measures are now being adopted for the dissemination of criminal intelligence.

4. Ordinary Crime—Crimes against Public Tranquillity.—The satisfactory increase of activity which was shown during 1909 in the application of the preventive sections of the Criminal Procedure Code was well maintained, and was accompanied by a further decrease in cases of rioting and unlawful assembly (907 to 837); but the Lieutenant-Governor in Council agrees with the Inspector-General of Police that a more frequent recourse to section 107, as against section 145, would be efficacious, and the application of section 106 might with advantage be extended. The increase of rioting cases in Shahabad is notable, and the reasons assigned for it are in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council insufficient. The matter calls for special attention. The Inspector-General of Police reports that in Monghyr Mr. Bamber, the District Superintendent, has introduced a practice of warning landowners and occupiers of disputes likely to lead to a breach of the peace in respect of lands in which they are interested, with a view to the application of section 154, Indian Penal Code, should they not endeavour to prevent the dispute culminating in a riot; this practice is said to have had a very satisfactory effect, and the Inspector-General thinks that it may explain the decrease of 30 per cent. in riot cases in the district. It is probable that the winding up of the settlement operations is largely responsible for the improvement in the peace of the district; but the Lieutenant-Governor in Council agrees that Mr. Bamber's practice is salutary, in so far as it conveys a preliminary warning, but does not approve of it being regarded as an alternative procedure to the free application of the preventive sections. Steps will be taken to bring the procedure subject to this condition to the notice of all District Magistrates and Superintendents of Police.

5. Crime against the Person.—The total number of cognizable cases reported during 1910 was 109,228, a net decrease of nearly 8,000 over the figures of the previous years; but class II—serious offences against the person—is exceptional in showing an increase of over 400 cases. Under the head of murder and culpable homicide there is a satisfactory decrease in the number of cases, though the results continue to be poor. The main increase is under grievous hurt, rape, kidnapping, and unnatural offences also show a very unsatisfactory increase, and require special attention. It appears that half the cases of kidnapping and abduction come from the Burdwan Division. Exemplary punishments are necessary to furnish an effective deterrent.

6. Crime against Property.—The further decrease in the total volume of cognizable crime falls, as in 1909, principally under the heads burglary (4,065 cases) and theft (4,156 cases). As last year, the decrease is attributed for the most part to improved agricultural conditions and to the rigorous prosecutions of bad-livelihood cases. It is significant that in Khulna, which was afflicted by the visitation of a tidal wave, the number of burglaries, so far from decreasing, rose 40 per cent. The prevalence of the system of "panka" or levy of blackmail for the recovery of stolen property in Shahabad, both in respect of burglaries and of cattle thefts, requires the zealous attention of the local authorities; it is an evil, as the Inspector-General indicates, that owes its continuance to mistrust of the police, and it is only to be eradicated by an all-round improvement in police administration.

7. Security Cases and Surveillance.—The use of security cases as a preventive measure showed some shrinkage from the high mark reached in 1909, but the percentage of successful prosecutions continued satisfactory; the small percentage of cases tried locally in the Patna and Tirhut Divisions (27 and 19 respectively) requires explanation. The Inspector-General correctly assumes that a local trial is the best test of the truth of such cases. Any failure in this respect is unsatisfactory and a cause of disappointment. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council is glad to observe that in accordance with the orders passed in the Resolution of 1910 considerable attention has been paid to the systematic accumulation and periodical scrutiny of evidence against criminal suspects, and that the instructions on this subject are now generally appreciated. He is prepared to accept the Inspector-General of Police's opinion that surveillance over habitual criminals has become too widespread to be effective and that the time has come round for reducing the number of surveillees to be regularly visited.

8. Growth of Cognizable Crime.—As directed in last year's Resolution, the Inspector-General has subjected to a further examination the statistics of the rise in the number of burglaries and dacoities during the past fifteen years. The result of his examination is printed as Appendix I to the Report. He has now carried his inquiries back to 1891, and the result is that, after eliminating all such factors as seasonal vicissitudes the conclusion arrived at last year must be confirmed, viz., that there has been an increase in the volume of reported crime against property, not only absolutely but in proportion to the increase of population. At the same time the Lieutenant-Governor in Council is unable to accept Mr. Morshead's estimate of the causes contributing to this result. Mr. Morshead finds no distinct evidence of an improvement in reporting. Such an improvement however necessarily eludes proof of the kind sought, and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council is not convinced by the method of reasoning which has been adopted. On a question of this sort he would prefer to rely on the personal opinion of intelligent and experienced officers, and to assign to such considerations as an obviously more honest police administration, improved means of communication, and a growth of general intelligence their natural and inevitable results. Consequently he has no doubt that better reporting may safely be postulated as accounting in part at least for the increase. Again, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council would be disposed to attribute a far larger part to the spread of industrial conditions than the Inspector-General, on an examination of figures district by district, is disposed to do. As Mr. Morshead has had occasion to point out in the body of his report, administrative boundaries are a fallacious basis of comparison; and it may be added that statistical tests if subjected to a too strict interpretation are apt to be equally misleading. It is impossible to whittle down the force of the salient fact that the industrial population of the province, which in 1891 was 37 lacs or 7 per cent. of the total, had risen by 1901 to 66 or 13 per cent. The figures for 1911 are not yet available, but there has doubtless been a further increase; it is a matter of universal experience that the establishment of industrial conditions, especially in the transitional stages, is marked by a disproportionate increase in crime. This must particularly be the case where an industry undergoes a great and sudden development and is largely dependent on imported labour. Another factor to which the Inspector-General has failed in the opinion of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council to assign its due importance is the improved means of communication. The numerous railway lines which traverse the country in all directions offer increased facilities to the professional criminal for carrying on his nefarious trade. In short, having regard to the material and industrial conditions which have prevailed in Bengal during the last decade, the Lieutenant-Governor in Council would have been surprised had crime against property failed to outrun the increase of population. It follows that he is not prepared to accept at the Inspector-General's valuation the conclusion that the outstanding cause of district fluctuations is the good or bad work of the Superintendent in charge, though he admits that the prime importance of this factor is liable to be overlooked, if only because it is one for which inefficient Superintendents are interested in finding alternatives. If the disproportionate growth of crime is to be attributed in any measure to this cause, the only possible conclusion is that the superior officers of the police force are growing more and more inefficient. Here again the Lieutenant-Governor in Council prefers to be guided by experience rather than by a priori reasoning, and has no hesitation in affirming that the standard of efficiency amongst the members of the Indian police is very much higher now than it was 10 or 15 years ago. The inquiry has not been as conclusive as might have been hoped, nor are its results as they stand matter for congratulation, yet the Lieutenant-Governor in Council feels that it has not been without value if it serves to bring home to all Superintendents the supreme importance of efficient personal influence. He trusts that the officers of the force, and especially the junior officers, will find in this discussion a stimulus and an encouragement.

9. Rural Police.—The defects in the President system which received notice in last year's Resolution have formed the subject of careful consideration by Government during the year. The main lines of reform have now been settled, and the Lieutenant-Governor in Council takes this opportunity of announcing them for general information. The principal defect in the present system is that there is a tendency for the chaukidar to report crime to the President and not to the police, thus depriving the force of its main source of intelligence. Instructions are under issue emphasizing the statutory obligation which rests on the rural police to report crime at the police station, and reviving the practice of holding weekly or fortnightly parades at the thana, the abandonment of which has been largely responsible for the chaukidar growing more and more out of touch with the police. Presidents who encourage or connive at omission to report crime promptly at the thana will be removed from office. In the second place efforts will be made to improve the personnel of the body of Presidents, both by weeding out undesirables and by securing greater care in selection. As in previous years, cases are quoted by the Inspector-General of Police in which Presidents have been guilty of usurping to themselves the functions of Courts and even of siding with criminals and releasing offenders. Such cases reflect discredit on the appointing authority, and in future when they occur, measures will be taken to bring home to the officers concerned their responsibility in the matter. Since it is unfair to the system while on its trial to be called on to work with unsuitable instruments, it has further been laid down that in Unions in which no suitable candidate is available or ready to take office, the system will be held in abeyance, and District Officers will be advised that on the expiry of a President's term of office, it is not essential to appoint a successor unless a candidate in all respects suitable can be secured. Lastly, in the matter of control, it has been decided to make an important departure by dividing subdivisions into smaller areas, to be known as circles, and appointing to the charge of such circles selected officers of the Subordinate Civil Service, whose primary functions will be to keep in touch with Presidents and assist them in their official business. This system will be put on trial during the coming cold weather on a small scale as an experimental measure; and it is expected to result in an improvement not only in the work of the Presidents, but in matters of general administration. It must be understood that there is no intention on the part of Government to abandon the President system, or to curtail the President's legitimate authority. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council is satisfied that the system possesses the elements of vitality and he trusts that those measures will give it a new lease of useful life.

He has no desire to revert to the old order of things, and is as impressed as ever by the importance of securing for the administration the co-operation of the influential members of the rural community. He agrees with Mr. A. Ahmad, the District Magistrate of Bankura, that village influence over the village police could not in practice be eliminated, even if it were desirable to do so; the problem therefore is to adapt this influence to the needs of the administration, and this it is hoped to achieve by bringing the administration, in the person of the circle officer, closer to the village.

10 Charges against the Police.—An examination of the figures of such charges under the two principal heads, maltreatment and extortion, bears out the view affirmed by Government in the Resolution on the Report for 1909, that much of the criticism directed against the police is ill directed and malicious. Ten cases of maltreatment were instituted against the police during 1910, as against seven in 1909. Of these three were declared false, and four were dismissed under section 203, Criminal Procedure Code. Twenty cases of extortion were preferred, as against seventeen in 1909. Four were declared false, one was dismissed under section 203, Criminal Procedure Code, and of the nine cases brought to trial, only two ended in conviction, and the remaining seven in discharge or acquittal. The suggestion so frequently insinuated that Government is remiss in its endeavours to stamp out such abuses as occur is sufficiently refuted by the action taken in the Birbhum torture case, one of the two cases of this nature which were proved to be true. In this case a Sub-Inspector, a constable, and two villagers were concerned in beating a prisoner arrested on suspicion in a burglary case in order to extort a confession. The prisoner died, and it is probable, though of this there is no adequate proof, that his death was caused by his maltreatment. The Superintendent, in spite of the case being brought to his notice, failed to inquire himself, or to exercise proper supervision over the enquiry, and the Divisional Inspector also shirked the investigation under circumstances which throw suspicion upon his motives. An Inspector from the Criminal Investigation Department was thereupon deputed, with the result that the accused were convicted in the Sessions Court, and sentenced to various terms of imprisonment. For his failure to deal adequately with this case the Superintendent has been degraded, and the Inspector, Sub-Inspector, and constable have been dismissed the force. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council takes this opportunity of calling the attention of all police officers to the punishments inflicted on the Superintendent and the Inspector as a warning of the consequences attendant upon failure to put forward the utmost exertions to investigate charges of maltreatment preferred against subordinates. The standing orders in the Police Manual specifically impose on superior police officers the duty of prompt and personal investigation in such cases. These orders have been reaffirmed and emphasized in the new edition of the Manual, and it has been further prescribed that Magistrates shall be more freely employed on preliminary investigations in such cases. In the second true case of this nature, a Sub-Inspector and two constables of the Midnapore district were charged with having maltreated an accused in a dacoity case. After inquiry by the Superintendent, who found the charges true, they were placed on trial, convicted under section 330, Indian Penal Code, sentenced to various terms of imprisonment, and dismissed the force. While the Lieutenant-Governor in Council has thus demonstrated his anxiety that all charges against the police should be efficiently investigated, and where proved, strictly punished, he is constrained to observe that the practice of preferring frivolous and even false charges of this nature is far too prevalent. The detection and punishment of guilty members is altogether to the advantage of the force, but false and frivolous charges do nothing but harm; and it is the duty of the Magistrate sternly to repress them and of the public to render him all possible assistance in doing so. Where there is a reasonable expectation of conviction, section 211, Indian Penal Code, should invariably be applied; and where the accusation is proved to be false, deterrent sentences should be inflicted. The Inspector-General of Police quotes two cases in Hazaribagh and Purnea in which complainants were convicted under section 211, Indian Penal Code, of bringing false charges against the police, and were sentenced to three and one month's rigorous imprisonment respectively. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council has not the records of these cases before him, but unless extenuating circumstances of considerable weight were present, he agrees with the Inspector-General of Police that the sentences imposed were decidely inadequate.

11. The Statistical Test of Police Work.—A fiction which has recently made its reappearance in the public pres is the assertion that the promotion of police officers depends upon the percentage of convictions which they can secure. It is true, as the Inspector-General of Police points out, that success in investigation is a factor which cannot be eliminated in estimating an officer's efficiency, and statistics of this branch of police work may, in extreme cases, serve to call attention to a failure needing scrutiny; but that such statistics are accepted as the main, or even a principal, means of gauging eligibility for promotion is absolutely false. A succession of circulars dating from many years back has impressed upon the force the falsity of this view, and the limitations which must govern the use of such statistics have recently been placed beyond dispute in the revision of the Police Manual, which lays down that "an officer will be judged not merely by his percentage of successes in the investigation and prosecution of offences, which is to some extent a matter of fortune, but by his display of method and intelligence in detection, his general efficiency and keenness, his management of his subordinates and, above all, by his knowledge and control of the local charge committed to him." Many instances could be cited of officers who owed their promotion to the highest ranks not to successful results as judged by a statistical test, but to their uprightness of character, their healthy influence on their subordinates, and their clean and honest work. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council cannot believe that there is a single officer in the police force who genuinely believes that his promotion depends on his obtaining, regardless of the means employed, a high percentage of convictions; while the accusation against Government of having deliberately adopted a policy to this end could not emanate from any person with a sense of responsibility who had honestly studied the facts.

12. Remands of Cases.—The statement of remands is still an unsatisfactory record which calls for the attention of the Police and Magistrates. Frequently the Police are blameable in being unprepared with evidence, more frequently the fault lies on the Court in ordering unnecessary postponements. Needless worry and expense to the public are the consequences, and there is much room for improvement in this branch of work.

13. Transfers of Officers.—The Lieutenant-Governor in Council observes with satisfaction that success has attended the efforts made during the year, in accordance with the orders conveyed in the Resolution of 1910, to reduce the frequency of transfers of Sub-Inspectors. The matter, however, is one which requires continued attention, and as the Inspector-General points out, the transfers of Circle Inspectors call for more careful control on the part of Deputy Inspectors-General.

14. The Lieutenant-Governor in Council has pleasure in congratulating Mr. Morshead on a year of efficient administration, which has been attended by distinctly successful results. His thanks are also due to those officers who are mentioned by the Inspector-General as having done good work during the year. Lastly, he desires to place on record his appreciation of the distinguished services of those officers of the force who were honoured during the year by the grant of the King's Police Medal: Mr. G. C. Denham, of the Special Department, Mr. Bhimdal Lazarus Dewan Ray, Deputy Superintendent, Mr. C. W. Pettifer, Inspector, Armed Police, and Babu Ambika Charan Sen Gupta, Sub-Inspector.

ORDER.—Ordered that copies of the Resolution be forwarded to the Inspector-General of Police, the Commissioner of Police, Calcutta, and all Commissioners of Divisions, for information.

Ordered also that the Resolution be published in the Calcutta Gazette.

By order of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council,

C. J. STEVENSON-MOORE,

Chief Secretary to the Government of Bengal.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

PRELIMINARY FORECAST OF THE BHADOI CROPS OF BENGAL, 1911.

(On an average of the five years ending 1909-10 the area under autumn rice in the territory to which this forecast relates has represented some 6·1 per cent. of the total area under this crop in British India.)

Character of the season.—In March the rainfall was general over the province. April and May were showery, but the fall was defective in most districts. Sowings were late in most districts of the Burdwan, Presidency and Bhagalpur Divisions. In June the rainfall was above the average everywhere except in Midnapore, Hooghly, Howrah, 24-Parganas, Khulna and Saran, where it was defective. In July the rainfall was below the normal in all districts except Nadia, Jessore, Khulna and Darjeeling, where it was above the average. In August the rainfall continued defective in Midnapore, Hooghly, Howrah, the 24-Parganas, Cuttack, Balasore and Singhbhum; in the remaining districts it was above the normal. The continued short rain in Midnapore, Hooghly, Howrah, Patna, Gaya, Shahabad, Cuttack, Balasore and Angul considerably damaged the crops in these districts. The defective rainfall in July and early part of August also affected the outturn in several other districts. Some damage was done by excessive rain in parts of Muzaffarpur, Bhagalpur, Purnea and the Sonthal Parganas and by floods in Cuttack and Puri.

Area sown.—The total area sown this year with different bhadoi crops is reported to be 10,414,000 acres against 9,130,900 acres, the revised figures for last year. The normal area under the crop is 10,960,500 acres.

Outturn.—From the appendix attached to the report it will be seen that Champaran alone reports 100 per cent. crop. Burdwan, Saran, Muzaffarpur, Darbhanga, Bhagalpur and Sambalpur report a crop between 90 and 99 per cent. Nadia, Khulna, Purnea, the Sonthal Parganas, Puri and Ranchi report a crop between 82 and 87 per cent. Eight districts report an outturn between 70 and 77 per cent. and five districts a crop between 66 to 69 per cent. In the remaining five districts the crop is reported as follows:—Hooghly 56 per cent., Cuttack 54 per cent., Singhbhum 52 per cent, Midnapore and Howrah 50 per cent. each.

According to the estimates of the District Officers the outturn of the different bhadoi crops for the provinces as a whole works out to 82 per cent. of the normal.

Excessive rain at the sowing time interfered with more extensive cultivation and a month's drought followed which made the situation worse. With the advent of rains since the last week of July the situation has been appreciably altered for the better and unless rain holds off now altogether the prospects will be quite good. The condition of the crop is fair. The date of sowing was a little early. The decrease in the area sown under marua, maize and other bhadoi cereals is due to suspension of rains during the period between the middle of June and last week of July. * Estimated by this Department.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE, BENGAL.

FINAL FORECAST OF THE JUTE CROP OF BENGAL, 1911.

(On an average of five years ending 1909-10, the area under jute to which the Bengal jute forecast relates has represented 21·4 per cent. of the total area under jute in British India.)

Acreage.—The final district returns, including Cooch Bihar, show an area under jute of 645,122 acres or in round numbers 645,100, as compared with 596,662 acres reported in the preliminary forecast. The difference is due to the fact that the District Officers of Jessore, Howrah, the 24-Parganas and Nadia increased, while the District Officers of Midnapore, Bhagalpur and Balasore decreased their preliminary estimates, as the result of careful inquiries instituted after the publication of the preliminary forecast. The Collector of Murshidabad reported an increase of 7,300 acres as the result of sowings made after the preliminary forecast submitted in July last. The Collector of Hooghly reduced his preliminary estimate on account of the loss of a large area in the Serampore subdivision caused by excessive rainfall in June.

The acreage under jute in Bengal for each of the five years 1907–1911 in round numbers is noted below:—

Year.	Acreage.
1907	931,200
1908	548,700
1909	555,400
1910	573,800
1911	625,100

The area under jute this year in Cooch Bihar State, which is not included in the above figures, is estimated at 20,000 acres against 14,000 acres shown last year.

Weather conditions.—Purnea is the most important jute-growing district in Bengal. It produces more than one-third of the crop. The other important districts are Hooghly, Howrah, the 24-Parganas, Nadia, Murshidabad and Jessore. During the months of March to May, the rainfall was not far from normal in all the jute districts, except Nadia, Jessore, Khulna and Darjeeling, where it was above normal. Sowings commenced in the normal time in most districts, but were late in parts of Midnapore, Hooghly, Howrah, 24-Parganas, parts of Khulna, Bhagalpur, Purnea and Cuttack owing to want of sufficient moisture. The rainfall in June was general and above the average in all the jute-growing districts, except in Midnapore, Hooghly, Howrah, the 24-Parganas and Khulna, where it was in slight defect. In July it was much below the normal in all the jute districts, except Nadia, Jessore, Khulna and Darjeeling, where it was above the average. In August the rainfall was below the normal in Burdwan, Midnapore, Hooghly, Howrah, the 24-Parganas, Nadia, Jessore, Khulna, Darjeeling, Cuttack and Balasore. It was above the average in the remaining jute districts. The defective rainfall in July and the early part of August affected the outturn of the crop in the districts of Midnapore, Howrah, Hooghly, Murshidabad and the 24-Parganas. More water is reported to be wanting in Jessore for steeping.

Outturn.—In Purnea, which is the most important jute-growing district in this Province, the District Officer estimates the crop at 92 per cent. of the normal. In the 24-Parganas and Jessore, the only other districts which possess an acreage of over 50,000 acres under jute, the outturn is reported to be 90 per cent. of the normal. In the less important districts of Hooghly, Nadia, Murshidabad and Howrah the crop is reported to be 81, 88, 75 and 65 per cent. of the normal, respectively. According to the estimates of the District Officers the total outturn of the Province, including Cooch Bihar, works out to 87·4 per cent. of a normal yield.

Taking three bales as the normal outturn for each district and working on the area and percentage outturn reported by the District Officers, the total yield of the crop for the Province, including Cooch Bihar, amounts to 1,691,294 bales or in round numbers 1,691,300 bales.

From the reports of the District Officers it appears that there is very little of last year's crop held over in the districts.

Consolidated forecast.—The Director of Agriculture of Eastern Bengal and Assam estimates the area under jute in his Province this year to be in round numbers 2,461,300 acres and the outturn to be in round numbers 6,543,400 bales. The total acreage for the two Provinces is therefore 3,106,400 acres and the total outturn 8,234,700 bales.

The statistics of last year for Nepal, Upper India and Madras are given below :—

		Bales.
Nepal	...	42,751
Upper India viâ East Indian Railway	...	35,860
Madras viâ Bengal-Nagpur Railway	...	564

From a note kindly furnished by the Secretary, Bengal Chamber of Commerce, it appears that exports from 1st July 1910 to 30th June 1911 amounted to 3,531,066 bales and that the quantity consumed by the local mills during last year amounted to 3,979,606 bales. Allowing as usual 500,000 bales for country consumption, the total crop of last year, according to trade statistics, works out to 8,010,672 bales. The estimate of the Departments amounted to 7,932,000 bales.

Director of Agriculture, Bengal.

(a) Weather conditions were favourable in the Kalna subdivision, but not so in the Sadar and Katwa subdivisions. (b) General prospect of the crop good. (c) The decrease in area is due to want of moisture in the Sadar subdivision at the time of sowing, for which the normal area could not be sown. The outturn is slightly below the normal owing to unfavourable weather. A crop worse than that of last year is expected.

(a) & (b) Owing to insufficient rainfall this year the outturn is estimated to be below the normal. (c) In the preliminary forecast, which was based on the police reports, the area under jute was estimated to be 10,500 acres. The Agricultural Inspector who lately visited the jute-growing parts of this district estimates the area under the crop to be only 4,232 acres. The estimate is certainly too low, as can be shown by reference to the export statistics of the district, and allowance must also be made for unregistered exports. On the whole, I think, 7,000 acres is a reasonable figure to take.

(a) At the sowing time of this crop the weather and rainfall were not favourable in the Serampore and in parts of the Sadar subdivision. Elsewhere they were favourable. (b) The general prospect of the crop is good. (c) The decrease in the area is due to the fact, as reported by the Subdivisional Officer, Serampore, that owing to excessive rains at the time when the seedlings came out they were overgrown by weeds and grass which could not be removed owing to constant rain and thus several thousand acres were lost. The outturn of this year will be lower than that of the previous year on account of insufficient rain during the last two months.

The rainfall was insufficient. (b) The general prospect of the crop is moderate. (c) The decrease in the area and outturn in comparison with last year's crop is due to want of sufficient rain.

(b) Good in Basirhat, but only fair in the rest of the district. (c) The decrease in the outturn is due to the want of rain in July and in the beginning of August. The area sown has been increased after local enquiries.

PRESIDENCY.	Nadia ...	1,784,991	1,046,808	35,000	47,400	54	83	Little ...	Not cadastrally surveyed			August ...	(a) The weather was generally favourable. (b) General prospect of the crop is good. (c) The increase in area is due to favourable weather at sowing season and to the high price of jute. In Chuadanga subdivision the outturn is much above normal as compared with last year's crop. In Kushtia the crop is below normal owing to excessive rainfall during July last in Kumarkhali and Khoksa thanas. The area estimated to be sown this year has been raised after careful enquiry. Hence the discrepancy with the figures shown in the preliminary forecast.
	Murshidabad	1,371,530	1,085,200	27,700	27,700	75	75	Practically no jute remains in the district from the crop of the last year except a small quantity for domestic consumption.	...	...	...	......	(a) Weather and rainfall conditions, though unfavourable at the early part of the season, improved as the season advanced. (b) General prospect of the crop fair. (c) A normal crop cannot be expected owing to flood in Kandi subdivision and deficient rainfall in July. The figures in column 6 are greater than what were shown in the preliminary forecast as sowings were not complete at the time of submission of the preliminary report.

The large increase in area is due to more accurate reports received from the Travelling and Division Inspectors coupled with special reports called for from all Subdivisional Officers. The present estimate may be somewhat under the correct figure. Weather favourable. Prospect of crop good, but more water required for steeping.

(a) The weather and rainfall conditions have been on the whole favourable for the growth of the crop. (b) The general prospect of the crop is good. (b) The general prospect is fair. (c) The decrease in the area sown is due to outbreak of cholera and consequent loss of life in the Terai subdivision. This year's outturn is expected to be a little better than that of the previous year.

(a) There was insufficient rain at sowing time, but subsequently the rainfall has been favourable. (b) The general prospects are good. (c) The cause of increase in area has been given in first forecast and that in the outturn is due to subsequent favourable weather.
	Balasore ...	1,332,621	938,900	3,900	2,300	90	80	No jute remains in the district from the crop of last year.	1,095,778	1891-92 to 1894-95	138	Last week of August.	The weather which was favourable at the time of sowing was not so afterwards. The deficient rainfall retarded the growth of the crop, hence the outturn is less as compared with the last year. The area in column 6 has been reduced to 2,2?0 acres according to the Agricultural Inspector's report.

GENERAL SUMMARY.—Rain fell in all districts. The fall was heavy in Patna, Champaran, Hazaribagh Ranchi and parts of Burdwan and Purnea, moderate in Murshidabad, Bhagalpur and in the districts of the Orissa Division. It was light in the rest of the Province. Transplantation of paddy is nearly completed. Harvesting of bhadoi crops and weeding of winter rice are going on. The standing crops are doing well. Prospects of the standing crops have improved by the recent rainfall in Cuttack and Manbhum. Some damage has been done to the autumn crops by excessive rain in Hazaribagh. More rain is wanted in Hooghly, the 24-Parganas, Jessore and Puri. The price of common rice has risen in Bhagalpur, Sambalpur, Ranchi, Palamau and Manbhum and has fallen in Burdwan, Midnapore, Hooghly, Nadia, Khulna, Saran, Champaran and Balasore. Cattle-disease is reported from Midnapore, Patna, Monghyr, Bhagalpur, Cuttack, Angul, Sambalpur and from the districts of the Chota Nagpur Division except Singhbhum. The supply of fodder and water is sufficient throughout the Province.
